Nixon Says He, Dissenters Have Same Goals

Tension Grips Capital

From AP, UPI

WASHINGTON — An air of tense uncertainty settled over Washington Friday night as the United States capital steeled itself for an invasion by perhaps 100,000 persons who wish to demonstrate their contempt for President Nixon's war policies.

● Main question today: how deep is the U.S. split? Page 3

The unknown quantity was whether leaders pledged to nonviolent protest could control the situation.

The dimensions of potential trouble were reflected in a number of extraordinary events:

● National Guard members were advised to stand by in all states to watch over armories and thwart possible arson or violence.

● Republican governors cancelled a spring meeting and Nixon summoned all 50 governors to meet with him Monday to discuss "the disruption of peace, violence and potential violence throughout the nation."

● Some 227 colleges and universities throughout the U.S. suspended classes.

In a televised press conference Nixon said Friday night his decision to send U.S.

Towboat-Forest Squeeze

400 More In Layoffs

Four hundred more Victoria area men will be out of work Monday when the Victoria sawmill division of B.C. Forest Products Ltd. closes down for lack of logs, company manager Walter Nelson said Friday.

They will be added to the 200 laid off Friday from the Point Ellice division when they refused to handle logs branded "hot" by striking Canadian Merchant Service Guildsmen, causing that plant to close down.

Nelson said there are some logs on hand at the adjacent plant, but they will run out some time Monday.

★ ★ ★

The company has applied for a court injunction to restrain International Woodworkers of America members employed by them from refusing to handle "hot" logs.

The company expects a further four of the company's 22 logging camps across the province to shut down Monday affecting another 100 men.

★ ★ ★

An estimated 5,000 men have now been laid off in shutdowns throughout B.C. following refusal of IWA members to handle logs labelled "hot" by the Canadian Merchant Service Guild.

Hardest hit by the six-day-old towboat strike is MacMillan Bloedel which has been forced to curtail operations at nine of its logging and sawmill divisions, effecting some 4,000 men.

★ ★ ★

The New Westminster division closed Friday putting 300 out of work.

In Nanaimo, Mayo Lumber Co. has applied for an injunction against the guild on the grounds the latter marked as "hot" logs which were brought to the mill before the start of the strike.

There are about 200 employees at the mill, members of the IWA, who will be out of work if the company cannot obtain the injunction. IWA members have been respecting "hot" stickers on logs and not using them.

Mill manager Gordon McGavin says the mill is operating on a day-to-day basis.

The newly-opened CIPA mill is virtually closed with 60 men out of work.

The Harmac mill, with 1,100 employees, is still in operation.

Crown Zellerbach reported Friday it is continuing to operate at all its B.C. divisions but is reviewing the situation on a day-to-day basis.

Several smaller companies have already been forced to shut down and spokesmen for the industry said further layoffs are imminent if the towboat dispute continues.

Injunction applications continued to flow into B.C. Supreme Court in Vancouver

Vancouver

Protest Jams Streets

VANCOUVER (CP)—Club-swinging police broke up a milling around the Vancouver police station Friday night shouting obsenities at officers and demanding the release of demonstrators they said were arrested during a protest in the downtown area.

The demonstrators were earlier confronted by police in the heart of the city during a protest march against the United States' involvement in Cambodia and the shooting of four students at Kent State University in Ohio.

★ ★ ★

The demonstrations started at the U.S. Consulate where a window was kicked in and U.S. flags burned. A bank window was also smashed.

At the police station, the crowd chanted "Set our brothers free" as armed guards blocked the entrances to the building.

One demonstrator stood on a car and urged the crowd to rush the building. He was not supported.

Police at the rear of the station were issued billy clubs, and dogs were removed from their kennels to quell any uprising. The crowd had thinned out slightly by 11 p.m.

There were no immediate reports of arrests and police

After Burnaby Robbery

Dogs Flush Out Suspects

VANCOUVER (CP) — One man was wounded in the shoulder as police used tracking dogs to flush out two robbery suspects in a bushland area of the Burnaby suburb of Vancouver Friday.

Charged later with robbery were Barry Charles Klashinsky, 29, of Surrey and Gerald Joseph Loftus, 31, of Vancouver.

★ ★ ★

The chase started after two armed and masked men escaped with about $3,500 from an employees credit union office at a milk plant. When the getaway car hit a parked truck, the men fled into the bush on foot, leaving a sawed-off rifle and a quantity of money behind.

★ ★ ★

Police and dogs surrounded the area and flushed two men from the bushes after wounding one of them in the shoulder. The wound was described as not serious.

Meanwhile, police were continuing a search for two men who escaped earlier in the day with $9,000 after a bank robbery in South Vancouver.

The men, who produced pistols and ordered customers to the floor, fled by car from a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada. Police later found the getaway car abandoned a few blocks from the bank.

Sino-Soviet Affection Feeds on Cambodia

LONDON (AP) — China and the Soviet Union have joined in spreading word that United States President Nixon's intervention in Cambodia has opened the way for a Peking-Moscow reconciliation.

This development was dramatized by reports circulating among Chinese diplomats here Friday that a ranking Soviet official has hurried to Peking, supposedly bearing proposals for co-ordinated and broadened Communist resistance against the Americans in Indochina.

Ottawa Holds Firm

Postal Talks May Resume

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiators for the federal treasury board and the Council of Postal Unions are expected to resume talks Tuesday in an attempt to prevent a national strike, a reliable source said Friday.

The meeting has not been officially confirmed by either side. It is expected the first priority will be to sort out the issues dumped back on the bargaining table by a conciliation board report made public Thursday.

The gap between the wage demands of the postal unions and the increase offered by the government remains the biggest obstacle to a settlement.

★ ★ ★

The union view, filed in the report by labor representative William Walsh of Hamilton, would raise base rates in the post office by 23.3 per cent in a two-year contract expiring Oct. 1, 1971. Wages for postal employees now start at $2.57 an hour and reach $3.23 for dispatchers and other supervisory staff.

Treasury Board president C. M. Drury has indicated the government is sticking by the proposal of its representative on the conciliation board . . . a 30-month contract with a 16-per-cent wage increase.

Press Dispute On Mainland Near Solution

VANCOUVER (CP) — Negotiators for Pacific Press Ltd. said Friday they will recommend acceptance of an agreement worked out by the British Columbia mediation commission, and aimed at ending a labor dispute which has closed Vancouver's two daily newspapers since Feb. 15.

●

A spokesman for the company, which produces the morning Province and evening Sun, said the papers could be on the street by next weekend if both sides ratify the proposed agreement.

Union negotiators last week agreed to recommend acceptance of the package, which is retroactive to Nov. 1, 1969, to their members.

The company earlier balked at the Nov. 1 date, saying it would accept the settlement if the contracts with the five unions were dated from Jan. 1.

★ ★ ★

However, in a letter Friday to the mediation commissioners, the company said it was not made clear to its negotiators that settlement proposals were a completed package, not subject to future negotiations, and it now would accept the Nov. 1 date.

A spokesman for the unions — mailers, stereotypers, printers, pressmen and the Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild — said the unions will hold separate meetings Sunday to vote on the proposed settlement.

In a prepared statement, commissioners Pen Baskin and Alistair Pollock said they will meet with both sides at 10 a.m. today to work out procedures for resumption of operations.

★ ★ ★

"Therefore, the proposals in their entirety will be placed before union memberships and company principals for ratification," the statement said.

The Nov. 1 effective date for the contract had been a key issue in the dispute, with company negotiators seeking a later date.

The two commissioners recommended that the contract cover a three-year

Experts Hammer Out Anti-Gas Measures

● Nerve gas: 100-million-to-1 bet hedged. Page 5

By BILL THOMAS

A cluster of senior officials from federal government agencies and provincial civil defence organizations met in Victoria behind closed doors Friday morning to ponder what they all consider close to impossible—a leak of nerve gas if the U.S. government ships stores of the deadly weapon from Okinawa to Umatilla, Oregon.

Canada's chemical warfare experts from the defence research establishment at Suffield, Alberta, explained the effects of the toxic establishments at Suffield, Alberta, explained the effects of the toxic gases. Civil defence organizers listened and will try to work out plans for combatting an improbable disaster.

Members of the RCMP, CBC, Canadian Forces, along with staffers of the federal departments of fisheries, health and welfare, agriculture and fisheries, external affairs and federal emergency measures organization opened a series of talks that will go on until the potential crisis is over.

While the experts from Suffield, who know all the details of silent, odorless death, were putting the odds beyond the Irish Sweepstakes, it was obvious from the tone of the participants who spoke to the press following the meeting they have no intention of holding a winning ticket.

The Friday meeting will be followed up with meetings of specialists in the various facets of civil defence and emergency measures. This meeting marked the first time federal and provincial officials have offered public statements on their concern at the U.S. proposal.

Royal Columbian

Layoffs Protested By Work-to-Rule

NEW WESTMINSTER, (CP) — The British Columbia Hospital Employees Union have begun a work-to-rule campaign at Royal Columbian hospital to protest staff layoffs.

The hospital board Wednesday decided to cut staff by 50 because of austerity measures instituted by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark. Vice-chairman Dr. R. D. MacNeill quit in protest.

★ ★ ★

Meanwhile, hospital director R. B. Thomson Thursday posted a notice to staff saying the quality and quantity of care at the hospital will suffer because of the cuts.

His notice formally advised staff there will be layoffs but gave no details. Medical director R. G. Foulkes, however, said the 50 will include 26 nurses and eight other medical employees.

The union, with 550 members at RCH before staff cuts were announced, said it will post information pickets around the hospital next week. The union has 8,000 members in the province.

RCH board chairman Jack Biggs said the staff laid off will not qualify for unemployment insurance benefits because the provincial government has never agreed to pay a share of contributions.

★ ★ ★

A press release outlined service cuts:

● Visiting hours, presently from 2-8 p.m., will be 7-8 p.m.

● Admissions and discharges will be closely regulated.

● Non-essential operations, such as plastic surgery, will not be performed weekends.

● Electro-shock treatment for psychiatric patients will be ended and patients referred to Hollywood or Riverview hospitals.

● Out-patient fees, cost of private and semi-private rooms and meal prices in the staff cafeteria will all increase.

troops into Cambodia "will accomplish the goals" of peace demonstrators.

"They're trying to say that they want peace, they're trying to say that they want to stop the killing, they're trying to get out of Vietnam," Nixon said.

★ ★ ★

"I agree with everything they are trying to accomplish," he told the conference at the White House while anti-war demonstrators marched outside.

"Everything I stand for is what they want . . .

"I think I understand what they want; I would hope that they would understand somewhat what I want," Nixon said.

★ ★ ★

He said he will meet his pledge to withdraw another 150,000 American troops from

Vietnam during the next year.

"I did not send these men to Vietnam . . ," the president said.

Moves to shut off funds for the Indochina war spread rapidly.

"I like you fellows fine, but they're more explosive," Senator Edmund Muskie (Dem. Me.) quipped to reporters as he hurried from a news conference to one of the innumerable meetings going on all over the hill.

Muskie had met hastily with the reporters to announce yet another in a series of resolutions and amendments being offered separately or to various military spending bills aimed at denying President Nixon the money to wage war.

★ ★ ★

Senator George McGovern (Dem. S.D.) said the campaign — starting with creation of a bi-partisan congressional committee — probably will take two to four weeks to arouse Americans so they will bring pressure on their congressmen. Meanwhile, he said, intensive lobbying will be conducted on Capitol Hill.

Joining McGovern were Republican Senators Charles Goodell of New York and Mark Hatfield of Oregon and Democratic Senator Alan Cranston of California, Harold Hughes of Iowa and Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin.

Meanwhile, in wave after wave, thousands of solemn students washed through the capitol, beseeching sympathetic senators to end the war through the legislative process.

It was a lobbying effort the likes of which the capitol has rarely seen. It appeared to be spontaneous. There were no raised voices, no pickets and no disorder of any sort.

Late Friday night Nixon offered to meet at the White House today with representatives of the anti-war protesters.

As he spoke, candles placed by anti-war protesters burned from every spike of the black fence surrounding the White House. Hundreds gathered at the White House gate and listened to the president on transistor radios and TV.

Before he finished speaking, several demonstrators pushed the television set off its stand, jumped up and down on it, and smashed it to pieces.

A young girl said Nixon was "the biggest incitement to riot in the whole nation."

In an act of conciliation, Nixon arranged for the rally to be held on the Ellipse after protest leaders rejected the offer of the monument grounds, slightly farther away.

An application for an injunction against IWA Local Chemainus was adjourned to Monday.

B.C. Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said Friday he will use provisions of the B.C. Mediation Commission Act to get contract talks going in the forest industry if the federal government will intervene in the B.C. towboat strike.

He said there is no incentive to get employers and the IWA together at the bargaining table since numerous forest industry operations have been closed by the strike.

The towboat dispute, he said, is the most critical one affecting B.C. and it is up to federal authorities to bring the parties together.

★ ★ ★

Negotiations affecting some 38,000 WIA members in the province broke off last month when employers objected to non-IWA men attending talks as observers.

The main IWA contract involving 28,000 coastal members expires June 15.

★ ★ ★

West Regional IWA president Jack Moore said Friday the union had asked Peterson last month to use certain provisions of the act to get talks going again.

In Ottawa Thursday, Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey told the Commons he has no plans to intervene in the towobat strike.

Marchers Fill Streets

later barred reporters from the station. One police officer said two policemen suffered minor injuries as the crowd moved down Granville Street, one of Vancouver's main thoroughfares.

★ ★ ★

On Granville, motorcycle police gunned their engines and managed to push their way through the crowd as they were greeted with chants of "The streets are ours."

Another group of six police officers walked shoulder to shoulder through the crowd in an attempt to move demonstrators from the courthouse.

The march then swung through the city streets along an eight-block route to the police station. Some demonstrators knocked bus trolleys off overhead wires and others pounded on cars caught in the massive traffic jam they caused.

★ ★ ★

The protest started out as a demonstration against alleged discrimination against long-haired youths by a city department store, then spread to the U.S. Consulate.

The demonstrators claimed the Hudson's Bay Co. refused to allow long-haired youths into its downtown store. Their protests attracted a crowd of about 500 and caused traffic jams in the downtown area.

Racial Fights Close School

MIAMI (UPI) — An hour of brief, bloody fights between black and white students Friday forced officials to close South Dade high school before noon. It was the second day of racial violence at the school.

At Palmetto High, where blacks and whites clashed Thursday, only a third of the school's 2,026 students showed up. At Miami Killian, where there was trouble Tuesday, 1,300 of the 2,797 enrolled were absent.

Storm Lashes Portugal

LISBON (UPI) — A powerful late spring storm with heavy rains and wind gusts up to 73 miles an hour uprooted trees, smashed boats and flooded streets throughout Portugal.

Trees along Lisbon's main boulevards crashed down on passing cars and tiles were stripped from roofs. Shipping was paralyzed in the Tagus River.

Majority of Moles Innocent Blemishes

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What does a cancerous mole look like, symptoms, treatment, etc.? I had a small raised mole that rubbed off, and now there is a small hard lump there. I can't help worrying about it.—A.E.

Most moles are innocent. The potential to develop moles exists from birth, but it may take 20 years or more before they appear, which explains one thing that puzzles many readers.

There are other things that resemble moles but are not — flat, brownish areas that can appear on the face and the backs of the hands as we grow older. I'll discuss them after giving you some clues on moles.

There is no way the patient can decide for himself whether a mole is cancerous. A physician may or may not be able to say definitely on the basis of looking at a mole — but whenever one has suspicious signs, a study under the microscope will give a positive answer.

Moles are so common — virtually everybody will have at least one, perhaps very small — that it is out of the question to have all moles examined. There wouldn't be much point in it.

Here are the situations that should send you to the doctor for further investigation:

Any mole that changes in color or shape.

Any mole that bleeds without apparent cause.

Any mole that is subject to repeated irritation — that is, chafed by belt or bra strap or nicked when shaving.

The safe thing is to remove moles in such locations instead of waiting to see whether they may become cancerous.

Removal of an ordinary mole is simple. Once it has become cancerous, removal is not so simple.

Some authorities believe any mole on the palm of the hand or sole of the foot should come off.

Most moles are brown; black or very dark blue ones are worthy of being watched more closely.

Don't pick at moles or try to pick them off. If hairs grow from a mole, clip them off, don't pull them.

As to A.E.'s mole which "rubbed off" and left a lump, the lump should be examined for the sake of safety.

Now for these "brown spots," often called "liver spots," which they are not, or "age spots" which is a better term.

In general they do no harm.

Some similar spots, brownish or otherwise somewhat discolored, may be seborrheic keratoses — raised areas sometimes seen in older people, especially if the skin is slightly oily.

These can be pre-cancerous, and while it is not automatically necessary to remove all of them, it is a precaution. If they are not removed, they should be watched closely for any sign of bleeding, irritation or change.

Stuck in Ice

U.S. tanker Manhattan, loading supplies on Canadian escort icebreaker Louis St. Laurent during stop off Baffin Island, has been stalled by heavy ice in attempt to reach Navy Board Inlet in Arctic. Icebreaker reported Friday both ships were unsuccessful. Voyage expected to end May 15 will be delayed by severe conditions.—(CP)

Anti-Student

Protesters Encounter Opposition

From AP

Collegiate protests, some peaceful, some violent, multiplied throughout the United States Friday on the eve of a scheduled mass demonstration in Washington against American involvement in Cambodia and the death of four Kent State University students. But signs of counter-action cropped up on the streets of New York and elsewhere.

•

Scores of construction workers in hard hats left their jobs in lower Manhattan and charged with swinging fists into a mass of anti-war demonstrators outside the New York Stock Exchange on Wall Street.

Then, unfurling six American flags, the workmen paraded up Broadway to City Hall, as ticker tape was thrown in their path from skyscraper windows. They picked up adherents by the hundreds as they marched.

In Columbus, about 5,000 Ohio college students gathered in a peaceful anti-war demonstration in front of the Statehouse Friday. They were met by state officials who promised their petitions would be answered.

★ ★ ★

In Syracuse, N.Y., pupils of Central Technical High School attacked a band of their anti-war schoolmates at a rally led by Syracuse University students seeking to gain support against the war in Southeast Asia.

About 200 University of Mexico students on an anti-war march ran into an equal number of high school pupils who harassed and sought to block the marchers.

The National Student Association in Washington said it had reports that 437 of the 1,500 colleges in the U.S., nearly 30 per cent, were on strike or closed.

★ ★ ★

Students by the thousands marched peacefully in Austin, Tex., Sacramento, Calif., Newark, N.J., and Seattle, Wash. Protesters at Skagit Valley College in Mount Vernon, Wash., trimmed their hair and beards in an effort to get their anti-war message across better with a neater appearance.

However, firebombs or other explosives went off at Marquette University and the University of North Carolina.

Blazes were reported at the Universities of Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota-Duluth, Valparaiso, Ind., and a state university campus at New Paltz, N.Y.

Another Invasion Landed in Cuba

MIAMI (AP) — A second group of anti-Castro raiders has landed in Cuba, an exile radio broadcast says.

The invaders were described as commandos of the Miami-based Christian Nationalist Movement. They reported no opposition in landing.

The invasion report came three weeks after Fidel Castro said his forces crushed a raiding party mounted by another exile group.

Agnew Agrees:

The Word Is Murder

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vice-President Spiro Agnew says the fatal shooting of four Kent State University students by Ohio National Guard trooops was murder if guardsmen fired without warning and without having been fired upon.

"I don't condone their action," he said of the guardsmen. "They responded with far too much force than they should have."

★ ★ ★

Agnew's remarks were in an interview Thursday night by David Frost, whose television talk show is syndicated by Westinghouse. The videotaped interview will be aired next Wednesday.

Frost asked Agnew: "If it is discovered there was no shot fired at them by a sniper, and they just opened fire without a warning shot or anything . . . is the word for that 'murder'?"

"Yes, but not first-degree," the vice-president replied.

★ ★ ★

". . . When there is no premeditation, but simply an overresponse in the heat of anger that results in a killing it is a murder, and it certainly cannot be condoned."

Agnew said the guardsmen "were probably under a great amount of tension. One or two may have lost control and that caused the tragedy . . .

"I would guess that if a very volatile young man got a brick in the neck or in the ribs he might just blow up . . ."

"It seems to me," Agnew said, "that had the rocks not been thrown there would have been no chance of the killing."

Frost: "And I suppose had the tear gas not been thrown, the rocks wouldn't have been thrown?"

★ ★ ★

Agnew: "That's right, and had the buildings not been burned and the threatening assembly not been conducted, the tear gas wouldn't have been thrown."

Frost: "I suppose we could go on: had the president not announced the excursion into Cambodia maybe the demonstrations wouldn't have taken place."

Agnew: "Well, now you are going back into an interesting area."

Main Question Today: How Deep U.S. Split?

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The most terrifying aspect of Senator William Fulbright's statement that the United States today is facing the gravest constitutional crisis since the Civil War is the absence of contradiction.

Certainly there is no lack of evidence that the U.S. is a country divided — what remains to be assessed is the depth and breadth of the division.

Although the student youth, planning a protest march on Washington today, and the Republican administration of Richard Nixon are the obvious major combatants, it is more than a struggle between youth and maturity, iconoclast and the establishment.

Even within the cabinet there is dissent, as indicated by Interior Secretary Walter Hickel's rather sensational "heed youth" letter to Nixon as he plots strategy for dealing with the national protest against his conduct of the war in Indochina.

★ ★ ★

Perhaps even more significant throughout many of the country's universities is the recent conversion of a growing body of faculty to the causes of its students.

The weekend's demonstration may provide the best indicator yet on how broadly based is the general dissent.

★ ★ ★

Nison's plight, as thousands of Americans go on the march for one cause or another as never before in the country's history, has already moved one television commentator to recall the appropriate words of India's late Mohandas Gandhi:

"There go my people. I must hurry and catch up with them, for I am their leader."

Tax in Premium's Clothing

A RUMOR that the federal government was contemplating a universal unemployment insurance scheme was stilled two years ago when legislation was brought in merely extending compulsory participation to employees at higher pay levels. But apparently the idea of universality still floats in the federal mind. Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey has told the House of Commons labor committee that in his own opinion, all wage and salary earners in Canada should contribute to the unemployment insurance fund: "My tendency is that universality is not only desirable, it's logical."

The labor minister's opinion may not, of course, be that of the cabinet. He said that his views will not necessarily be those expressed by the cabinet in pending White Paper proposals for changes in unemployment insurance. But at the same time, he presumably has some inkling of what the White Paper will say and he is ready to defend his position. He is, he told the committee, "prepared to take a lot of flak from people who may consider unemployment insurance a kind of tax or something they'll never need for themselves."

In case Mr. Mackasey's pronouncement is a kite flown in advance of final White Paper decisions, the flak ought to start going up right now. Because if the payment of unemployment insurance premiums by all wage and salary earners regardless of their security is not "a kind of tax," what is it?

How many civil servants will ever qualify for unemployment insurance benefits? How many policemen or firemen? And, since these were included in the reported considerations of mid-1967, how many self-employed and members of the learned professions?

Drafting into the insurance scheme hundreds of thousands of Canadians who have the utmost security in employment would most certainly be imposing a disguised income tax on them and on employers required to contribute in their behalf. And it would not bear equally — not at all — on earners of income of other kinds.

It's Worth a Try

CANADIANS WILL HARDLY be overjoyed with Postmaster General Eric Kierans' announcement that postal rates will be increased again next year nor impressed with his assurances that his department "will cut costs and improve productivity."

With regard to this latter pledge, Canadians have been hearing variations of such promises ever since Mr. Kierans took over management of the nation's mail in July, 1968, but they have yet to notice any improvement.

Indeed, the only changes most Canadians have noticed in the operation of Mr. Kierans' department in that time is its increase in cost and decrease in service.

Citizens of this country may be forgiven if they subscribe to the growing belief that Canada now possesses one of the most costly and inefficient postal services in the Western world. This view is difficult to challenge when it is discovered that letters mailed from Eastern Canada—even official correspondence from Ottawa—take nearly two weeks to reach the West Coast.

Mr. Kierans may blame all sorts of people and make all sorts of excuses for this sort of thing happening. But the fact of the matter is that it did not happen anywhere nearly as frequently — if at all—before he took over the reins of the post office.

As the deterioration of our postal services coincided with Mr. Kierans' arrival as postmaster-general perhaps their improvement might coincide with his departure. This, of course, may not be the answer, but surely it's worth a try.

Questionable Traffic Law

LATE IN 1968, Victoria city council considered and then considerately rejected a proposed bylaw which would have made a traffic offence of "what is in many instances sheer bad luck," as the Colonist wrote at the time. Now the same proposal, or virtually the same, is coming before it again. The public works committee has recommended that a driver be prohibited from entering an intersection unless there is sufficient space on the other side to accommodate his vehicle.

Since the blocking of intersections, with the attendant build-up of congestion and delay, is almost entirely a rush-hours problem in Victoria, we would suggest that before making a decision each alderman join the five o'clock "rush" northbound on Douglas, for instance, for practical experience if he has not already had it.

Those who have will undoubtedly have observed that few drivers are thick-skinned enough to place themselves in the position of blocking off cross-traffic if they can avoid it. That the smoothest-moving line of traffic ahead may suddenly come to a halt, for some invisible reason. That if one hangs back to wait for a space to open on the other side of the far crosswalk, the space is often captured after one starts forward by a right-turning car from the side-street.

There is also the question of enforcement. Are we to picture offenders and policemen further blocking traffic while the former are directed over to the side of the road and ticketed? A lane out of use for at least three or four minutes in each instance?

When Victoria has a pair of north-south one-way streets (as we said before) some of the congestion will be eliminated, and in the meantime it would be of considerable benefit to have constables stationed at the main trouble points in the rush periods. Their guidance could be much more effective in preventing blockages than by a bylaw penalizing reasonable but wrong expectations.

"And now for the news . . ."

Five Reasons

Why Britain Is Now Better Off

By NORA BELOFF from London

TO many businessmen and bankers in Britain there is a disconcerting similarity between the present pre-election boom, on which the Labor government is riding back into public favor, and the boom of 1964, which carried the Conservatives from the depths of disfavor to almost — but not quite — winning the fourth election in a row.

For the last six years, the Labor Party, particularly the prime minister, Harold Wilson, has blamed the Conservative pre-election inflation of 1964 for all its miseries: the freeze on wages, and squeeze on investments, the failure of economic growth, the devaluation of the pound, and the budgetary economies which forced Labor chancellors to postpone or cut back the welfare and housing programs on which Labor had been elected.

Now the tables have been turned, and the Conservatives and their leader, Mr. Edward Heath, are blaming Mr. Wilson for putting the economy at risk to get himself re-elected.

* * *

There is no doubt that the "go" phase of the "stop-go" (deflation-inflation) cycle coinciding with the run-up to the election benefits the government in power — Labor in 1970 and the Conservatives in 1964. Then, as now, there was a massive wage explosion. The present government has said that if stability is to be maintained wage increases should not go higher than between 2½ and 4 per cent. In fact, the rate of rise is currently running closer to 10 per cent or 12 per cent. And though prices are also going up, this massive pay rise has created a general sense of well-being inevitably favorable to a government in office.

The Conservatives plummeted to the depths of unpopularity after their "wage pause" in the early 1960s. After a catastrophic by-election loss to the Liberals in 1962, the Conservative prime minister, Harold Macmillan, axed seven members of his cabinet without managing to recover public support.

* * *

In 1963, the party was further discredited by the Profumo scandal, in which a Conservative minister lied to the House of Commons in trying to conceal that he had shared a mistress with a Soviet naval attache. Yet once the economy moved forward again, giving more people more money than ever before, the public forgot and forgave.

A year ago, Labor's prospects for revival were dismissed as unthinkable. Devaluation of the pound and the consequent rise in prices, cuts in housing, high unemployment, all combined to produce a general sense of failure. It reflected itself in an uninterrupted series of by-election defeats, even in constituencies which Labor had never before lost.

* * *

This time, again, the turnround in the polls has been nothing less than sensational. No one seriously doubts that economic revival is a primary cause. Organized workers have either received large wage boosts, or are happily expecting them.

Nevertheless, there are five major reasons why the present economic recovery is built on rather stabler foundations than the 1964 pre-electoral spree.

The first is that Britain is no longer internationally in the red. In 1964, the deficit in the balance-of-payments was over £800 million; whereas the recent returns show Britain currently running a surplus of over £300 million a year. The Conservatives argue that if they had won the 1964 election, even given the £800 million deficit, there need have been no crisis of confidence and no run against the pound. Equilibrium could have been restored by further borrowings and without the desperate measure of statutory wage controls. That is one of the "ifs" of history which can never be proved.

What can be said is that by slowing down economic growth to cut back imports, by devaluing the pound sterling, by almost doubling the level of exports, the Labor government has restored world confidence. The prime minister can claim, as he did in talks with the trades unions, that Britain currently has a stronger balance-of-payments than any of her six prospective Common-Market partners.

* * *

Secondly, there has been a gradual but highly significant modernization of British industry. Certain regions are industrially backward, and the average age of the industrial plant is older in Britain than in more recently-industrialized countries. But the fundamental weakness of Britain's competitive position in world trade has been excessive concentration of the labor force in the old industries. For the last five years, manpower in the cotton industry has gone down by 27 per cent, in the railways by 30 per cent, and in coal by 37 per cent. The task of re-deploying labor and modernizing machinery is still incomplete, but the mass movements of the 1960s have made Britain a far richer country than it was.

Thirdly, the 1964 boom was non-inflationary because it pressed heavily on limited resources. The economic revival of 1970 has still not finished taking up the slack, both in plant and manpower. Making this point, the pro-Labor economist, Dr. Nicholas Kaldor, has pointed to what he calls "one of the most sensitive indicators of over-heating" — the ratio of unfilled vacancies to wholly unemployed in the skilled engineering trades. He has shown that these rose through 1964 from 1.33 per cent to an all-time peak of 4.45 per cent. In other words, the bottlenecks of the 1964 inflation were leading towards a crisis. In the current boom, on the contrary, there is still a substantial pool of unemployed (though mostly unskilled) labor now running at 2.7 per cent against 1.6 per cent six years ago.

The present wage explosion has had the predictable effect of encouraging employers to install machines and save manpower. Though all unemployment is socially distressing (even though wage-related unemployment benefits make it less distressing than it was), the British economy is consequently becoming more productive and therefore more competitive.

* * *

Fourthly, the Labor government is lucky that similar price and cost inflations are taking place in the other major industrial countries. For this reason, the competitive advantages of the devaluation of the pound sterling two years ago, have not yet been wholly eroded.

Fifthly, in cutting back Britain's military presence outside Europe, and repudiating any defence responsibilities East of Suez — in other words, setting for a much smaller world role for Britain — the present Labor government has put an end to the constant rise in defence costs. No government could, in fact, have satisfied the British people's demand for constantly improved living standards, and the paying-off of massive internal debts, without reducing the military burden.

* * *

It would be an exaggeration to say that the present situation is economically stable. Indeed, the sensitivity with which the City of London financiers reacted to the Wall Street slump shows continued uncertainty about Britain's own economic prospects. Certainly, the Wilson government has not solved the problem baffling the leaders of all industrialized countries, of combining growth with price stability.

If the wage explosion continues, and prices (which have risen by 7½ per cent in the past year) continue their upward spiral, it is safe to predict that after these elections, too, the present "go" will be followed by some degree of "stop," whichever side wins. All that can be said is that this time, the "stop" need not assume crisis proportions, and that in terms of international competition, Britain is no longer the sick man of Europe.

The Drug Traders

By OTTO VON HABSBURG

WE hear a lot about drugs. The growing number of victims and crimes frightens public opinion. Studies generally analyze only the psychological and sociological background of the wave. All too often, thus, the main point is forgotten: drugs are big political and economic business. Fascinated by the colorful hippies, media overlook the ice-cold men for whom the flower children are only pawns in the game.

* * *

Communist China is vitally interested in the political and financial possibilites of the ugly trade. According to a high official in Hong Kong, an expert in international transactions, the income secured by the drug traffic forms approximately one fourth of the revenue in foreign currencies earned by Peking through the Crown colony. This amounts to a sum slightly over one million Hong Kong dollars a day.

The American-Italian crime syndicate, the Mafia, is only concerned with the profit. The organization has expanded into a world-wide machine since 1945. According to an American authority, the fortune of "Cosa Nostra" is presently estimated to 1.8 billion dollars. This permits the use of the most modern technical means.

* * *

Inevitably the two powerful organizations are getting closer to each other, in the pursuit of a common goal. The Mafia offers American contacts and a distribution organization in countries which presently the Chinese cannot reach. China, on the other hand, has men in the Maoist groups of the New Left, for whom the drug traffic is more a fanatical political than an economic operation.

The so-called "Vietnam Underground," which has ramifications nearly everywhere in Europe, is of great help to the Mafia. It is no secret that the shocking impunity of certain drug merchants is partly at least due to political influences.

From this point of view the Swedish situation is significant. Pretending to protest against the Vietnam war, 400 American soldiers in Europe have gone AWOL. They were received with open arms in Sweden, but rewarded their hosts with ingratitude.

One hundred and twenty of these American deserters have already been taken into criminal courts, nearly all of them for drug traffic. Right now seven men will face justice for the same crime. They had established their trading centre in a public building controlled by the government youth administration. Already today one can venture the prediction that they will get off lightly. The great organizations put at their disposal the best lawyers and if, despite this, they are sentenced, friends will step in who will get them out in no time.

* * *

Herein lies the real danger. It would be an error to punish the tragic victims of the diabolical trade. On the other hand, the sternest possible measures should be taken to break the backbone of the two world organizations. This will only be possible if the punishment for traders is so frightening, that the greatness of the risk will outweigh the attraction of enormous profits.

OUR READERS' VIEWS

Hydro Considers Pollution Priorities

To be considered for publication in whole or in part, letters must be on subjects of general interest, and if signed with pen-names, must be accompanied by writer's name and address. Preference will be given to those that are brief.

MAYOR Curtis of Saanich is voicing persistent opposition to his so-called "visual pollution" by B.C. Hydro's power lines. I am as much opposed to pollution of all forms as is His Worship, but my priorities apparently are different. The elimination of pollution must be undertaken by setting priorities and by educating the public to pay for it.

What would be the highest priority of the residents of Saanich? Would it be the elimination of overhead power lines or the elimination of raw sewage outfalls from Saanich that pollute our coastal waters at Macaulay Point? Would it be the undergrounding of an electric distribution line across the Gorge or the construction of a sewage system that would stop the pollution of Gorge waters by septic tank seepage from Saanich?

I am certain Mayor Curtis would do something about the sewer problems in Saanich if he had the money. Hydro also has a money problem. We have responsibility to the residents of all areas, including Saanich, to keep the costs of the electric system as low as possible so that there will be more funds for the highest priority requirements. In the final analysis, there is only one source of revenue — our customers — and they are also the ratepayers in Saanich and Victoria. If a sewage system is to be installed the ratepayers should have an opportunity to express their priority and their willingness to pay for it. If Mayor Curtis will state the priorities of his constituents and can confirm their agreement to pay the costs, he can be assured that any project that is technically feasible can be undertaken.

B.C. Hydro has adopted what we believe are fair and reasonable policies aimed at protecting and enhancing the ecological environment without ignoring the cost of power or the quality of service to over 600,000 customers in all parts of British Columbia. Electricity generated by hydro-electric installations is the most pollution-free source of energy available to man.

G. M. SHRUM,
Chairman, B.C. Hydro.

Independence

Your leading article of Sunday May 4, Time to Speak Out, should be pondered by every Canadian who wants to see this country remain independent and undivided. We must wake up to the fact that abandoning our great traditions is not helping our "national identity" but rather is destroying it and fast making us indistinguishable from the Americans.

For their part, the Americans do not admire us for this; they merely conclude that we are ready to be absorbed by them whenever they wish to do so. To state this is no more being anti-American than it is being anti-French to protest the deliberate obliteration by our government of the "British fact" at a time when they are loudly exhorting us to remember the "French fact" and incidentally spending large sums of money to make sure we do.

Park 'Shacks'

This last Sunday I took my usual walk through Beacon Hill park, in order to see the "shack town" of gardening sheds that the city wants to replace. After almost being run over by two motorbikes and a hot-rod, I made my way to the play area, and was aghast to see the pleasant swings and sandboxes painted not in eye-pleasing green, but daubed, probably by vandals, with the most jarring colors imaginable. I hope that the park staff will soon wipe out this vandalism. I thought the gardening sheds looked rather appropriate as they seemed to blend into the plants and flowers surrounding them and not to stick out like that box of a comfort station with its unnatural colors and straight lines.

I was very pleased to see the drawing of the new parks building in the city hall. I hope that is where it stays.

NERVE GAS PARLEY

100 Million to 1 But They're Hedging Bets

Committee members, left to right, Rutherford, Erb, Perry and Roberts

After a closed-door session at provincial Civil Defence Headquarters Friday morning experts on all aspects of chemical and biological warfare, representatives of the federal and provincial Emergency Measures Organization, military officers, a staff member of the external affairs department and the assistant director of civil defence for the state of Washington were asked direct questions on the proposed nerve gas shipments to Oregon.

The Colonist interview was directed to John Erb, B.C. provincial civil defence co-ordinator; Col. R. L. Rutherford, senior planning officer for peacetime emergencies, Ottawa; Dr. B. J. Perry, director general of the Defence Research Establishment, Suffield, Alberta, where Canada's chemical and biological warfare experiments are carried out; Don Campbell, a member of the arms control and disarmaments division of the external affairs department, Ottawa; W. P. Roberts, assistant state director of civil defence for the state of Washington and Lt.-Cmdr. Jerry Maloney, senior information officer, CFB Esquimalt.

● What exactly has been decided in this morning's meeting and what steps will be taken to protect the public in the event of an accident during the nerve gas shipment from Okinawa to Oregon?

RUTHERFORD: Essentially the Americans have not yet taken the decision to ship these gases, there's litigation brought by the states of Washington and Oregon before the courts, and I gather it's going to be heard Wednesday. But that's one point. The second point is that we are very satisfied with the precautions the Americans are taking, particularly insofar as the shipment through the Strait of Juan de Fuca is concerned because after the gases arrive at Bangor, Washington, there is no further danger to Canada whatsoever. We know this. We are very satisfied that the precautions they are taking are adequate.

There is always the possibility of something happening, no matter how very remote it is, and therefore it seems prudent that we should do some preliminary planning.

Essentially what we have done is have the scientific community examine the remote possibility of an accident and the various effects such an accident might have on Canada. These seem to be very small. We've done this in general terms and now we've set up some joint federal-provincial planning. Any advice on this matter should go to the provincial government.

We will examine the problems in detail, and make those contingency arrangements which would be necessary, at the time.

● So, Colonel, the preliminary reports are true in that the Americans plan to ship quantities of the gases VX, GB, and HD. The ones developed by the British, the Germans and the older type mustard gas?

RUTHERFORD: Yes, that's right as I understand it. But if you have any technical questions then Dr. Perry should answer those. But these are the three agents that are being brought back from Okinawa to the U.S.

● In the light of your confirmation has a definite plan been evolved to cope with such an emergency in British Columbia if in the remote chance such a situation should arise?

Rutherford: Yes. We will have a contingency plan. As I said we are just getting to examine the problem in detail. We will have a contingency plan to meet the risk should it actually develop.

● Dr. Perry, it has been suggested that the public will have 30 seconds in which to get a shot of atropine or other antidote in the case of a gas cloud. Will antidotes be stockpiled here as part of the emergency plan?

Perry: Well, the first statement that the public has only 30 seconds is completely erroneous. The only way that Canada could be affected is, in fact, quite impossible as we see it.

Let me put it this way. We have analysed the shipment, the precautions that are being taken and everything else connected with it. When chemical agents of this type are shipped they are always shipped under far more rigid safety precautions that are normal industrial chemicals, which are themselves highly toxic.

In the case of this planned shipment, extra safety precautions have been taken which render it virtually impossible, I would say absolutely impossible, for Canada to be in any danger at all.

We have analysed for example, that there might be gross leakage aboard the ship, we've analyzed it with regard to the possibility of munitions explosions on the ship and there is still no danger to Canada.

The only danger to Canada would be if many tons of this toxic material were put high up into the air.

This could only arise from an explosion within the ship equivalent to say, the detonation of 500 tons of TNT or probably more. How this could happen is inconceivable. The ship is not carrying explosives. If it's boilers burst there wouldn't be sufficient energy. However, for the contingency planning of the Emergency Measures Organization we have done our analyses assuming the worst possible conditions. The chances that these plans would be put into operation are probably less than one in a 100,000,000.

● This contingency must be a problem of considerable gravity, otherwise such an assembly as this wouldn't have taken place with such highly qualified technical people and officials of this rank. It isn't something to be passed off lightly in the light of this very gathering.

PERRY: On the contrary, I think the gathering here has been carried out because of the protests made by small groups. Unfortunately protest groups tend to protest from emotion rather than from an understanding of the problem or a knowledge of the true facts.

Further, I'm going to say that the people here base their views on the sensationalism of certain aspects of the problem that have been reported through the various media over the past many years. One of these, is that, a thimble-full of so called nerve gas could kill many thousands of people. This is absolutely ridiculous and it's completely untrue.

* * *

● If it looks as if the worst might come to the worst will we have stockpiles of the necessary antidotes here in Victoria?

Perry: Again, these are contingency plans because of the protests. The government agencies have said 'all right,' we will ensure that the people are safeguarded in the remotest possibility of an accident. As for the contingency plan we will do everything that is necessary.

Now with regard to stockpiling the materials in Victoria, this to my knowledge is not true. The Canadian forces probably have certain stocks of antidotes locally but to my knowledge there is no stockpiling.

● In view of your statement that the 30 second time limit is in error could you give me in layman's terms a rough idea of what the effects might be if such a catastrophe, however remote, did occur?

Perry: Well, I'd put it this way. This ship is going to sail south of the international border in the Strait of Juan de Fuca. If a cloud of gas develops from this hypothetical explosion which we cannot see happening, but if it did, and only if it did, that cloud would have to travel on the wind. If the wind is from east to west or if it has a northerly gradient in it there is no danger to Canada whatsoever.

If it had a southerly gradient, the gas cloud would have to travel over water for 12 to 15 miles. It would take time to do that. As I said, the only way the gas could get into the air is if the ship exploded catastrophically—the whole ship was destroyed. It's only under those circumstances that you could get the gas into the air. Now then, that has got to take time to get to Canada. We've estimated with all the distance and everything else, even from an excessive amount of this agent—I'm not talking about thimblefulls—but tens of tons of material, the danger to Canada is remote.

In any case certain measures can be taken to protect the public and make them completely safe.

● Have any negotiations taken place between the department of external affairs and the U.S. state department on this issue, Mr. Campbell?

CAMPBELL: As the minister indicated some time ago the government of Canada has made oral representations and written representations to the government of the United States. We have been in contact on a continuing basis.

We will now await the final decision regarding our representations to the United States pending the outcome of the litigation in the U.S. courts.

● Who initiated the dialogue? Public protest or Mitchell Sharp's concern for the safety of Canadians?

CAMPBELL: The dialogue was initiated because the danger, though extremely remote, is not entirely to be eliminated, and Canada was anxious to preserve its position in the international courts, in the event that any disaster did take place.

We also wanted to indicate our nonacquiesence to the shipments.

● Will any further representation be made pending the outcome of the cases the states of Washington and Oregon have taken to the courts?

Campbell: We feel we should wait for the outcome of the litigation.

● Is there a continuing liaison between the two governments on the gas shipment issue?

CAMPBELL: Yes. There is through the normal diplomatic channels.

● Mr. Roberts, would you care to summarize Washington's position in that your state is more directly involved in this problem and perhaps outline what measures you are considering?

Roberts: Our position has been clearly stated by Governor Dan Evans — he prefers that the gas should not pass through the state of Washington. However if the shipment is made, and at this time there is no guarantee that it will be, all necessary measures will be taken to protect the civilian population from any accident that might occur.

The governor deems the possibility of any accident which might endanger the civilian population as extremely remote.

● Will you be planning any special emergency measures?

Campbell: We are developing a contingency plan. If the courts decide over the opposition of Governor (Dan) Evans and Governor Tom McCall of Oregon to allow the shipments then every possible measure will be taken to protect the civilian population.

● What kind of plan is the British Columbia government setting up to cope with the possibility of a nerve gas emergency, Mr. Erb?

Erb: We have the nucleus of an emergency measures organization in our Civil Defence group. It will be expanded with the aid of the federal agencies represented here today. We might have to go on a 24-hour alert, but we estimate we would get four hours warning. Our advice is that the ship would pass close to our shores at around 4 a.m. All regular Civil Defence personnel would be on standby and there would be monitoring teams. Medical experts would also be alerted.

● Will Canadian forces staff be involved in the overall contingency plan?

Maloney: It is possible aircraft will keep the ship under observation and it is probable that the department of transport will also be involved in this area. We have had no military liaison directly with the United States. That end has all been handled through external affairs.

If it becomes necessary we will also have individual military experts at the disposal of the civilian authorities to assit in whatever way they can.

● In conclusion, Col. Rutherford, will this be the last meeting or do you plan a continuing communication?

Rutherford: We are now ready to get down to detail with a continuing series of talks probably in smaller groups. All meetings will be based here in Victoria.

We haven't come up with any answers today but we have brought the complexity of dealing with a possible major emergency. The job of getting down to the real details is now beginning. We don't feel there is a danger in this gas shipment but on the remote, remoote, remote chance that there could be, we would be remiss if we didn't take every precaution and that's exactly what we are doing.

"The only danger to Canada would be if many tons of this toxic material were put high up into the air. This could only arise from an explosion within the ship equivalent to . . . 500 tons of TNT . . . How this could happen is inconceivable . . . However, we have done our analyses assuming the worst possible conditions."

period with an increase of 43 cents an hour in each year for the mechanical unions and key classifications in the Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild, representing editorial and other non-mechanical workers.

For other classifications in the guild, the commissioners recommended that the increase from Nov. 1 would be either $10 or 9.5 per cent of the weekly wage rate at the time of the shutdown, whichever was the greater.

Negotiators had reached tentative agreement on wages before talks broke off last November. The company offered an 82-cent hourly wage increase over 25 months to all mechanical unions, which would have given printers and pressmen $5.34 an hour and mailers $5.05.

Current rate for senior reporters under the old contract was $177.50 weekly.

The proposed contract calls for five weeks of vacation after 20 years' service, four weeks after 13 years starting in November this year and four weeks after 12 years from November, 1971.

Pacific Press, which produces the Sun and Province with a combined circulation of about 400,000, suspended publication Feb. 15 after prolonged production slowdowns had drastically curtailed production.

Don't Get Sick!

B.C. has fewer nursing staff, per patient, than any other province in Canada.

B.C. also has the lowest percentage of government expenditure on hospitals of any province in Canada.

The Federal Government pays approximately half the cost of B.C.'s acute hospital care; the other half comes from 2% of the 5% Provincial Sales Tax.

Over the last eleven years, more than $100,000,000.00 was collected from the Sales Tax which was not used for hospital care.

Waiting lists for surgery and hospitalization continue to grow because of increases in population and continued shortages in facilities and staff — yet, the Provincial Minister of Health and Welfare has demanded hospitals cut back even further on services and staff.

The only way to end this crisis is to demand a Public Inquiry into hospital services. Remove the smokescreen of deception that surrounds hospital financing!

Don't leave it up to the politicians — Demand answers and action!
Hospital staff and patients are already suffering. In the meantime . . .

Electrical Workers

Lockout Set For Monday In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — About 300 local electrical contractors have agreed to lock out employees when contracts for 20,000 Montreal-area construction workers officially expire. This is expected today and the lockout would start Monday.

Jean Lebon, director of the 400-member Corporation of Master Electricians of Montreal, told a news conference Friday the lockout measure was agreed upon Thursday night.

Henri Gagnon, president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said the lockout would "increase the chaos without regulating anything."

About 20,000 construction workers have been on strike since last Monday, demanding that employers extend contracts which the workers say expired May 1.

The workers maintain they have been left without protection against contract infringements, but management claims the contracts are in effect until the Quebec Gazette, official government publication, publishes notice of their expiry — most likely today.

Lebon said most of the 300 contractors signed a pledge not to hire "any labor" until the lockout is declared over by the corporation.

The pledge adds that failure to respect the agreement would leave the contractor liable to a $500 fine.

Ireland Fears Arms Scandal

DUBLIN (AP) — Prime Minister Jack Lynch of the Irish Republic named a new cabinet Friday in an attempt to keep what the opposition called "the greatest scandal which has hit this state since we won independence" from breaking up his ruling Fianna Fail party.

The scandal, a suspected plot to smuggle arms into the country, allegedly involved two cabinet ministers whom Lynch fired Wednesday. Police and customs authorities continued investigations but did not announce progress. Neil Blaney, ousted agriculture minister, denied involvement.

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — At least 25 persons have died in a heat wave in the Indian states of Uttar Pradesh and Bihar, where daytime temperatures have reached 113 degrees.

Centenarian Dies

Farm Life 'Best Life'

When Richard Guest was 80 years old, he was still pitching sheaves of wheat on his Manitoba farm.

When he celebrated his 100th birthday at his Victoria retirement home, 1819 Lillian Road, he was looking forward to harvesting the vegetable garden he had put in that spring.

That was in July, 1965, and the spry centenarian gathered in his harvest on schedule.

Thursday, Guest died. He would have been 105 in two months.

Funeral will be held at 3 p.m. Monday in McCall Bros. floral chapel, Johnson and Vancouver Streets, with Rev. Dr. H. W. Kerley officiating. Burial will be in Royal Oak cemetery.

Born in Devonshire, England, Guest started to learn farming there when he was eight years old, and came to Ontario when he was 23. He returned to England for a while, then came back to Canada, this time to work on a farm in Holland, Man. He met and married his wife, Edith, there in 1897.

On his 99th birthday, Guest recalled that he used to court his wife in a horse-drawn sleigh in the wintertime and on their wedding day, the temperature dipped to 40 degrees below zero as they drove to the church through thick snow in a sleigh.

SURVIVORS

Mrs. Guest died in 1969.

On his 100th birthday, Guest attributed his longevity to living on a farm—"it's the best way to live," he said—not drinking and not smoking.

Mr. and Mrs. Guest came to Victoria in 1945.

Surviving are four daughters, Viola, Victoria; Mrs. Vera Tait, Miami, Fla.; Mrs. R. Page (Verna), Russell, Man.; Mrs. K. Harbur (Pearl), Seattle; five sons, Garnett of Winnipeg; Cecil of Vancouver, Gordon of Shawnigan Lake, Clarence and James of Victoria; 10 grandchildren and 25 great-grandchildren.

'Sick-Off' Plagues Railroad

VANCOUVER (CP)—A "sick-off" by CP Rail trainmen in the Vancouver area continued Friday for the fourth day, despite an injunction obtained by the company Thursday ordering the men back to work.

A CP Rail spokesman said at least 100 brakemen and conductors refused to report for work Friday on freight trains.

He said supervisory personnel continued to keep essential trains moving.

The dispute is over how and by whom brake tests should be conducted on the new unit trains hauling coal to the Roberts Bank port south of Vancouver.

Rioting Toll Now 22

BOMBAY (AP)—Police were placed on the alert throughout India's Maharashtra state Friday to deal with Moslem-Hindu rioting which has caused 22 deaths and injuries to 250 people.

In Bhiwandi, where the clashes erupted Thursday, hundreds of families, mostly Moslems, were without shelter after fire swept through their shanty town.

The fighting spread to villages surrounding Bhiwandi despite an overnight curfew. Police said more than 200 persons have been arrested.

Daughter, Three Boys

Father Held in Shooting

DETROIT (UPI) — The bodies of a runaway girl and of three teenage boys, all shot to death, were found Friday in a hippie-style apartment. The girl's distraught father was held by police.

Police said the father, railroad engineer Arville Garland, and his wife pounded on the door of the apartment at 2 a.m. demanding the return of their daughter, Sandra, 17.

Found later in the apartment just off the Wayne State University campus were the bodies of Sandra and three 18-year-old youths, Anthony Shears, Craig Walls and Scott Kabran.

Police said they had been shot to death by bullets from a .38 calibre revolver and a Luger. Police said it appeared the youths were shot first—one six times in the head—and the girl last.

The official police statement said the youths were shot in the head and Miss Garland had as many as six bullet wounds in the chest.

Garland, 45, and his wife, Martha, 42, went to a police station shortly after the shooting. Mrs. Garland was released after questioning but her husband was held.

Nicholson Will Start Yachts

Lieutenant-governor John Nicholson will officially start the third Victoria to Maui, Hawaii, international yacht race July 1, race officials said this week.

To date, 27 entries ranging from a 91-foot ketch to a 30-foot sloop have been received.

A Canadian Forces escort-communications vessel will be provided for the race, co-sponsored by the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club and Hawaii's Lahaina Yacht Club.

Entries will close June 1.

Is Tel Aviv Training Russian Pilots?

UN Spots MiGs with Israeli Insignia

By EARL FOELL
Colonist Los Angeles Times Service

UNITED NATIONS — Diplomats at the UN are puzzling over a report of three Russian-made MiG jets with Israeli insignia.

On May 7, UN observers on the Israeli-Syrian ceasefire sector reported sighting "three MiG-17 aircraft with Israel national markings" crossing the line from east to west.

★ ★ ★

UN headquarters here did a double take on receiving the cabled report and asked for a further check. The acting chief of staff of the UN observers replied the sighting was definitely confirmed as reported.

Queries to the Israeli mission in New York brought a quick response from the official military spokesmen in Israel. He denied that any such Russian-made jets were being flown with Israeli markings. The UN observers were, he said, "apparently mistaken."

★ ★ ★

A UN official involved in the matter, told of this reply, said: "The MiG-17 is an absolutely unmistakable aircraft. Israel's markings are also unmistakable. Don't think we weren't puzzled when this report originally came in. We queried it immediately . . . we were told that not just one but several UN OPs (observation posts) had sighted and identified the planes."

Israel is known to have at least two MiG-17s that were brought in by Syrian pilots more than two years ago. The pilots said they had thought they were landing in Damascus. They were subsequently exchanged for two Israeli passengers on a TWA airliner hijacked to Damascus last year.

Presumably Israel may have captured other MiGs, but there is no public record here of the Russian planes being flown with Israeli insignia.

The discrepancy between the UN report and the Israeli military spokesman's denial baffles observers here. Lacking an answer, the have turned to jokes:

● "The Israelis are training Russian pilots."

● "Defecting Syrian pilots are taking no chances of being shot down now. They are painting Israeli markings on their planes before they leave."

● "The Israelis are so eager for more planes they aren't shooting at MiGs anymore; just spray-painting Stars of David on them."

Mideast Action Up

From UPI

Gunfire from Lebanon hit two Israeli army patrols Friday and six of the Israeli soldiers were wounded, a Tel Aviv military spokesman said. To the west Israeli warplanes blasted Egyptian targets in the southern sector of the Suez Canal.

The scattered new action came as Egypt's new national guidance minister, quoted in an interview with a Hungarian publication, said the Middle East crisis "contains the danger" of nuclear war between the super powers.

Mohamed Hassanein Heikal was quoted by the Hungarian magazine Magyarorskzag as blaming the crisis on the United States' "unlimited political support and weapons of mass destruction" for Israel.

"There is no sane person who would take the responsibility for an atomic war," Heikal was quoted as saying. "But the further growth of the Mideast crisis does contain that danger. It is difficult to say how real the danger is and how much it is exaggerated."

An Israeli military spokesman in Tel Aviv said four Israeli Soldiers were wounded near Metulla in Upper Galilee when their patrol was fired on from across the Lebanese border Friday morning.

On Friday afternoon, a second Israeli patrol was fired on in the Biranit region of Western Galilee, and two more Israeli soldiers were wounded, the spokesman said.

Student Employment: National Talks Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — The government should convene a national conference of students, employers and provincial and municipal governments to thrash out the problem of student employment, Louis Comeau (PC — South Western Nova) told the Commons Friday.

★ ★ ★

He said the conference could draft plans to meet immediate problems and consider long-term goals.

Comeau was speaking in debate on a Conservative motion by Steve Paproski (Edmonton Centre) calling on the government to take immediate steps to help student find employment. Under House rules the motion does not come to a vote.

The government should accept ultimate responsibility for employment of young people, Comeau said.

★ ★ ★

The national conference would help focus attention on how students should be employed. It might be better to assign young people to pollution abatement programs rather than to throw them into competition with the unemployed for restaurant and mine jobs.

Comeau said the conference could renew confidence of students in the government.

Earlier, Paproski proposed a trimester system to ease the annual burden students put on the summer employment market.

★ ★ ★

He said 640,000 students will be plunging into the labor force this summer with national unemployment at 6.5 per cent.

A three-term system — in which university would open year round — would distribute the flow of students into the labor market more evenly, he said.

Panther Raid

Illinois Seeks to Drop Murder Attempt Case

CHICAGO (UPI) — The state's attorney's office Friday asked that attempted murder charges be dropped against seven persons accused of starting a gunfight in which police killed two Illinois Black Panther party leaders.

Assistant State's Attorney Nicholas Motherway said in asking Criminal Court Judge Saul Epton to dismiss the charges that on the basis of recent ballistics tests it could not be proved that occupants of the apartment fired the first shot.

★ ★ ★

Illinois Panther leader Fred Hampton, 21, and Mark Clark, 22, a party official from Peoria, were killed in a 5 a.m. raid on a west side apartment Dec. 4 by 14 state's attorney's investigators and police.

Four of the seven other occupants of the apartment were wounded in 15 minutes of shooting that police said began when someone fired a shotgun blast through the front door at the raiding party.

A federal grand jury has been investigating the shootings for several months. A blue ribbon coroner's jury returned a verdict of "justifiable homicide" in the case in January.

★ ★ ★

In a news release, State's Attorney Edward Hanrahan said the seven had been indicted "largely" on evidence indicating two expended shotgun shells found in the living room had been fired from a weapon carried by Brenda Harris, 19.

More inclusive, ballistic tests completed April 29, Hanrahan said, showed "that the expended shells in question did not come from the Brenda Harris weapons."

40 Panthers Guilty Out of 230 Arrests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Police have made more than 230 arrests of Black Panther party members in the last year on charges ranging from jaywalking to murder, a United States-wide survey shows.

These arrests have resulted in about 40 convictions, the Associated Press survey also disclosed. In more than 60 cases, the defendants were acquitted or the charges were dropped. The rest of the cases is pending.

The AP survey included more than a dozen cities where Panthers have been active. The Panthers say the arrest total is much higher than 230. In the last eight months of 1969 alone, they say there were 402 arrests of Panthers.

Fists Move Faster Than New York Trade

NEW YORK (AP) — Anti-war demonstrations and fist fights on Wall Street were the real excitement as the stock market drifted lower in dull trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 5.34 to 717.73. Earlier in the afternoon, it had been down close to 7.

Volume was 6,930,000, lowest for the year.

During much of the afternoon, traders and stock exchange workers looked out of office windows as student anti-war protesters were confronted by helmeted construction workers.

Scuffling broke out, and at least 40 persons were treated for minor injuries at a make-shift first-aid station.

Airlines and steels were up, while motors, rubber issues, mail order-retail, aircraft, utilities and chemicals were off. Rails, oils, metals and electronics were mixed.

Closing prices included volume-leader Mcdonald, off 1⅛ to 34⅛; Telex, off ⅛ to 19¼; Memorex, up 2⅛ to 80¾; Xerox, off 1⅛ to 82¾; and IBM, up ¾ to 290½.

Rally Peters Out

TORONTO — Hopes that easing of margin requirments would restore investors interest petered out after two days of gains. The drop was not due to deterioration in economic news but in line with concern in the U.S. over Cambodia and student unrest.

Most of the leading traders were lower Imperial Oil, Labatt, Falconbridge, International Nickel, Canada and Dominion Sugar, MacMillan, CPR and Walker lost up to a point.

Banks, steels, beverages, oils refiners food processors and pipelines were groups most hit. Mines and oils were mixed. Once again it was a day of listless low volume trading.

Industrials Lose

VANCOUVER — Prices were lower on a fairly wide front although volume was again low.

In the more active mines Brenmac was up .02 at .98 while Early Bird was off .03 at .91.

Brenda, Brameda, Silver Standard, Dynasty, and Stall Lake were weak spots.

Micrographics dropped .15 to .85 among industrials while Crestwood, EDP, Hys, and Neonex were also lower. B.C. Turf was active at 2.75.

Brascan Goes Ahead

MONTREAL (CP) — A two-day rally, sparked by a reduction in margin requirements was snapped as the market moved broadly lower.

Brascan, which plans to buy a 15-per-cent equity interest in ELF Oil, was up ⅜ to 14⅞.

IOS Ltd, eased 50 cents to 4.75; Consolidated Bathurst fell 1 to 18 and Power Corp. was off ¼ to 7⅛.

Placer Development dipped 3⅞ to 34⅝, Texaco Canada ⅝ to 21⅛ and Imperial Oil ⅝ to 17⅞. Dome Petroleum climbed 1⅜ to 48⅛.

BATTLING NATURE in temperatures that sometimes slipped to 60 below, crew members of Imperial Oil Enterprises' Rig 4 drilled more than mile deep last December at Atkinson Point on edge of Arctic Ocean, and in January oil flowed to surface. It was first find of oil in Canadian Arctic.—(CP)

Grain Program Held

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons was told Friday that Canada has not promised any new grain production cuts to other grain-exporting countries.

Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, said Canada had merely outlined progress in its current grains reduction policy to a meeting of exporting countries held in Ottawa Monday and Tuesday.

Countries which have not yet announced programs for reduction of grain productions did outline such plans, but the meeting was not "for giving committments," he said.

Canada Leads Oil, Gas Hunt

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Canada is one of the hottest oil and gas exploratory areas in the world, according to the Financial Post Survey of Oils for 1970.

Search has been accelerated in several spots — the Arctic region, the Alberta foothills and the coast off the Maritimes.

Most of the world's major oil companies are taking part in a search that will be the most expensive ee conducted in Canada.

WAITING MARKET

The impetus is provided by the tremendous waiting market for Canada's natural gas in the U.S. and the higher well-head prices now obtainable.

So far as oil is concerned, the forced cutback of Canadian crude into the U.S. Midwest is viewed as no more than a short-term measure, since U.S. refiners are pressing strongly for much greater access to the attr actively-priced Canadian crude.

The Financial Post says ultimately there will be an energy pact with the U.S. that will open the market more widely to Canadian oil.

□

TWO-DOLLAR OFFER

What is the value of the stock of IOS Ltd., the international mutual fund-operating company, now said to be in financial difficulties because of over-expenditures and a falling market?

John King, a Denver financier, is willing to pay $2 a share for sufficient shares to give him control.

The market rates the stock at $4.80.

□

MIXED RESULTS

Although the railway operations of CPR produced lower earnings in the first quarter of 1970, the company's principal subsidiary, Canadian Pacific Investments, showed a healthy increase.

Railway earnings at $7,300,000 were down $1,200,000 from the first quarter of 1969.

On the other hand, CPI consolidated net income of $12,500,000 was an increase of $2,500,000 over the same 1969 quarter.

REAL ESTATE

CPI said its income from timberlands and real estate was higher while earnings from oil, gas, and other minerals and from hotels and restaurants were lower.

Net earnings of Cominco, another subsidiary, were up substantially because of higher metals prices, but CP Air earnings were down by $1,500,000, largely because of higher expenses.

□

SULPHUR PRICE CUT

Sulphur prices dropped from $30 to $15 a long ton in 1969 and thus caused a drop in net earnings of Jefferson Lake Petrochemicals of Canada Ltd. to $2,819,252 (1.05 a share) from $4,175,585 ($1.56) in 1968.

□

MILLS TO EXPAND

An expansion of facilities at two of its Interior sawmills is announced by Boundary Sawmills Ltd. of Penticton, a subsidiary of Pope and Talbot Inc. of Portland, Ore.

The program will double the production of the mills at Midway and Grand Forks and will in addition obviate sawmill waste by more efficient cutting methods.

EXTRA MEN

About 120 extra workers will be employed and a daily rail service into the Boundary area will be necessary to handle the 35 carloads of timber products from the expanded mills.

Spur to the capital expenditure was said to be the federal government's area incentive program.

□

INCREASED EARNINGS

Net earnings of B.C. Telephone in the first quarter were $4,270,000 ($1.10 a share) compared with $3,785,000 ($1.04) in the corresponding period of 1969.

Amazing New SWIMMING AID

The whole family can learn to swim . . . quickly easily. Make this year the year you or your family really enjoy this wonderful sport. Don't miss out on the summer fun, join the swim set! BEMA SWIM WINGS are the ultimate invention in swimming aids ever developed and have been used and tested by the foremost swimming coaches of Europe and North America. Here are some Canadian comments:
• YM-YWCA, London, Ontario. " . . . we are very impressed with the BEMA SWIM WINGS and mothers of our Tiny Tots class are also."
• Mrs. J. Prosser, Toronto, Ontario. "BEMA SWIM WINGS are absolutely fantastic and have really worked wonders for my 2 year old daughter."
• YMCA, Vancouver, B.C. "The BEMA SWIM WINGS we ordered from you were very popular with our members and we would like to place another order for 100 pair."
• Dr. P. P. Hosch, London, Ontario. " . . . a very practical and useful device . . . can be used for teaching swimming to the very young as well as the elderly."
BEMA SWIM WINGS are a GOLD MEDAL WINNER at the NEW YORK INVENTORS Exhibition—Millions of pairs have been sold around the world.
CAN BE USED BY THE WHOLE FAMILY
Yes, BEMA SWIM WINGS are available in all sizes: infants to age 6, size 0; ages 7-12, size 1; age 13 and up, size 2.
BEMA SWIM WINGS are designed with safety in mind. They have a safety valve which will stop rapid air expulsion if valve cap is accidentally removed. Also, only BEMA SWIM WINGS feature the exclusive flat inner part which does not hinder the circulation and allows free arm movement.
HOW DO THE INCREDIBLE BEMA WORK?
Simply place over upper arms and inflate. The snug fit around any arm is assured by flat, patented inner part — complete freedom of movement assured. Illustrated instructions are enclosed with each pair of BEMA SWIM WINGS. We are sure that you will gain confidence after only a few trials and be able to swim in a few weeks as have so many adults and children. Be sure to keep the BEMA SWIM WINGS on your childrens' arms when near the water.
EVERY PERSON WHO CAN WALK WILL BE ABLE TO SWIM WITH BEMA.
Conventional swimming aids are now being rapidly replaced by BEMA SWIM WINGS at most advanced institutions - they're now used by the Canadian Armed Forces, YM-YWCAs, schools and swim clubs coast to coast.
Fill in the coupon now. Money back guarantee
NO RISK - you have to be completely satisfied or your money gladly refunded within ten days.
We firmly believe that the high death toll due to swimming accidents each year could be greatly reduced if more CANADIANS would learn to swim with BEMA SWIM WINGS under supervision. DO NOT endanger the life of your children to the inferior copies of BEMA SWIM WINGS which have recently appeared on the market - ONLY BEMA SWIM WINGS ARE THE ORIGINAL ONES.

The Great Escape to "108"

Outside the city's limits there's a land that longs to know you. A land as wide as a smile, with rolling hills, big sky and crystal waters. At "108" Mile Ranch in Cariboo country we've carved a wilderness empire — carefully. No litter, no fumes — but space for people with room to breathe and be free. Portions of this good land are available now — and investment for the young and fulfillment for the mature. Come to the "108" — it's great. We want to share it with you.

The "108" Ranch. Here are forty square miles of unending beauty for your investment. You will live on land that is a declared game preserve, as well as a working cattle spread. Here, the deer are dappled and fish strike hard and true. Developed by Block Bros. in the heart of famous Cariboo country, the "108" Ranch is a rare expression of corporate care and concern for the great ways of the West.

By Car, Coach, Rail and Air. Set away where the land is clear and clean, "108" Ranch is easily reached. There is a private, paved 5000 foot landing strip with full facilities for the vacationer or weekend flier. Highway 97 leads straight through the Cariboo to the Ranch. By rail, the Pacific Great Eastern arrows right to the heart of this fresh frontier land.

Services. The cabin you build at "108" is designed as a natural compliment to the lot you like. Soaring A-frame or bungalow — large or compact as you wish — each is fully serviced with water and electricity. Access roads are hidden in the trees. Properties front a lake (though never touching, since waterfront is for all), or crown a hill. Trees and space, light and air intervene between every structure. You cannot call a neighbour — it's too far. But you can call on them.

Every Beach, Every Trail. At "108" you will find a perfectly rolled 7000 yard PGA golf course, trails to tempt exploring feet, beaches gently kissed by the immaculate waters of a dozen lakes. Every beach, every trail, every blade of grass, each wild-reaching pine are yours — 26,000 acres of the biggest land a man can handle. Yes, with your investment, there is a lot to like at "108".

Sun and Snowmobiles. The patter and hiss of skis and skates, the thrilling rush over valley and crest as your snowmobile flies through unsooted snow. At "108" all the wonders of a winter paradise complement the equal splendor of the ranch in summer, spring and fall. Turn to the welcome warmth of a glistening spring; savour the long, lazy heat of a spotless summer day. These are yours to treasure year by year when you join us at "108". Block Bros. have touched with love the hand of Nature and left her whole.

"108" Mile Ranch offers award winning cabin designs constructed on site at controlled cost.

Orr Gets Hart and Norris Trophies Others Go to Tony Esposito, Goyette

Orr and two latest trophies

BOSTON (CP) — Bobby Orr collected an armful of National Hockey League silverware Friday but the Boston Bruins' superstar defenceman still isn't satisfied.

"Now, all I want is the Stanley Cup," Orr said after he was presented with the Hart, James Norris and Art Ross trophies.

And the Stanley Cup could belong to Orr and his mates as early as Sunday afternoon when they take their 3-0 lead into the fourth game of the best-of-seven final against St. Louis Blues.

Other award winners Friday were goalie Tony Esposito of Chicago Black Hawks, who took the Calder as the outstanding rookie of the year; and Blues' centre Phil Goyette who won the Lady Byng trophy.

The Hart, which only four other defencemen have ever won, goes to the player "adjudged to be most valuable to his team." The Norris, which Orr won for a third successive season, goes to the best defenceman in the NHL.

The Art Ross recognizes his leading-scoring total of 120 points.

FIRST FOR GOYETTE

The Lady Byng, the first individual award Goyette has won in his 14-season NHL career, goes to the player "adjudged to have exhibited the best type of sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct, combined with a high standard of playing ability."

Esposito also earned the Vezina Trophy, for the league's top goaltender in a season when he posted a 2.17-goals-against average and had a record 15 shutouts in 93 games played.

Asked whether he was disappointed in not winning the Hart, Esposito said:

"Heck, no. It's an honor just to be the runner-up to a guy like Bobby Orr."

The voting, conducted among members of the NHL Writers' Association in the 12 league cities, was closest on the Hart than on any of the other three trophies.

With points awarded on a 5-3-1 basis, Orr polled 156 out of a possible 180 compared to Esposito's 110 points. St. Louis centre Red Berenson was third with 12 points.

Previous defencemen who won the Hart were Babe Siebert of Montreal Canadiens, 1937, Eddie Shore of the Bruins who won it four times, Tommy Anderson of the old New York Americans in 1942 and Babe Pratt of Toronto Maple Leafs, 1944.

UNANIMOUS FOR ORR

Orr was unanimous choice for the Norris trophy, with the maximum 180 points, 122 more than runner-up Brad Park of New York Rangers. Carl Brewer of Detroit Red Wings was third with 22 points.

Orr is the first defenceman ever to win the Ross Trophy. His 33 goals and 120 points set a season record for defenceman and his 87 assists set a new league mark for any player. He is also only the second player ever to win three awards in one season.

Stan Mikita of Chicago twice won the Ross, Hart and Byng trophies in the same year—1966-67 and 1967-68.

Esposito was an almost-unanimous choice for the Calder, with 178 points out of a possible 180. Right winger Bill Fairbairn of New York Rangers was runner-up with 70 points, followed by Chicago defenceman Keith Magnusson with 50.

Goyette, who just completed his best NHL season ever with 29 goals, 49 assists and 16 minutes in penalties, polled 132 points in the Lady Byng voting. Johnny Bucyk of the Bruins was second with 64 points followed by Dave Keon of Toronto Maple Leafs with 49. Keon has won the award twice. Bobby Hull of Chicago was fourth with 44.

Orr, only 22 years old but already acclaimed as one of the greatest players ever in the NHL, now has collected $10,750 this season in award money.

He earns $2,000 for the Ross, $1,500 for each of the Hart and Norris, $1,250 as his share of the Bruins' second-place finish money, $2,250 for Bruins winning their quarter-final series with New York, and $2,250 for their semi-final victory over Chicago.

He also received $500 as his share in the Eastern Division's 4-1 victory over the West in the 1969-70 All-Star game.

He could earn another $3,000 as his share of a Bruins victory in the Stanley Cup final against St. Louis—$1,500 if the Bruins should lose.

Esposito takes home $9,750, along with the $500 he won in the All-Star game, and Goyette earns $8,500 to add to his $250 as a West Division All-Star.

Goyette will add either the winners' or losers' share in the Stanley Cup final.

The runners-up in each of the individual awards receive $750.

Six NHL Clubs Will Play In Substitute Tournament

WINNIPEG — The Manitoba Centennial Corporation said Friday that six National Hockey League clubs had agreed to take part in a centennial hockey series in Winnipeg during the latter part of September.

Completion of arrangements ended a long search for a hockey event to replace the world hockey tournament, which was to have been shared by Montreal and Winnipeg this year until the withdrawal of the Canadian national team shifted the scene of action to Stockholm.

Corporation chairman Maitland Steinkopf said at a news conference that teams agreeing to participate are Montreal Canadiens, Toronto Maple Leafs, Chicago Black Hawks, St. Louis Blues, Minnesota North Stars and Vancouver-Canucks, who will be a new NHL entry for next season.

Steinkopf said the teams agreed to play at least one game in the series and will be paid an unspecified amount for appearing. The series will involve at least one game a day for a 10-day period.

Original plans for a centennial tournament were scrapped because several of the teams would not agree to participate in a tournament in which a winner was to be declared.

The North Stars have already announced they will hold their training camp here.

Reds Lead Way to Record But Pitchers Waste Power

Cincinnati Reds have had much better pitching this season than had been expected but there are reminders of how it used to be — days when even their best power-hitting isn't enough to make it up when the pitching sours.

The runaway leaders in the Western Division hit five home runs Friday to lead National League clubs to a record total of 30 in one day. But they had their win streak snapped at eight games when Chicago Cubs pounded out 15 hits, four of them home runs, in a 10-7 victory.

The old mark for home run in one day was 28 in eight games on July 8, 1962. There were only seven games yesterday.

The output matched the American and major league record set June 10, 1962 and tied June 14, 1964, both times in 10 games.

Six-game winner Jim Merritt was the victim as the Cubs, Eastern Division-leaders, stretched their margin to two and a half games with their first win in seven games.

Cincinnati has allowed more than four runs only seven times in 29 games and has played 16 games in which fewer than three runs were permitted.

ANSWERING BARRAGE

Billy Williams hit his ninth and 10th homers, driving in four runs as six of the first seven Cub runs came on homers.

Williams hit a three-run drive in the third inning after J. C. Martin sparked the rally, Jim Hickman added a leadoff homer in the two-run fourth inning and Williams led off the four-run fifth inning which gave Cubs a 10-2 lead with his second homer.

Rookie Hal McRae and Tony Perez, moving into a tie for the major-league lead at 12, both hit two home runs for Cincinnati and Johnny Bench hit the other.

HANK REACHES 12

Hank Aaron's 12th homer helped Atlanta to a comeback 8-7 v-i-c-to-ry- over St. Louis Cardinals, bringing the runner-up Braves to within five games of the Reds.

Aaron's blow, a three-run shot in the sixth inning, tied the game at 7-7 and Hal King won it with a home run in the seventh.

San Diego Padres and Montreal Expos added eight home runs to the total as they split a doubleheader, San Diego taking the opener, 11-1, with each team hitting one home run and then losing the second game, 6-7, in 11 innings despite a 4-2 edge in homers.

Two home runs by Willie Mays and an inside-the park homer by Bobby Bonds led San Francisco Giants to a 7-1 victory over New York Mets. Miguel Puente won his first major league game, losing his shutout to Ken Boswell's eighth-inning homer.

Los Angeles Dodgers had only one home run to three for Philadelphia Phillies but won a 12-inning battle, 8-4, on a run-scoring double by Wes Parker and three-run homer by Bill Sudakis, all with two out.

American League teams managed only 12 home runs in five games.

Boog Powell's eighth home run in 14 games, a three-run blow in the first inning, got Baltimore Orioles started on the way to a 6-1 victory over Chicago White Sox.

The win boosted Orioles' lead in the Eastern Division to three and a half games over Detroit Tigers who hit the only home runs in the game but lost to Kansas City Royals, 9-3.

Appreciation Match Set This Afternoon

Victoria O'Keefes of the Pacific Coast Soccer League meet the Victoria District League All-Stars today at 2 p.m. at Royal Athletic Park in the "Wilf Sadler Appreciation Day" match.

Sadler, a long-time amateur sport booster, is currently associated with soccer at three levels — juvenile, senior and PCSL.

All juvenile players will be admitted free of charge to the match courtesy of the Evening Optimist Club.

University of Victoria Vikings, Gorge Mohsons and Victoria West each placed four players on the all-star squad.

Dave Achurch, Joe Milligan, Russ Ball and Greg Pearson present Vikings; Graham Lee, Curt Clarke, Bill Abbott and Rick Lamoureux represent Gorge and Bill Duckworth, Don McIntosh, Glen Robinson and George Paul are from Wests.

Oak Bay is represented by George Pakos and Gerry Horne while Jack Kuydahoven and Jan Bentley were chosen from Hourigans. Completing the 18-member squad are Gerry Lister of Tally-Ho and Rudi Kuebler of Cosmopolitan Royals.

Mike Watson came within one out of a no-hitter Friday as Labatts blanked Century Inn, 4-0, in a Stuffy McGinnis Softball League game at Heywood Avenue Park.

At William Head, Steelers handed winless Sooke Hotel its third loss by scoring an 11-3 victory. Winning-pitcher Dennis Paquette struck out nine and allowed only three hits.

Watson had his hopes shattered when pitcher Mike Cox singled clearly after Flay Hall and Jack White were retired to open the seventh inning.

HELP GIVEN

Labatts scored three unearned runs, cashing in on a pair of Century errors.

Rod Leason and Len Larson led the Steelers' attack with two hits each and scoring three runs apiece.

Joe Medwedrich smashed a home run for Sooke Hotel in the sixth inning.

Visiting Drivers To Test Kershaw

The race for top honors tonight at Western Speedway is expected to be between Washington State drivers Harry Jefferson and Fred Hay and Victoria's Gary Kershaw.

Time trials get underway at 7:30 p.m. in the second appearance of National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing super-stocks here this season.

FIRST TIME HERE

Jefferson, the NASCAR northwest point champion and rookie of the year in 1969, is making his first appearance at Western. He won the Tri-City and Evergreen Speedway points' championships last year.

Jefferson currently holds a 50-point lead over Hay in the district standings.

Hay finished second to Kershaw in the 50-lap main event here two weeks ago.

Kershaw, a part-time operator on the circuit so far, won the Apple Cup race earlier this year and set the super-stock record of 18 seconds flat at Western in the previous meet.

The track is putting up a bonus of $100 to drivers who establish new records tonight.

Another local driver with a good chance in the 65-lap main event is Rick O'Dell, who led the main event two weeks ago until he was involved in an accident on the 30th lap.

Salmonbellies Still Perfect

NEW WESTMINSTER — New Westminster Salmonbellies, who have never lost a Sid Greenwood Memorial Lacrosse Tournament game, captured the title for the third straight year Friday by defeating Vancouver Burrards, 12-10.

Paul Parnell and Wayne Goss each had three goals and two assists for New Westminster, which won all three of its games in the round-robin Western Lacrosse Association tournament.

Gord Frederickson scored four goals for Vancouver.

On Waivers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Veteran infielder Rich Rollins has been placed on waivers by Milwaukee Brewers, who recalled pitcher Skip Lockwood from Portland of the Pacific Coast League.

Junior Canadiens Ease to 2-0 Edge

MONTREAL — Weyburn Red Wings contained Gilbert Perreault for the second straight game but Montreal Canadiens managed a 6-2 victory Friday to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series for the Canadian junior hockey Championship.

Perreault, expected to be the first player picked in the National League draft, did not manage a point. He was held to two assists in Montreal's 9-4 victory Wednesday in the Memorial Cup opener.

Robert Guindon scored two goals for the eastern champions. Serge Lajeunesse, Robert Lalonde, Norman Gratton and Richard Lemieux scored the other goals.

Vic Vanasky and Garnett Currie scored for the Saskatchewan club.

Third game will be Sunday in Montreal.

Interest Booms In Relay Event

There has been an increase of five schools and 250 competitors for the second annual All-Schools Relays which will be held Monday and Tuesday at Centennial Stadium.

The meet, started by Esquimalt High School last year, has attracted 35 schools (12 elementary, 14 junior high and nine senior high) and 950 competitors. It features mixed relays in addition of boys' and girls' events.

Mt. Douglas is the defending girls' and over-all champion in the senior division with Claremont defending boys' honors.

Gordon Head won the junior high school boys' and aggregate titles last year and Oak Bay took the girls' championship.

Lake Hill won the elementary boys' and aggregate championships while Shelbourne and McTavish shared girls' honors.

Heats will be held Monday from 5 to 9 p.m. with finals Tuesday from 6 to 8:30 p.m. Admission is 25c for adults, 10c for students and children.

Crampton

Crampton Takes One-Stroke Lead
Bies Shoots 67, Second with 138

HOUSTON (AP) — Australian Bruce Crampton fired a three-under-par 68 Friday and moved into the second round lead in the $115,000 Houston Champions International Invitational Golf Tournament while weary Ben Hogan stumbled back into the pack.

The fabled Hogan, a 56-year-old master playing in his first tournament in almost three years, found the water to go two over par on the eighth hole and limped in with a 75.

That gave him a 36-hole total of 146, nine behind Crampton's leading 137.

"I'm pretty tired," said Hogan, limping badly on an injured left knee.

Don Bies, a former club pro from Seattle, Wash., birdied three of the last four holes for a sparkling 67 and second place at 138.

Houston-native Fred Marti, a non-winner in six years on the tour, also had a 67 and vaulted into third place at 139. Veteran Gene Littler took his second-consecutive 70 for 140.

Deane Beman, the first-round leader, was two over on the 16th hole, missing the green and three-putting, and slipped to a 73 for 141. He was tied with Gibby Gilbert, who had a 72.

South African Gary Player and leading money-winner Lee Trevino, the pre-tourney favorites for the $23,000 first prize, failed to muster a charge. Player had his second-consecutive 72 and Trevino blew to a 75 for 145.

Al Balding of Toronto shot a 75 Friday for a two-round total of 150 and made the 36-hole cutoff for the final two rounds. George Knudson of Toronto shot a 78 for a 153 total and missed the cutoff.

B.C. Olympic Group Has High Hopes

AMSTERDAM (CP) — British Columbia representatives seeking to have the 1976 Olympic Winter Games assigned to Garibaldi Park voiced optimism Friday about their chances.

"If Moscow gets the 1976 Summer Games, then I think we are 95 per cent certain to get the winter ones," said Sid Young, president of the Garibaldi organizing committee.

The B.C. application has been endorsed by a number of separate winter sports federations.

The site, in Garibaldi Park about 70 miles north of Vancouver, has the advantage of providing facilities for all the sports within a small area, something which has been lacking in several recent Winter Olympics.

Garibaldi's competition for the Winter Games comes from Denver, Colo., Tampere, Finland and Sion, Switzerland.

Montreal, Los Angeles and Moscow are vying for the 1976 Summer Games.

The International Olympic Committee is to decide on the 1976 sites Tuesday night. Meanwhile vigorous lobbying has been going on here among the 71 IOC members.

Canada has never yet been host to Olympic Games, despite numerous applications.

"Banff had a lot of sympathy in their bids," Young recalled. "Three times they tried. Three times they failed."

He pointed to the endorsements Garibaldi has received.

"Ballots were taken by four international federations—ice hockey, Nordic skiing, luge and biathlon—and the votes showed in our favor," said Young.

Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau, spearheading his city's bid for the Summer Games of 1976, said he was hopeful, "but it will be tougher this time."

"Many people think Moscow is the favorite," said Drapeau. "I feel that the IOC, to prove it is not a political movement, might award the Games to Moscow and in doing so would make the IOC a political movement."

In the competition for the Winter Games, Denver's hopes took a knock Friday when Gov. John Love of Colorado was called home by U.S. President Nixon to be chairman of a special meeting of state governors Monday.

Mayor William H. McNichols of Denver was cautiously optimistic.

"A lot will depend on how the Summer Games go," he said. "If Los Angeles gets the Summer Games, then we won't have a prayer."

LONG SHOT

Tampere is a long shot, but there is a lot of natural sympathy for a small country such as Finland with limited funds.

Mrs. Innet Ehrnrooth of the Finnish delegation pointed out a major Finnish disadvantage:

"The fact that Alpine skiing will have to be held in Lapland (more than 800 miles from Tampere) may be against us. But all the countries have weaknesses."

Philippe Henchez, president of the Sion organizing committee, said his Swiss city got into the act last April, rather late.

"We seem to be behind, but we can quickly catch up," said Henchez. "Everything will be very close together at Sion, almost within walking distance."

He claimed the altitude for Nordic ski events is favorable and that experts support him in this.

A major Swiss disadvantage is that the country has already had the Winter Games twice—in 1928 and 1948.

Knickerbockers Finally Make It
Frazier Leads Way to First Title

NEW YORK (AP) —Pain-racked Willis Reed gave New York some muscle and a lot of inspiration and cat-quick Walt Frazier provided everything else as the Knickerbockers swamped Los Angeles Lakers 113-99 Friday night and won their first National Basketball Association title after 24 frustrating years.

After winning their first Eastern Division title in 16 years and then beating first Baltimore and then Milwaukee to reach the playoff finals for the first time in 17 seasons, the Knicks entered this best-of-seven series as the favorite.

Reed, the league's most valuable player, suffered a severely bruised hip in the fifth game. He responded to a standing ovation when he limped on to the floor by hitting the first basket. After Wilt Chamberlain gave the Lakers their only tie, Reed hit again in a spurt of seven straight points and the Knicks were on their way.

With the 240 pound centre muscling the seven-foot-two Chamberlain away from the basket, Frazier then led the Knicks to a 38-24 first quarter lead that stretched to 69-42 at the half. The 6-4 all-pro guard hit 23 points, added nine assists and four rebounds by halftime.

Frazier finished with 36 points, while Reed scored only those four points before leaving midway through the third quarter. West, who managed only 13 points in the decisive first half, finished with 28 while Chamberlain, a 45-point performer in Los Angeles' sixth-game victory when Reed didn't play, finished with 21.

The victory added $48,000 to New York's kitty, giving the Knicks a total of $118,000. Los Angeles got the $32,000 loser's share for an $87,000 total.

Meet Dominated By Lindsay Jack

Lindsay Jack won five events and set two of the nine records established Friday to lead Nelson House to the aggregate and girls' championships in the Mt. Douglas inter-house track and field meet at Centennial Stadium.

RECORD LEAPS

Miss Jack, who won the 100 and 220-yard sprints and 80-metre hurdle event, established records of 17 feet, five and a half inches in the long jump and five feet, two inches in the high jump.

Two other records fell in the girls' division with Linda May winning the javelin with a throw of 113 feet and Renate Krueger, who also won the 440-yard run, taking the discus with a toss of 113 feet, one and a half inches.

Murray Keating set two records in the boys' events, winning the hammer throw with an effort of 150 feet, two inches and taking the discus with a toss of 134 feet, four inches.

Ian Delisle, who also won the 400-metre run, set a record of two minutes, 5.6 seconds in the 800 metres.

Wally Thorne won the mile in a record four minutes, 23.1 seconds and Rob Harlan established a record of 22.6 seconds for the 220-yard dash.

Other winners in the girls' division were Rhonda Duncan (880 yards) and Val McLeod (shot put).

FOUR-TIME WINNER

Doug Temple won four events, leading Douglas House to the boy's championship. He won the 110-metre hurdles, shot put, triple jump and long jump.

Other winning boys were Sid Chow (100 yards), Dan Van Stolk (javelin), John Jenner (high jump), Chris Riddell (pole vault) and Jim Hunter (300-metre hurdles).

Nelson, gaining 81 points in girls' competition, finished with 115 points. Skeena finished second with 81 points followed by Douglas, 73, and Fraser, 47.

Saw Missed Signing Hand

VANCOUVER (CP) — Norm Rauhaus, former end and defensive back with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, said Thursday he has signed as assistant football coach at University of British Columbia minus three fingers.

"I was working on a power saw at work last Monday when my left hand slipped and the saw sliced through three fingers," said Rauhaus.

Rauhaus, who played 12 seasons with the Winnipeg club before retiring in 1967, will work under head-coach Frank Gnup.

Hope Remains

LONDON (AP) — Britain stayed alive in Davis Cup tennis Friday when Geral Battrick and Peter Curtis won the doubles match against Austria.

The Austrians won the first two singles matches, defeating Battrick and John Clifton.

Hull Intends To Carry On For New Club

PICTON, Ont. (CP) — Bobby Hull, star left winger for Cicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, says "I'll play hockey as long as I can and it doesn't much matter where."

Hull, at his father's farm near here, was commenting on reports that he might be traded by the Hawks.

"After 13 years, if they want to jack me around like this, it's their prerogative," he said.

Trade talk began after Boston Bruins dumped Chicago in four straight games in the Stanley Cup semi-finals.

Spirited Sale Attracts Gamblers

LOS ANGELES (LAT) — Bidding is expected to be spirited at a wine auction this month although some of the vintages are still in barrels and the buyer won't savor a glassful until 1972 or later.

Dealers, restaurant owners and wine lovers will compete for cases of wines they can't see at the second annual Rare Wine Auction May 26 in Chicago.

The auction will also include something new in the United States — selling wine futures.

Grapes for the wines were picked in 1968, and the liquid is ripening to maturity in vineyard barrels.

WEI 1968 prove to be a great year for Cabernet Sauvignon or Pinot Noir? No one knows, and that will make the auction more dramatic.

"It's a little bit of a gamble," said B.C. Solari, chairman of United Vintners inc., whose California wines, both in bottles and in the future, will be offered at the auction.

"Buyers try to outguess the producers. If the buyer is right, and the wine turns out to be excellent, he has gotten a real bargain."

European growers, according to Solari, have long relied on the sale of wine futures for their financing. Merchants would pay in advance for wines from Bordeaux and Burgundy, whose products are in great demand and limited supply.

Covent Garden Lament

Nostalgia, Beer To Mark Closing

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (Reuters) — London will mingle gaiety and nostalgia today in commemorating the long life and impending death of its historic market-place, Covent Garden.

Cockney songs, dances, wheelbarrow races, boxing matches and many a flowing pint of bitter will mark the 300th birthday of Covent—Cockney for convent — Garden, famed for flower sellers, vegetable hucksters and Eliza Doolittle.

To the strains of Yes, We Have No Bananas, Prince Philip will press a button signalling the symbolic demise of Covent Garden as the site of Britain's biggest fruit and vegetable market, where 15 per cent of the national consumption was handled.

Simultaneously, work will be started by remote control on an enlarged new riverside market-place. Within three years, porters, barrow boys and clerks will complete the move from six crowded acres in central London — a landmark since the days of King Charles II — to a centre across the Thames in Battersea, complete with fork-lift equipment ad automation.

★ ★ ★

The new home will be nine times as big, but there will be many a backward look at the old market, rich in famous names and historic associations.

When the fruit and vegetable men go, planners will move in with blueprints for a remodelled pedestrian paradise virtually free from traffic. There will be luxury restaurants, hotels for the booming tourist trade and apartments for all income levels.

A charter granted by King Charles II to the fifth Earl of Bedford in 1670 permitted a market in the central square.

Here Eliza Doolittle met Professor Higgins in George Bernard Shaw's play Pygmalion, basis of the stage and film musical My Fair Lady.

Galloping Gourmet Skeptical

TORONTO (CP) — Graham Kerr, star of The Galloping Gourmet television show nominated Thursday for an Emmy award in the United States, has shaken the nomination news off easily.

Kerr told the Broadcast Executive Society shortly after the announcement that his CBC-TV program, nominated as the best daytime show, "doesn't have a hope in hell" of winning.

His wife, Treena, producer of The Galloping Gourmet, was nominated as best producer of a daytime show.

Sinatra Meets Margaret

'We've Been In the Bar'

LONDON (AP) — "Nice to see you again," said Frank Sinatra to Princess Margaret.

Arriving a little late to meet the sister of the Queen in a suite at Festival Hall prior to a charity performance Thursday night, Sinatra explained: "We've been in the bar."

★ ★ ★

Sinatra then went on stage, backed by Count Basie's band, and won a standing ovation from a sellout audience of 3,000 with such numbers as Fly Me to the Moon, I've Got You Under My Skin, and My Way.

★ ★ ★

Tickets were listed at £25 ($65) and brought up to £100 ($260) on the black market. Charity yield from the performance, and another Friday, was expected to be about £15,000.

Street Fighter Finds Faith

'Hippies Dig Christ'

By DON GAIN

Hippies dig Christ, the young Puerto Rican said.

"I don't condone their use of drugs or sex. They're playing with dynamite. But I understand how they feel."

Nicky Cruz was sitting up in his bed at the Empress Hotel. He had flown into town after a speaking engagement in San Francisco and was catching up on some rest before another one in Central junior high school Friday night.

★ ★ ★

He's attending a breakfast meeting of the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International in the Empress Hotel at 8:30 a.m. today.

And at 8 p.m. today he'll give his second address in Central junior high.

It's hard to think of Nicky Cruz as the street fighter of the book, Run, Baby, Run, when you look at his serene face and experience his sincere manner.

★ ★ ★

When he took the world on, he wasn't sure what was bugging him. He says now it was lack of love.

His new life has changed all that, of course. He has a wife and family, and he has his life of faith.

The son of a witch doctor in Puerto Rico, Nicky was sent to New York to live with an older brother.

It wasn't long before he dropped out of school and began leading a life of violence.

He became the leader of the Mau-Maus, who were considered to be the most dangerous large gang in the city.

As their leader, Nicky headed up a communion of fear and desperation because of his boldness and ability to meet violence with greater violence.

In his book he tells of his life of violence among young dope addicts, prostitutes and gang members.

He also tells of his conversion to a new life after meeting David Wilkerson, who took religion to the slums of American cities.

★ ★ ★

Now 31, he has established in Fresno, Calif., an organization called Outreach for Youth, which he calls "a home for brokenhearted people."

"We work with boys and girls from 11 to 20 years old," he said. "Most of them have been involved with the law, with narcotics. We find some on the street. Others are referred to us by the courts or their parents. Others just find us somehow."

"We have young people from all over. We even had a Canadian — a young lad who had gone to San Francisco to be with the flower children."

In addition to his project in Fresno he travels all over the world telling his story.

He sums it up. "Christ is the answer. What is the question?"

Peace Message Pedalled to Victoria

By BROCK KETCHAM

A man who has spoken to thousands of people during a bicycle tour around the world will give a message of peace and show slides at the Victoria Sikh temple at 1210 Topaz at 8 p.m. Sunday.

Raguhbir Singh, a 26-year-old graduate student of political science from New Delhi, India, arrived in Victoria Thursday on his bicycle and plans to rest here until Monday. He said he hoped to talk to Premier Bennett and Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock during his stay.

★ ★ ★

Singh rides a three-speed Indian Hercules bicycle with a frame for his "peace" bell he used to have rigged above the front fender and a long, thin Indian sword lashed to the side for "protection against wild animals," he said.

Wearing a blue Sikh turban, Singh sports 30 badges from peace organizations in various countries. He has collected 393 badges so far from his speeches in Southeast Asia and the South Pacific.

Singh said he first conceived the idea of travelling around the world on a bicycle with a message of peace when he was in elementary school. He read with horror about the destruction of Hiroshima and Nagasaki during the Second World War and decided there must be a saner solution for conflict.

★ ★ ★

His answer is simple — war, racial riots, discrimination and social injustice must be eliminated — and he is crusading around the world by bicycle in an effort to bind humanity together.

Singh, whose father owns a factory at Calcutta, said he has a good knowledge of 21 languages.

He began his adventure Oct. 2, 1968, with $3, and has never slept hungry since he started his trek.

He supports himself during his travels by showing slides to schools and universities.

★ ★ ★

To get used to long-distance bicycling, Singh increased his mileage gradually day by day. He now bicycles 400 miles a week, trying to cover 100 miles a day in order to leave himself three days a week for a rest.

In times of stress or loneliness, Singh said he finds comfort in the thoughts of Gurunanak, the 15th-century founder of Sikhism.

Singh's favorite quote from Gurunanak is: "He who realizes himself is in himself the supreme self."

★ ★ ★

Singh first pedalled around India for a few months and in 1969 he swung out to Nepal. He then travelled around Bhutan and Sikkim, mountainous protectorates of India.

Later in 1969, Singh bicycled around Southeast Asia, visiting such countries as Thailand, Cambodia, Laos and South Vietnam. There, he had several adventures.

Once, he said, he was captured by Viet Cong in South Vietnam who thought he was an American spy. At this point, he had been working for the American Christian mission for peace and the Viet Cong misinterpreted his motives, he said.

—William A. Boucher

Raguhbir Singh with trusty Indian Hercules bicycle

Captured near Ben Hua, an American airbase, Singh was taken to a Viet Cong camp.

"They beat me very much to tell them secrets," Singh said, "but I had no secret except the secret of peace."

Singh also tangled with communists near the Thailand-Malaysian border. He said communists posing as Thai police stopped him as he was pedalling along a country road.

"If you don't show us what is in the box, we'll kill you," Singh quoted them as saying.

"But I had chili powder in the box with my camera. I threw it in their eyes and it became impossible for them to chase me," he said.

While in South Vietnam, Singh had his "peace bell" designed by a monk. The bell is made from a cannon shell and 32 bullets fired in the Vietnamese conflict, all melted down to cast the bell.

However, the bell was stolen from Singh's bike in Vancouver April 30 and hasn't been found by the police, he said.

While in Cambodia, Singh said he wanted to see Prince Norodom Sihanouk for the cause of peace. Sihanouk declined and instead sent him a cash donation of $175. Singh said he promptly donated the money to the Red Cross.

★ ★ ★

"I need no charity," he said. "If people want to help me, they should help me communicate ideas of peace.

"I'm a man of peace," he continued. "People would think India a poor country if I took donations."

Singh plans to go to Edmonton next and will proceed eastward to Toronto. New York will be his next stop and there he hopes to see United Nations Secretary-General U Thant.

★ ★ ★

"It pains me to tell U Thant that my peace bell was stolen in Canada, whose people I like very much," Singh said.

After visiting New York, he will bicycle to South America, followed by a jaunt from southern to northern Africa, he said.

Singh will then head for Moscow, back down through Eastern Europe and finally back home through the Middle East and across Asia.

He doesn't figure he'll be home until late 1973.

Singh has a scrapbook bulging with newspaper articles describing his escapades around the world.

'Crime Ignores Boundaries'

Police, Fire Unity Talked

A motion aimed at unification of police and fire forces in Victoria's four core municipalities was briefly debated Friday by Victoria City council and then tabled for "further discussion" at next Thursday's regular meeting.

Introduced by Ald. Harold Olafson and seconded by Ald. Peter Pollen, the motion called for discussions with Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell to "seek his advice and assistance in bringing about the unification of all police and firefighting forces in this area."

Speaking to his motion, Olafson said both services would be more efficient under regional administration. While costs might not be reduced to a great extent, the quality of service provided would be enhanced.

"For one thing, duplication could be eliminated. Fire and crime do not recognize municipal boundaries," Olafson said.

"The time has come when we must recognize that fire and police should be part of our regional government."

Ald. Clyde Savage said he agreed with Olafson, but there was little value in pursuing the matter at this time.

"Two municipalities have plainly indicated that they don't want any part of amalgamation," he said.

"That's pretty funny," Ald. Peter Pollen interjected.

'INCONSISTENT'

"Not too long ago, Ald. Savage was running through the streets crying amalgamation; now he thinks this motion shouldn't be debated. I think he's somewhat inconsistent," Pollen said.

Clyde replied he was merely saying that the other municipalities, with the possible exception of Saanich, weren't the least bit interested in any type of amalgamation.

It was Ald. Hugh Ramsay who moved that the matter be tabled for further discussion at the next meeting.

"I have no idea at this stage what the ramifications of the proposal might be. Maybe it's a very good idea, but I don't know. At least I want to think about it before I make a decision," he said.

Nickel Becomes No. 2 in Cuba

MIAMI (AP) — Nickel has replaced tobacco as Cuba's second biggest export commodity, the Cuban exile news agency, AIP, reported. Sugar continues far in front. The report listed Cuba's 1968 nickel production as 37,000 tons compared with 34,900 the previous year. Average production before the Fidel Castro regime was 14,800 tons annually.

Montreal-Toronto Run

Turbo May Roll Soon

TORONTO (UPI) — The heavily-jinxed, much-delayed Canadian National Railway's turbotrain, which was supposed to have been the last word in passenger trains three years ago, could be in operation this summer between Montreal and Toronto.

The turbo, a roundnosed, white-and-red seven-car train, has passed cold-weather tests it was put through last winter and is ready to go, according to CN officials.

But just when the train will roll is not certain.

"We've set too many dates already," a CN spokesman said ruefully, "this time the thing has got to be in perfect shape."

The turbo, which has the capability of cutting the five-hour rail journey from Toronto to Montreal by an hour, was originally supposed to be ready for Expo 67.

It wasn't, but made its debut on Dec. 10, 1968 — a day the CN would probably like wiped from public memory.

That day the turbo had its premiere press run and managed to ram a meat truck at a level crossing at Kingston, Ont. Meat was strewn all over the tracks, and the CN's very expensive promotion of the train was a somewhat funny disaster.

In the next month after the inaugural run, it became plain that the turbo could not stand the Canadian winter. The valves in its suspension system froze. So did its water supply, and its automatic steps wouldn't work.

Red Ships Shadowed By U.S. in Caribbean

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — The United States Navy announced Friday that three Soviet naval ships have entered the Caribbean Sea and are under surveillance by U.S. planes.

★ ★ ★

A statement from the 10th Naval District here said two submarines and a submarine tender entered the Mona Passage off Western Puerto Rico at about 2 a.m.

It said three other Soviet ships were about 250 miles behind the first three. This second group, the statement said, consisted of a Kresta-class guided-missile cruiser, a guided-missile destroyer and an oiler.

The U.S. Navy said the two submarines in the first group are conventionally powered.

Cattle Firm Fined For Mistreatment

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The Frolek Cattle Co. Ltd. was fined a total of $1,000 in provincial court Friday for failing to provide the necessities of life for livestock and for allowing undue suffering in livestock.

About 60 head of cattle belonging to the company died during the winter of 1968-1969.

Heroin Haul $25,000,000

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Four persons, including a man who identified himself as a Mexican secret police officer and a former Mexico City police chief, were arrested Thursday in a raid that netted an enormous quantity of heroin, said to be worth $25,000,000 when cut.

Federal narcotics officers said it was the largest heroin seizure in history through an undercover buy. They confiscated 92 pounds of 98-percent-pure heroin.

★ ★ ★

The suspects were identified as Lt.-Col. Manuel Dominguez Suarez, 49, and his female companion Yolanda Yanez Schmidt, 32, both of Mexico City; Alfredo Montemayor, 33, and Salvador Mazatini, 38, both of San Antonio.

Officials said Suarez tried to commit suicide by cutting his throat with a concealed knife as he was put in a patrol car.

He was treated at a local hospital and appeared with the others for arraignment before U.S. Commissioner Frank Baskin.

'Pressure' Killed Service

Doctors Urge Resumption Of 'Bad Trip' Drug Testing

OTTAWA (CP) — Special services to test drugs turned in by drug users on bad "trips" became an issue Friday as the Ontario Medical Association demanded resumption of such a service.

Two Toronto doctors, backed to some extent by a Montreal psychiatrist, charged that pressure killed such a service operated by the Ontario Drug and Alcohol Addiction Research Foundation.

Dr. E. P. Solursh, a psychiatrist at Toronto Western Hospital active in crisis care for drug abusers, pointed to the federal food and drug directorate as focal point of the pressure.

This was sharply denied by Dr. Ross Chapman, director-general of the federal agency, who said "we had nothing whatever to do with it."

Dr. R. J. Gibbins, the Ontario foundation's associate research director, said Toronto police suggested foundation personnel might face drug charges themselves and, at least, would be closely watched.

"The legal status of the service was called in question by municipal law enforcement agencies and we decided to suspend it until the legal situation is clarified," Gibbons told a news conference.

Earlier, Dr. Solursh and Dr. F. T. H. Porter, OMA assistant secretary, complained that barriers were being erected to diagnosis and treatment, especially by the food and drug directorate.

Hydro Rules

Overhead Wiring Definite

It's final — overhead B.C. Hydro transmission lines will be strung along Interurban Road and parallel to Burnside Road.

"There is no point in making any further protest," B.C. Hydro Vancouver Island regional manager Alan Macdonald said Friday.

Concerned about mounting public criticism of plans to build overhead transmission lines and distribution feeder lines in Greater Victoria, B.C. Hydro officials called a press conference Friday afternoon to explain their position.

Macdonald said that as far as he knew no estimate had ever been made for underground wiring along Interurban Road.

He said B.C. Hydro would not put overhead lines in a highly developed area such as the Uplands, and agreed with a questioner that if $30,000 to $50,000 homes had been built along Interurban Road then underground wiring would probably have been installed there.

He repeated B.C. Hydro's claim that underground wiring would be installed if the public was prepared to pay for it, but admitted that there is no machinery set up to ascertain public opinion.

"We couldn't go around calling for a vote on a thing like this," said Macdonald. "We would talk to the councils and take their ideas into account."

Macdonald said Hydro officials had never worked out what the additional costs of underground wiring would mean to the individual consumer and did not know when figures would be available.

"Of course if these costs were worked out giving people 20 years to pay or something like that, the cost would be negligible," he said.

The high cost of underground wiring compared with that of transmission lines plus high interest rates, he said, were the main reasons for leaving the lines overhead.

Macdonald said he did not think the overhead lines would look as bad as people seemed to expect.

'People Used to Poles'

"People get used to the poles and lines," he said, and challenged reporters to name the boundaries of the underground wiring in downtown Victoria.

"It's a matter of esthetic values," said Macdonald. "It doesn't bother you unless you sit and look atth e poles and if you do that it makes either a neutral or unfavorable impression upon you."

He did not agree that overhead lines lowered property values.

"B.C. Hydro is affected by inflation just as are others in the community, and now has been compelled to borrow so much money to build new plants that payment of interest has become the largest single item of expense, exceeding payments for all salaries and wages," said Macdonald.

"Action to improve matters of environmental concern involve the expenditure of money and priorities should be established because the money supply is very limited," said Macdonald.

"Is the public prepared to spend money on the undergrounding of overhead conductors before spending it for such things as sewers, road improvements and fire protection?"

Greater Victoria's power requirements, he said, are doubling about every nine years, requiring doubling of all plants — substations, transmission and distribution facilities.

Substantial additions will be required in the next few years, he said.

A new transmission line will have to be built to serve Sidney, followed by a new transmission line to Gordon Head and the Colwood-Langford areas and a new substation in Colwood in 1971. New feeders were also needed out of the Esquimalt substation, he said.

B.C. Hydro, he said, had not decided on routes for the new lines, and were trying to work out ways of involving municipal councils in planning.

Generally speaking, he felt that the thinner the growth in an area the greater the possibility of overhead construction.

No Further Cuts in Victoria Budget

Another 'Kick at Cat' Miskicks

Victoria city council met Friday to "take another kick at the cat, . . . to whack a healthy chunk off the budget," but after 55 minutes of discussion, the city's 1970 operating budget totalling $21,168,650 was approved without further cuts.

Council's decision established the city's municipal mill rate at 37.5 mills — a reduction of 1.8 mills from the 1969 rate.

The over-all mill rate, including hospital and school levies which aren't set by council, dropped to 68.51 mills from 70.02 in 1969.

Victoria's business tax was reduced to 5½ per cent from 6¼ per cent in 1969.

These were all recommended by council meeting in committee-of-the-whole Wednesday.

★ ★ ★

It was Mayor Courtney Haddock who said Wednesday council should "take another kick at the cat and whack a healthy chunk off the budget." At that time, council deleted $16,000 from the budget following a seven-hour session.

At Friday's meeting, he asked if there were any areas where more cuts might be made.

"What about parks? Under small parks and greens there is a $150,000 item. Do we have to spend that much money on parks? Or what about Beacon Hill Park?" he asked.

Immediately, Ald. Peter Pollen replied this expenditure was necessary if the urban area was to be kept fit for human living.

"If we don't provide this sort of service for the beauty of our city, the environment will go to hell," he said.

Ald. Ove Witt asked what alternative the mayor had in mind.

"Do we want asphalt instead of greens?"

Next, the mayor questioned a $36,000 expenditure for the maintenance of Ross Bay Cemetery.

"That's $100,000 in three years," he said.

"That's even more if you count the last 100 years," a voice interjected.

City Manager Dennis Young told council it was impossible to eliminate this item.

"We have to keep up the cemetery. There will be an outcry if we don't," he said.

Haddock asked how the Memorial Arena could be put on a money-making basis. City Comptroller Jim Bramley answered:

"You can't unless you bring a real moneymaker like pro hockey into the city," he said.

The arena's estimated deficit for 1970 is $25,540.

★ ★ ★

Young told council it was next to impossible to make any further cuts in this year's budget. All figures represented a realistic picture of the necessary expenditures.

"Years ago, budgets were padded. Department heads would bring every conceivable item before you in the hope of getting some of them approved," he said.

"That has changed. Now department heads must prepare a budget that reflects an adequate level of service within the city's ability to pay," Young said.

At this point, Ald. Harold Olafson said it was obvious council was engaged in an exercise in futility.

"We can sit here until doomsday and not accomplish a thing. I move that this budget be approved."

The motion was unanimously carried by council.

The cut in the city's mill rate of 1.8 mills will save the average Victoria homeowner about $10 on this year's property tax bill.

Want to Be Nixon?

Acting Out Life Aids Insight

By DON GAIN

"If you had Richard Nixon in this chair, what would you say to him?" the leader of the psychodrama asked.

"President Nixon," the minister said, addressing the empty chair, "if you just keep up with this silly approach to Southeast Asia,' everybody is going to lose and I don't want to have anything to do with you or your administration or your country."

The leader was Rev. James Zacharias of the Puget Sound Unitarian Counselling Service. Addressing a non-existent President Nixon was Rev. Arthur Wilmot of the Unitarian Church of Victoria.

★ ★ ★

The two men were giving a demonstration of psychodrama before about 50 spectators at the Unitarian Church.

"You take the chair now. You be Nixon," Zacharias told the Victoria minister.

Wilmot sat down and began to play the role of Nixon.

"You simple don't understand the facts," he said. "This is a great crisis we face. We're fighting for the survival of the free world, but someone as simple-minded as you appear to be can't understand it."

"Switch roles again," Zacharias said.

★ ★ ★

As himself, Wilmot addressed the empty chair.

"You just seem so slippery. You always take the same approach. No change ever comes."

"You're Nixon again," the leader said.

Wilmot sat in the chair and looked toward where he had been standing.

"If you really understood the situation and the facts involved, which can't be told, you'd know I did the right thing."

The scene finished, Zacharias explained that people could learn something about themselves by acting out certain aspects of their lives.

★ ★ ★

"Webster defines psychodrama as unrehearsed dramatic play designed to afford catharsis and social relearning for one or more of the participants from whose life history the plot is abstracted.)

Role reversal is used, as demonstrated in the Nixon scene, and this can give insight into our own thoughts and reactions.

Sometimes a double is used, a trained person, who mimics every gesture of the person acting out the real-life role.

Zacharias' wife, Theresa, acted as a double and, as she imitated the movements of a subject, also interjected statements as if she were the subject's alter ego.

In some scenes, protagonists were added to play specific parts of the life drama.

Step by step, psychodramas were created. In one, Robin La Garff played himself, while Mrs. Zacharias followed through part of his action as his double.

At the end of the evening, the techniques were discussed.

"Our intent was to provide you with an experience of various techniques used in psychodrama," Zacharias said.

★ ★ ★

J. L. Moreno, an Austrian who was a student of Freud's, originated psychodrama in the 1920s, he said.

Zacharias himself studied with Moreno at his institute in Beacon, N.Y. His present position is minister of counselling with the Puget Sound Unitarian Council.

An ordained Unitarian minister, his experience has embraced work as juvenile court chaplain, pastoral counsellor of mental hospitals and group therapist with alcholics.

A native of Pennsylvania, he grew up as a Lutheran. He will speak in the Unitarian Church here at 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

Pats to Mark Victory Day

About 420 members of the 3rd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry stationed at Work Point will hold church parades Sunday morning to commemorate the 25th anniversary of VE Day Friday.

Roman Catholics in the battalion will visit St. Andrew's Cathedral and Protestants will visit Central Baptist Church. After 11 a.m. church services, the two groups will march past the Victoria Cenotaph.

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock will take a salute from the battalion as they pass a saluting base on the Causeway, opposite the Empress Hotel.

Reward Grows

Mutilater Of Dog At Large

An Irish setter that was mutilated by castration Thursday in Central Saanich began to recover Friday, and the public began to offer rewards for information leading to the arrest of the mutilator.

Trevor Hughes, of 1934 Hovey, said late Friday night the four-year-old Paddy, attacked by an unknown person or persons during a two-hour absence, had been taken off the critical list at an animal hospital and was in fair condition.

Rewards of $50 have been offered by the SPCA; Trevor's father, Darrel; Mr. and Mrs. James Audain of 1159 Beach Drive, Oak Bay; Laurie Patterson, 3082 Island View Road, Central Saanich, and two anonymous donors.

Amounts of $25 have been offered by Mrs. Patricia Corderoy, 9246 Rideau, near Sidney; Mrs. K. Granger, and Malcolm and Margaret Dighton, 4 Mark Lane on Finlayson Arm.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Court of 639 Fairways, Langford, and Mr. and Mrs. K. Dicks of 1245 Balmoral offered $10 and Dennis Wagner, of 1015 Redfern, pledged $5 for a total of $400 so far.

Hughes expressed thanks to those who added to the reward money.

He said Central Saanich police were continuing an investigation and added he had "talked to almost everybody within a half-mile radius" of his home Friday.

He said in addition he had received many calls from people expressing sympathy for what had happened.

Juveniles' Guardian:

More Court No Answer

Raising more juveniles to adult court may relieve the pressure on care facilities for juvenile delinquents, but it will certainly not help the young offenders, Gordon Wright, executive director of Greater Victoria's Family and Children's Service, said Friday.

"It's not enough and it shouldn't be our sole aim to simply pull a juvenile delinquent out of society and lock him up for a certain time," Wright said.

★ ★ ★

"We should be more concerned with his rehabilitation. We should try to train him and gradually lead him back into society, but that's impossible if we throw him into prison."

Wright was commenting on a letter from the attorney-general's department informing the Victoria area Family and Children's Service Thursday that more juveniles would be raised to adult court.

Reason for this decision, the letter stated, was the lack of juvenile delinquent care facilities throughout the province.

The policy would mean that more juvenile offenders would serve sentences in adult jails and prisons.

★ ★ ★

Wright said society's main objective should be to teach juvenile offenders to live in harmony with their fellow human beings.

"And that is impossible to learn in our prisons and jails," he said.

Under current provincial legislation, offenders between 12 and 18 years of age are dealt with by the Family and Children's Court. If found guilty, they are placed into the care of the Family and Children's Service, placed on probation or fined.

★ ★ ★

FCS has two juvenile care facilities at the moment and has announced plans for four more detention homes within the next year or 18 months.

"I think that the attorney-general's department has made a thoroughly destructive decision," Wright said.

Bikini Billboards Fail Stare Poll

PORTLAND (AP) —"Good grief," said the Portland motorist, "She doesn't have any clothes on."

He was looking at a big billboard in Medford that showed a lithe young woman, wearing a brief bikini, feeding a saucer of milk to a kitten.

* * *

He was accustomed to similar billboards in Portland that showed the same young woman in the same pose — but covered by slacks and a long-sleeved blouse.

Both billboards said, "every body needs milk" and were put up by the Oregon Dairy Products Commission through a Portland advertising agency.

The commission rented a dozen boards in Medford and two in Klamath Falls. On these the girl wore a bikini. On 10 or so billboards in Portland, the girl was fully clothed.

The purpose was to determine which would attract the more attention. To determine this, 100 teenagers were questioned in Portland, 52 in Klamath Falls, and 79 in Medford.

The result, which girl watchers contend set advertising back at least a decade, was:

"There is no indication that the amount of clothing made any difference in the awareness."

Czech Wife Homesick

'She Doesn't Realize'

OTTAWA (CP) — A Czechoslovakian immigrant couple are trying to iron out their problems here after the husband made a plane dash from Winnipeg to head off a planned return by his wife and children to the Communist-controlled country.

"She just doesn't realize what will happen if she goes back," George Tyc said Thursday night after catching up to his wife and two children in Ottawa.

* * *

"She just doesn't understand."

The couple and their two children, George, 6, and Richard, 2, remained at a friend's residence here Friday to try to reach a solution to their problem.

"If they went back they would never get out — the Communists wouldn't let them out," Tyc said. "I couldn't let my family go over there."

The husband said his wife had found English difficult to learn since they came to Winnipeg in December, 1968. Tyc learned the language and got a job with a farm implement company

* * *

Then Mrs. Tyc's mother died in Czechoslovakia. This was "the last blow," the husband said.

He came home from work Wednesday and found a note from his wife saying she had decided to go back to Czechoslovakia. She had boarded a train.

* * *

Tyc caught a plane to Ottawa and was waiting at the station when the train arrived here en route to Montreal.

After settling his wife and children in with friends here, Tyc said she has agreed to stay in Ottawa for a while and he hopes the problem can be solved with the family remaining in Canada.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column you said a man could not tell for sure if a woman is a virgin. That was one of the most terrible statements you have ever made. In the first place it is untrue, and in the second place it gives the green light to every girl who thinks she can fool around and pass herself off as pure on her wedding night.

●

I am enclosing a clipping of a news story from Reuters. The dateline is Naples. This story reports that a 30-year-old bride who claimed she was a virgin was legally banished by her groom. The husband, a 30-year-old fisherman named Angelo, had heard rumors concerning his future wife, Vincenzina. When he asked her about the rumors she swore they were lies. On their wedding night Angelo left Vincenzina because he learned the rumors were true.

The following week, Angelo went to the church to get the marriage annulled. The Tribunal heard the case. Medical evidence was produced which proved the girl had ceased to be a virgin one year before the marriage. An annulment was granted.

You have a responsibility to your millions of readers to retract your statement at once.—No Faith In You.

Dear No Faith: If all the old wives tales about virginity were laid end to end they would reach from here to Naples. In some instances, it is possible to ascertain virginity. In many cases the "evidence" is non-existent or highly doubtful. One of my medical consultants told me of two patients who were technically virgins and pregnant. Another physician said he had examined at least 50 young girls who had no clinical evidence of virginity yet he was certain the girls were telling the truth when they said they had not had sexual intercourse.

In the case of Angelo and his bride, the statement that a girl ceased to be a virgin one year before her wedding night raises so many medical questions that the "trial" was at best preposterous. I've said it before and I say it again. Churches should stick to moral and spiritual matters and stay out of medicine.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife and I are not people who let things go 'til the last minute. We plan everything ahead and it sure does save a lot of headaches. This evening we were discussing our 1970 Christmas card.

In past years we've always had the names of our children on the card along with ours. Our last chick left the nest in January so our next card will have only our names. Should it be Rose and Jay or Jay and Rose? My wife says the woman's name is supposed to be first. I'm sure I read somewhere that the man's name should be first if it is shorter. Please hurry your answer.—Impasse.

Dear Im: I'm typing as fast as I can and I hope this reaches you in time. There are only 230 days 'til Christmas. The woman's name should appear first if the card is printed. If the wife is signing the card, she should put her husband's name first.

And while you're at it — please use your last name. Every year we receive dozens of cards — from Dick and Dorothy??? Bob and Kathy??? John and Sue??? — etc., etc. . .

Six Provinces 235 Abortions

OTTAWA (CP) — Hospitals in six provinces carried out 235 therapeutic abortions in the first three months of this year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Friday.

The figure covered the six provinces that have established reporting procedures under last year's federal law.

The provinces are Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. A breakdown for each province was not available.

Last year's law allows therapeutic abortion where a hospital committee certifies that continued pregnancy will endanger the mother's health.

An abortion caravan is scheduled on Parliament Hill today to demonstrate for hospital abortions without any legal restriction.

However, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Friday the government does not intend to amend the law.

The women demonstrating for the repeal of Criminal Code provisions on abortion say back-alley operations are still common, despite the new law.

DBS reported that:

● Forty-one women died in hospital as a result of induced abortions in the 1964-68 period. Highest number reported by hospitals in any one year was 10 in 1964, lowest four in 1967.

● 29 died in hospital of spontaneous abortions, or miscarriages, in the same period, the high being 12 in 1964, the low being four in 1966, in 1967 and 1968.

● Hospitals reported that abortion was the principal factor in the admission of 45,482 women in 1966, the latest year for which figures were given. Figure for 1964 was 54,136, for 1962 it was 57,617, and for 1961 it was 57,376.

Housewives Go Gently

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — Eight housewives, who say they don't want to join a "mob," plan a quiet candlelight vigil Sunday to protest killing, whether in Indochina or on college campuses. "It's just a small, gentle protest," said Mrs. James McGary, 47, in whose kitchen the idea for the vigil was evolved.

Princely Pad Assures Privacy

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Charles has a new bachelor pad — a dream apartment in Buckingham Palace with stereo music everywhere, including the bathroom.

Princely privacy is guaranteed because the apartment is so far removed from the regular family quarters in the 700-room palace that Charles often telephones his parents when he's home and wants to chat.

The rooms of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip, are a 10-minute walk away down carpeted corridors.

★ ★ ★

The heir to the British throne, now that he's 21, could have asked his mother for a house of his own, but he decided to stay at the palace until he marries. Marriage is unlikely before he completes two or three years of service with the Royal Air Force and Royal Navy, starting this fall.

Charles is now studying for his final examinations at Cambridge University. He is to graduate in June. When in London, he stays in the apartment arranged and decorated to his wishes.

Queen Elizabeth is pleased her eldest son chose to live at home, so saw that he got a suite as private as possible under the same roof.

★ ★ ★

There is a large living room that Charles calls his study. The adjoining bedroom, bathroom and the study are all rigged with the latest stereo equipment so music-loving Charles can always hear his favorite selections, classical and otherwise.

Decor is modern with blues and greens and some touches of gold. The furniture is a mixture of antique and comfortable — there are overstuffed deep chairs and a couch.

The bookshelves contain paperback thrillers and weighty tomes on history and drama. A military print hangs on one wall.

Arranged about the study is Charles' collection of model ships that he started as a schoolboy. There are also silver-framed family photographs.

★ ★ ★

The central heating is supplemented by an open fireplace in the study. A liquor cabinet comes into use when Charles occasionally entertains a few friends informally.

Brief Bliss

Forger Meets Forger

BIG RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — Can a striking redhead and an ex-convict who met each other while purchasing goods with forged checks find happiness, although separated since their jail marriage last month?

Tune in at least 5½ years from now and find out.

Mecosta County Circuit Court Judge Harlow Van Domelen Thursday sentenced Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bowman to maximum sentences. The earliest both could be out of jail is 5½ years away.

"The sentences were tough," said probation officer Bill May, "because there was a great deal of money involved in their crime. Nobody knows how much in all."

★ ★ ★

The newlyweds have not yet commenced a honeymoon — they were held in jail since last month's wedding.

Bowman, 29, was sentenced to seven-to-14 years in southern Michigan prison at Jackson. He said he married Jeanette, 25, last month "because I love her and because I may be going some time soon."

Mrs. Bowman will be going to the Detroit House of Correction, where she was sentenced to a 1½-to-14 year term, and will be eligible for parole in 14 months. Her husband, who previously served time for a similar offence, would be eligible in 5½ years. Mrs. Bowman did not have a previous record.

The couple met shortly before both the arrest.

Stewardess' History

Cow Pasture Adds Thrill

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In the chill dawn of May 15, 1930, eight pretty girls in identical green capes swept on to an airstrip ready to make aviation history.

"And then the motors went haywire, recalls Harriet Iden, one of the eight. "It took them three hours to fix, the plane while we sat in the greasy spoon across the street drinking coffee."

When they took off, the ladies launched a new career for women. They called themselves stewardesses.

Now, on the 40th anniversary of that flight, some 50,000 young women work at the occupation, which has changed drastically since Harriet's flight in the Boeing 80A trimotor.

"Being a stewardess now couldn't be as exciting," says the Glendale housewife, now in her 60s. "Don't forget we were landing in cow pastures when the weather was bad."

They also were doing chores foreign to today's miniskirted stewardesses, such as cleaning the plane's chemical toilets, hauling baggage and, when the plane broke down, baby-sitting with it until the mechanics arrived.

The first stewardesses flew six days a week — sometimes seven — and were paid $125 a month. When stranded out of town, they got $6 a day for expenses.

Mrs. Iden and the seven other girls were hired by Boeing Air Transport, which later became United Air Lines. A Boeing executive, Steve Simpson, hatched the stewardess idea after taking a bumpy flight on which he wound up serving sandwiches and coffee — normally the co-pilot's job.

He found one nurse who liked the idea. She was Ellen Church, who became chief stewardess and travelled to Chicago to recruit more. The first stewardess crew included four San Franciscans and four girls from Chicago — among them Harriet Fry, now Mrs. Iden.

Mrs. Iden left her stewardess job after a year and a half.

"It became trying after a while. And I was a nurse at heart." She was married in 1940 and became a full-time housewife.

Of the other seven, five survive.

Miniskirts Boon To Motherhood

LONDON (UPI) — Two British doctors give the miniskirt credit for being great preventive medicine for backache among young mothers.

Dr. Sydney Harris and Dr. Norman Moss, writing in the current issue of the British Medical Journal, said the short-skirted young mothers of today modestly squat to pick up their children because bending over as their mothers did in days of longer hemlines is too revealing.

"Those who are self-conscious are doing themselves a world of good," Moss said. "They use their legs for lifting and they will feel the benefit over the next 10 or 20 years."

Census Heads Red

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The census bureau said Thursday it had no intention of embarrassing the Mormon church and apologized.

Church leaders said they were offended by these instructions to census-takers on household heads: "Among American Indians, Mormons, etc., there may be more than one wife of the head. If so, mark all of them as wife."

The church officials complained to their senators that polygamy has not been practised by Mormons for more than 80 years.

Murderer Of Saint Lies Sick

MACERATA, Italy (AP) — Alessandro Serenelli, believed to be the only man alive to have murdered a Roman Catholic saint, lies sick in a Capuchin monastery here with a picture of his victim by his bedside.

On a hot July day in 1902, Serenelli, then 20, attacked 11-year-old Maria Goretti as she sat in her mother's kitchen sewing a shirt.

When she fought off his attempt to rape her, he stabbed her 14 times — one for each time she rejected his advances.

★ ★ ★

She died the following day, whispering words of pardon for her murderer, who was later sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment.

In 1950, Maria was declared a saint, virgin and martyr, by Pope Piux XII.

Serenelli, now 88, broke his hip in a fall last February and has been bedridden since. He is being looked after by the monks and has a picture of "little Maria" by his bedside.

Woman Details Healing

Gertrude Ticer was blind, paralyzed, a victim of multiple sclerosis for 15 years.

In 1962 she was in the incurable ward of a hospital in Las Vegas, Nev.

She was bed-fast in an oxygen tent. Funeral arrangements had already been made.

Gertrude Ticer will be in Victoria Tuesday to speak to the regular meeting of the Lessons in Living group in St. John's Parish Hall at 8 p.m.

She will tell how "Jesus Christ visited her and healed her instantly" and how he told her to go and tell everyone of this miracle.

She has since been across the U.S. and in other countries giving her testimony to thousands of people.

Cartoons Trigger Religious Talks

Protestant Chaplain Irvine Hare of CFB Esquimalt has been experimenting for the past four years with an in-barracks approach to religion for servicemen, using audio-visual material to start religious discussion and exhange of ideas.

A French-Canadian serviceman expressed his inability to participate as fully as he would like to because of language.

Chaplain Hare, accordingly, arranged a discussion in French, which was held recently in the Nelles Block of CFB Esquimalt.

The evening Discuss In, as it was called, was jointly arranged by the Protestant Chaplain and by Father Regis Pelletier, Roman Catholic base chaplain.

Material for the evening was supplied by French-Canadian servicemen and women who passed along Peanuts cartoons in French, from their hometown newspapers.

These were made into slides and projected on a screen. The cartoons sparked discussion of the religious implications of Charlie Brown's encounters with life.

The idea of using the cartoons sprung from the book, The Gospel According to Peanuts, by Robert L. Short.

"Short makes extensive use of modern theologians' writings and draws on an extensive knowledge of English literature to produce a very tightly knit logical argument," Chaplain Hare explained.

He said servicemen in the Victoria area have shown a preference for an entirely different approach.

"The technique used is to show slides based on a common theme to stimulate a flow of ideas and conversation. Part of the game consists in watching the projectionist who has been known to inject slides into the program for their humor content alone."

The French evening disclosed that humor conveying religious truths follows a different path than in English, the chaplain said, and further experimentation is necessary.

Chaplain Hare left Monday for Japan aboard HMCS Mackenzie but will continue his discussion evenings on his return.

A service photographer took a picture of the two chaplains at the Discuss In with two servicemen, AB Norman Perreault and AB J. P. Daviau.

Anglican Centre

Students' Play In Pantomime

Twenty-one students from the Anglican Lay Training Centre in Sorrento on Shuswap Lake visited Victoria last weekend.

The students, who came from B.C., Alberta, Saskatchewan and Ontario, began a 17-day tour on April 18.

It ended in Christ Church Cathedral, Vancouver, this week with a performance of a passion play in pantomime and a resurrection dance.

SAME PROGRAM

In Victoria they presented the same program in St. Luke's Church, Cedar Hill, with the addition of a series of vignettes, beginning with a slide-accompanied reading of verse entitled Litany of the City.

The students' course ends this week at Sorrento. During its four months they have formed a temporary community which has explored the issues of contemporary society and personal growth in a context of Christian faith and community.

The fifth annual course of its kind, it was open to young people between the ages of 18 and 21. The sixth annual course begins Jan. 3, 1971.

Sorrento Centre is sponsored by the Anglican dioceses of B.C. and the two Alberta dioceses of Calgary and Edmonton.

Its purpose is to work with lay people towards the renewal of the lay ministry throughout the whole church.

WINTER COURSE

This is done through the four-month winter course for young people, through short conferences in spring and fall and summer series of week-long courses which families combine with a holiday on Shuswap Lake.

The staff of Sorrento works with lay people outside the centre when time allows and much of its work is carried on in its active co-operation with the United Church centre at Naramata in the Okanagan.

Brochures may be obtined by writing the Anglican Lay Training Centre, Sorrento, B.C.

Minister Ordained In United Church

Norman Wilkinson, 32, of 2832 Parkview, was ordained this week in Penticton United Church.

The ordination took place during the 46th annual meeting of the B.C. conference of the church at Naramata.

Wilkinson was born in Victoria and was educated at Craigflower, Mt. View senior high school and St. Louis College.

For years a ham radio operator, he worked as an electronic techinician at HMC Dockyard for six years.

He attended First United Church, where he was active in young people's organizations.

After attending the Naramata Leadership Training School for a year, he decided to enter the ministry.

He attended UBC for a year and UVic for three years. He has just completed three years at Union College.

He now is in Toronto, where he will do postgraduate work in clinical pastoral studies.

He is the son of Mrs. Fred Wilkinson and the late Fred Wilkinson.

Youth Day Service By Baptists

Emmanuel Baptist Church will hold a Youth Parade service at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Participating will be members of the church's youth organizations and their leaders.

Groups involved are the Sunday school; Lifeboys, aged 8 to 11; Boys' Brigade, 12 and over; Explorers, girls from 9 to 11; CGIT, girls 12 and over; Hi-Fellowship, teenagers; Campus and Career, young people over 18; and the Junior Choir.

The pastor, Rev. Norman Archer, will have a special message for the young people under the title Danny Boy.

Steve McClellan will be chairman of the meeting. John MacMillan will give the responsive reading and Margaret Garden the prayer.

Pollution Urgency

People Don't Believe

By SHIRLEY d'Estrube
Editor, The Victoria Unitarian

Everyone is against pollution and would like to see something done about it. (Within reason, of course. So long as it doesn't cost ME anything.)

In nearly all conversations, discussions, even in converences on pollution, like the excellent teach-in held recently at the University of Victoria, a curious thing emerges.

The entire scientific world agrees that all human life is doomed unless drastic action is taken at once to reverse pollution and severely curb population.

TIME LIMIT

The only point of difference appears to be the time limit we are given — will we scrape by and leave our children to die with the earth?

Or are all of us under, say 40, doomed as well?

No authoritative voice disputes this bleak picture — and yet there is a singular lack of urgency in the public response, even from concerned and intelligent people.

Why is this? It is because the mind tends to slide away from unacceptable facts? Is it because, as was pointed out in a sermon in the church two weeks ago, the Christian tradition is one of man's exploitation of the earth?

Is it also, perhaps, because it is difficult to believe, here in our beautiful, still relatively unpolluted B.C. that we are inextricably tied to the common fate of our earth?

Whatever the reasons, it seems to me that at a feeling level, people simply don't believe what they have been told.

The individual has come to feel so lost and impotent in the complexities of society that he no longer reacts like a responsible participant but rather like a child who trusts that the parent-government will look after him.

Unfortunately, the government is not a wise parent but just a group of men who seem also not to believe, at a feeling level, the ecologists' warnings.

Korean Girl Has Yen for Flowers

Adopted Child Here at 25

By DON GAIN

A 25-year-old Korean girl who was adopted by a Saanich family 14 years ago has come to Canada to start a new life.

Won Ok Lee, who couldn't afford to go to school when she was adopted through the Save The Children Fund by Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Parkyn, 5427 Alderley, in 1956, now is a university graduate.

"She was very bright and quick," said Mrs. Parkyn this week, "so we were glad we could make it possible for her to continue her education."

★ ★ ★

Won Ok is a graduate of the University of Pusan in the city of the same name. She has been teaching English in Korea but now she wants to investigate the possibilities of a career in welfare work in Canada.

"She's just like one of the family," Mrs. Parkyn said. "Over the years we've kept in close touch with her and we always exchanged presents."

She's been here only a week but she's fitting in very well, her adopted mother said.

★ ★ ★

"We're enjoying it very much. She's a delightful girl and she's enjoying everything she sees here."

Won Ok herself had something to say about this part of the world.

"Very beautiful country," she said. "I love it very much. It is very different from Korea. Canadian people love flowers. I do, too."

She was out helping her adopted father in the garden on Thursday. Earlier she put on a traditional Korean dress called a sack-dong.

A colorful silk affair, it had stripes of red, green, white and yellow. The Parkyns posed with her and with a number of Korean dolls their adopted daughter had sent them over the years.

Won Ok is just one of thousands of people throughout the world who have been helped by the Save The Children Fund.

—William A. Boucher

Won Ok and adopted parents

★ ★ ★

British Columbians gave $145,000 to help support these children two years ago. The 1969 figures aren't available. But last year citizens of Greater Victoria gave more than $12,000.

Children were helped in Korea, in Vietnam, in Uganda, Morocco, Hong Kong, India and children of northern Canada were also helped.

Mrs. W. W. McGill, 3441 Mayfair Drive, who has been working for the fund for many years, gave this breakdown of donated money:

★ ★ ★

- Ten cents a day feeds a child and keeps him in a day care centre in Hong Kong.
- Fifty cents a day feeds a whole family in Korea.
- One dollar provides milk for a hungry baby for two months.
- Five dollars provides TB vaccine for 76 children.
- Eighty dollars will sponsor a child for a whole year.

Passion Play

Hashish Scandal Renews Attack

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
Columnist Los Angeles Times

OBERAMMERGAU, West Germany — A hashish scandal threatened Wednesday to add fuel to the controversy surrounding the Oberammergau Passion Play of 1970, due to open in 10 days.

The play, which is put on every 10 years, is under attack from German and world Jewry for not eliminating alleged anti-Semitic passages. The Catholic Church, through Julius Cardinal Doepfner, Archbishop of Munich, has also indicated concern.

The pot-smoking business, involving three youths who are in the play as well as others, broke into public print Wednesday despite efforts by the local community to keep it quiet. Police have been investigating it for the past two weeks, but so far have made no arrests.

★ ★ ★

Town and festival officials here are trying desperately to play it all down, despite inflammatory headlines in the Munich press.

"Our youths are like young people everywhere," said Oberammergan deputy Mayor Arthur Haser, who plays Caiphus, the high priest who is the leading agitator in the trial and crucifixion of Christ. "It is a scandal, but of no great significance."

"This is not exactly pleasant for us, coming just before the opening," added Carl Bauer, public relations director for the festival. "But only two students and one girl are thought to be involved, and they do not have important roles in the play."

Bauer said there were no plans to expel them. The hashish has long since disappeared from the local scene, he maintained.

★ ★ ★

Reports here stated that the hashish was brought in from Munich and was also obtained from American soldiers stationed in the area.

The hashish story broke shortly after the latest in a series of exchanges between the Catholic archbishopric of Munich and the Jewish community there. Speaking at ceremonies commemorating the 25th anniversary of the liberation of the Dachau concentration camp, president Heinz Meier of the Israeli Cultural Community in Bavaria described the Oberammergau festival as a renewal of anti-Semitism under the guise of a religious play.

★ ★ ★

The archbishopric in Munich sharply rejected this, and charged that such suspicions were "a provocatory attempt to create suspicions that Doepfner gave his approval to anti-Semitic tendencies." Doepfner will take part in the opening ceremonies here May 16.

Doepfner has declared the present text of the play needs to be revised but said it was not anti-Semitic. He has rejected suggestions that he should not participate in the opening ceremonies.

Church Chronicle

New Bishop Will Conduct First Confirmation Rite

Bishop Roy Gartrell of British Columbia will conduct his first confirmation service at St. Philip's Anglican Church, Eastdowne and Neil, at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Twenty-one candidates ranging in age from 13 to 45 will be confirmed. The ceremony includes the laying on of hands by the bishop, an apostolic rite which has been followed in the church from its very earliest days.

This rite is the outward and visible sign of the gift of the Holy Spirit to empower the candidates to live up to the Christian promises they make.

□

A walkathon is being held next Saturday by Belmont Avenue United Church in aid of its fund for a new building.

The walk is being arranged by the intermediate Sunday school class under its teacher Richie Gage, with the help of Hi C members.

The walk will begin at 10 a.m. at the church, which is on Belmont a few blocks from Shelbourne. The route is laid along Shelbourne to Mount Douglas Park. Return route is along Cedar Hill, Cook, Haultain and Forbes to the church. Total distance is just over 10 miles.

□

Rev. R. J. D. Morris of First United Church was given an honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity at Victoria University of the University of Toronto at a ceremony on Wednesday.

Before leaving for Toronto to accept the degree, the Victoria minister was elected president-designate of the B.C. conference of the United Church of Canada at its 46th annual meeting in Naramata.

He will take office as president of the conference next year.

□

Mother's Day will be celebrated in Trinity Presbyterian Church, 2964 Tillicum, by a special feature at the 11 a.m. service. Flowers are presented to mothers by the children during the service and each family is given a little plant that will bloom later in the summer.

The junior choir, under the direction of Georgina Harper will lead the praise and the minister, Rev. G. D. Smith, will talk about The King's Mother.

□

A special service in honor of mothers will be held at 10:30 a.m. Sunday in St. David's Anglican Church, Cordova Bay. The service will also celebrate the Ascension of Jesus Christ. Donald Dundee and Al Coomber will conduct the service and John Lort will give the address.

Church Retains Country Air Within Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Amid the hustle and bustle of the big city, Humberlea Church of God has managed to remain basically a country church.

There you can find painted wooden bench-pews, a scroll on a balcony which proclaims God is Love, worship serves with emphasis on highly emotional preaching, personal testimony by the congregation, laying-on-of-hands healing and the strange and often disturbing occurrence of "speaking in tongues."

This speaking in tongues, or glossolalia, comes about when a person engaged in prayer finds himself emitting sounds in a strange new language which is foreign to him but sometimes can be interpreted by someone else. It is historically linked by believers to the first apostles.

Described by critics as schizophrenic babbling, this experience is called a "liquid sea of love" by believers and remains one of the cornerstones of Pentacostal worship.

Although the Church of God is widespread in the southern rural Bible belt country of the United States, it is relatively new in Toronto.

Humberlea Church is run by Rev. Irvine G. Wyns, a quiet Englishman who got his start in life as the son of missionary parents in Mongolia.

PASTOR STARTS

The father of 11 children, Wyns began his independent pastorate with his own family as the first congregation and gradually drew in an adult membership.

"People would come to our services and enjoy them, and the next time they came they would bring a friend or neighbor," he said in an interview.

He said his denomination, founded in 1886 by a Baptist minister, still adheres to an extremely fundamental set of doctrines that demand literal belief in the Bible and a "righteousness that is separate from the world and renunciatory to the old life."

SPIRITUAL GIFTS

Members are expected to take "the exercise of spiritual gifts," Wyns said, which include a prophecy and faith healing.

A conventional theological education is not required to become a Church of God pastor, but licences are granted after successful completion of an examination.

This examination includes personal questions such as, "Has your moral conduct with the opposite sex been above question since you received salvation?" or "Do you have your family under reasonable control?"

ANACHRONISTIC

While the entire atmosphere surrounding the Church of God, from the excitable "hellfire and brimstone" preaching method to the way the pastor embraces congregation members as they leave, seems somewhat anachronistic, members say it is attractive.

The say their denomination offers a joyful experience of religion that they feel so many of the established churches in the city have lost.

Squamish Takes In Qualicum

The annual "Qualicum" Men's Conference will be held in Squamish this year.

The dates are May 22 to 24 and the place is Paradise Retreat.

Mark Gibbs, one of the world's foremost authorities on the laity in the life and work of the Christian church, will be the main speaker.

The co-author of the book God's Frozen People, he will speak on The Layman in Tomorrow's World.

Advance registration is necessary because of limited accommodation. In Victoria it is being looked after by Dr. J. Petersen at 384-0479.

Unitarian Speaker

Rev. James Zacharias, minister of counselling of the Puget Sound Unitarian Council, will speak on the subject, Stranded in the Present, at 10:30 a.m. Sunday in the Unitarian Church of Victoria, 106 Superior. Zacharias conducted an evening of Victoria, 106 Superior, at the church Friday night.

Sales by Priests Offend Vatican

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Vatican City newspaper L'osservatore Romano has urged Roman Catholic priests to stop selling old church objects to junk dealers.

Answering a reader's complaint about the large number of sacred objects on sale at Rome's flea market, Lo'osservatore said this trade "offends the feelings not only of believers but of every decent soul'"

The reader, Lucio Leccisi, said he was shocked to find on sale "sacred vestments, statues of saints, defaced cruicifixes, broken tabernacles and even a gilded altar complete with candlesticks." He said "the so-called sacristy junk" should be burned rather than sold.

Witnesses Open Convention

The convention of Jehovah's Witnesses of Southern Vancouver Island got under way at S. J. Willis Junior High School Friday night.

About 1,350 Witnesses are expected for the three-day convention, which takes the form of a seminar.

Special training will be given and impetus supplied for work planned during the next six months.

Included will be training in methods of starting and conducting home Bible studies, baptism of new ministers and a special public address, Withstanding the Pressures of Our Day, to be delivered by William Veenstra of Toronto, who is B.C. district supervisor, at 3 p.m. Sunday.

An evening session was held Friday for family groups and young adults and another will be held at 6:45 p.m. today.

About 25 new ministers were scheduled to be baptised at 10 a.m. today by total immersion in a tank set up at Kingdom Hall, 1095 Joan Crescent.

Eighteen different departments, such as a cafeteria and arrangement of billets, are being staffed entirely by volunteers.

Festival of Winners

Choirs, Organ Players In St. Matthias Today

Junior choirs of Victoria churches and music festival organ scholarship winners will perform at 7:30 p.m. today in St. Matthias Anglican Church, 600 Richmond.

Taking part will be: Centennial United Church junior choir conducted by Ian Westmacott; St. David's girls' choir conducted by Mrs. H. B. Walker the same church's boy's choir conducted by Constance Broadhurst; St. Andrew's Presbyterian junior choir conducted by C. C. Warren; St. Matthias junior and intermediate choirs conducted by Eric Edwards; Esquimalt United junior choir conducted by Rush Wanless; St. Mary's Anglican junior choir conducted by Charles Palmer and the massed choir of St. Matthias and St. Andrew's.

The festival is sponsored by the Victoria centre of the Royal Canadian college of Organists. RCCO bursary winners of this year, Elizabeth Courtnall and Madeleine Gross, will each play two numbers on the organ.

Mary Chard, a young Victoria organist with a long list of awards, will also perform.

Large-Sums Thefts Bring Acid Rebuke

Two men who had admitted stealing large sums of money were sentenced Friday in Victoria Provincial Court to terms in prison after Judge William Ostler called one "contemptible" and the other a "confidence trickster."

Charles Malcolm Buchanan, 41, of 1144 Palmer, was sentenced to 2½ years in prison after admitting three thefts involving more than $1,500 plus a revolver, while Roy Vernon Cripps, 27, of Saint John, N.B., was given two years after admitting a $2,379 theft.

Buchanan, former treasurer of the Victoria National Little League, pleaded guilty April 28 to a charge of theft of $1,138 from the baseball organization between April 6 and Aug. 30 in 1968.

NEW CHARGES

Friday, he pleaded guilty to two new charges — one of theft by conversion of $396.50 between May 1 and Dec. 31 in 1969 from Victoria Mobile Towing Homes Ltd., 1879 Island Highway, and one of theft of a revolver worth less than $50 in December of 1968 from the Bank of Nova Scotia at 702 Yates.

Colwood RCMP told court that Buchanan had kept books and records for the towing firm in 1969 and an audit last month showed a shortage of $1,257. Police said Buchanan was questioned Thursday and could not account for $396.50 in cash.

IN DUTIES

Victoria police said Buchanan was required to have a revolver in his duties at the bank and took it with him when he was released last December.

A clergyman came forward to say he and another man were in court to speak as character witnesses for Buchanan, but the latter, asked by the judge if they should speak, replied: "I would prefer not."

Buchanan said he regretted the thefts, and the judge replied:

'GREAT DEAL'

"You have a great deal to regret. You have finally been brought to task for a long history of this sort of thing."

Ostler said Buchanan violated a "special trust" when he posed as a supporter of boys and their activities while committing a "contemptible" theft.

Cripps pleaded guilty April 20 to a charge of theft of $2,379 two days before. Court was told then that the money was Canadian bills belonging to the Olympia State Bank of Port Angeles, Wash., and usually brought to Victoria by ferry but this time by private vessel.

The vessel arrived in Victoria April 17 and the owner that evening met Cripps and invited him to board the vessel, moored at the Causeway. Cripps did so next morning, taking the money in the afternoon. When caught, Cripps was without $1,090 of the money, and it remains missing.

The judge noted that a pre-sentence report called Cripps a "confidence trickster," to which Cripps said, "Yes."

Centennial 71

Chairman Suggests Project Slowdown

Some Centennial 71 committees are getting ahead of schedule and provincial chairman Lawrie Wallace says he wants them to hold back on projects until the committees have been approved in their areas and a population base established.

"There seems to be some confusion between the two types of provincial centennial grants," Wallace said. "There is a grant for administration and programming, amounting to 40 cents per capita on approved populations."

He said the B.C. Centennial Committee must establish the population and approve the grant claimed before any other activities can be undertaken.

MATCHING BASIS

"The second grant of 60 cents per capita is on a matching basis for lasting projects," he said.

Wallace said that some committees have submitted their projects, but none have been approved by the provincial committee yet.

In order to qualify for the provincial grant, projects and full details must be submitted to the committee for approval.

The project grant will not apply to a project for which other provincial grants are applicable, Wallace said. This rules out: senior citizen and low-cost housing projects, chronic-care hospitals, nursing homes, schools, community colleges, regional parks, fire halls, ambulances or fire trucks, airports, municipal halls, and sewage treatment plants.

PROJECT LIST

Wallace said that among the projects that will be supported are: the purchase and restoration of buildings of historic and architectural merit; local parks and park facilities such as grandstands, baseball diamonds, athletic track or picnic facilities; swimming pools; writing and publication of local histories; creation and completion of songs, paintings, sculpture, or other works of art; community halls; addition and improvements to previous centennial projects, and libraries, museums and cultural centers.

RESOURCE POOL

"The provincial committee suggests neighboring communities pool their resources to complete a project which could not to be undertaken on an individual basis," Wallace said.

Provided finances are available, communities can have more than one project, he said.

"All projects must be on land owned by the community, or leased by the community for a period of not less than 21 years, Wallace said. The projects must be completed and opened during 1971 to qualify for the provincial grant.

Assault on Police Leads to Jailing

A 20-year-old Colwood man was sentenced Friday in Victoria Provincial Court to four months in jail for assaulting a peace officer during a series of incidents shortly after B.C. lowered the legal drinking age to 19 from 21.

Lorne Parsons, 3186 Ayton, was sentenced by Judge J. A. Byers a week after the judge found him guilty following a trial.

Court was told during the trial that Parsons struck Victoria Constable Arthur Cooper twice in a clash early April 18 in the 1100 block Langley. Police said Parsons used the phrase "out of my way, scum" while Parsons denied speaking to or hitting any policemen.

Testimony showed the incident was one of many between about a dozen policemen and an estimated 200 youths, the latter including many of the new drinking age. Fights and bottle-throwing occurred in the clashes, which were centred around a hotel at 1140 Government.

□

In the court section of Judge William Ostler, a sentence of one month in jail was given to Mrs. Maria Johanna Dulmage, 31, of 1231 Colville, who was found guilty following a trial on a charge of theft involving less than $50.

Court was told she shoplifted six pairs of pantyhose, worth a total of $10.62, from The Bay April 14, and that she had a previous conviction for shoplifting in 1967, also at The Bay.

□

In another shoplifting case, Ostler said he did not think probation was "a sufficient deterrent . . . there is too much shoplifting in this community."

But he accepted a probation officer's recommendation and gave Mrs. Julie Gardiner, 21, of 413 Langford, a suspended sentence and one-year probationary term because Mrs. Gardiner is expecting a baby. Mrs. Gardiner pleaded guilty April 28 to a charge of theft of a $3.99 carton of cigarettes April 22 from the Safeway store at 1153 Esquimalt.

□

Aloysius Klamper, 18, no fixed address, was sentenced to a total of four months definite and one year indeterminate, which Ostler will recommend be spent in an outdoors institution. Klamper pleaded guilty to three charges of possession of stolen property worth more than $50 last month in Victoria and Saanich. The charges mentioned car equipment worth a total of more than $300.

□

Gregor Scott Myers, 19, of 515 Cornwall, was given a suspended sentence and 18-month probationary term after he pleaded guilty April 30 to a charge of possession of stolen property worth more than $50. The property was a $170 guitar which was stolen March 9 and which Myers admitted selling five days later for $85.

□

A one-day jail term and a $400 fine was the sentence given to Patrick O. F. Bedard, 39, of 327 Belleville, after he pleaded guilty April 24 to a charge of breaking, entering and theft. Court was told then that he took two rugs from the rooming house where he lived and planned to use them in new quarters to which he had planned to move May 1.

□

A fine of $50 was the penalty for John Upton, age and address not given, who pleaded guilty to one charge under federal fishing regulations of using power gear to bring in lines while sport-fishing. Ostler ordered confiscation of the seven salmon caught by Upton March 8 but returned Upton's two lures.

□

In the court section of Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre, a double penalty was given to Norman George Urquhart, 24, of 604 Wilson, after he was found guilty following a trial on a charge of mischief. Court was told Urquhart kicked in a large window April 18 at Gore Blueprint, 648 Fisgard. He was fined $100, to be paid with a month and ordered to pay $317.51 within two weeks for the damage to the window.

□

In Byers' court section, Vernon A. Kovar, 34, of 250 Zealous, was sentenced to 14 days in jail after he pleaded guilty Thursday to a charge of impaired driving April 18 in Colwood.

Russia Today Monday

Russia Today, a film by Dr. I. E. Snider of his 24,000-mile journey from Vancouver to Siberia and central Russia as tour photographer with the first group of Canadian travel agents to visit Siberia, will be shown at 8 p.m., Monday at the McPherson Playhouse.

Highlights of the show include scenes of the Siberian industrial city of Irkutsk, the scientific centre, Academy City in Novosibirsk, and Bratsk, an old outpost of Russian conquest that now has the largest power dam in the world.

Also featured are scenes of Alma-Ata, located in the foothills of the Tien Shen mountains, and Tbilisi, capital of the Republic of Georgia.

Driving Laws Revived

Drinking Leads to Jail

Two men learned Friday in Victoria Provincial Court that a recent B.C. Supreme Court ruling nullifying two drinking-driving laws is going to mean jail terms for them.

The two were the first persons to appear in the court on charges of intoxicated driving since the ruling was handed down last March 31.

The charges followed separate incidents, with Henry G. Cross, 45, of 1510 Monterey appearing first and Dennis J. Umpley, 41, of 1715 Cedar Hill Cross Road appearing later.

★ ★ ★

Both pleaded guilty, Cross to a charge of intoxicated driving April 27 in Oak Bay and Umpley to a charge of intoxicated driving April 24 in Esquimalt. Judge J. A. Byers warned both that the sentence for a first offence is a minimum of seven days in jail and a maximum of 30 days, and remanded both to Monday for sentence so they could arrange their affairs.

The March 31 court ruling struck down laws that made offences out of refusing to take a breath-analysis test and driving with a blood alcohol reading of .08 per cent or more. The court said the Criminal Code section containing the laws was proclaimed improperly by the federal cabinet.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson then instructed B.C. police forces to act against drinking drivers on the laws that the new laws replaced, until the court ruling is appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

★ ★ ★

Both new and old laws contained impaired-driving sections, but the old ones also included the intoxicated-driving charge with its mandatory jail term.

Soil Starved

Friday we talked about clearing the spring-flowering plants out of the ornamental flower beds out front and replacing them with summer-blooming annuals. If you stop to think for a moment about these front beds, you will see they are just about the hardest-working pieces of ground anywhere in the garden.

Most of the vegetable plot lies fallow through the winter. Perennials die down. Shrubs lose their leaves and go dormant. The lawn gets a little rest during frosty periods and will sometimes stage a sit-down strike in midsummer, turning brown until rested. Even houseplants get a change of soil occasionally.

★ ★ ★

But the poor old beds out front just keep on going all year round. No sooner is the display of bulbs or wallflowers finished in the spring when they are ripped out to make way for a batch of petunias or snapdragons. In the fall, these come out and the spring-flowering stuff goes back in. The beds themselves never get any real rest.

For this reason, then, every effort should be made to keep the soil in such beds sweet and healthy, replenishing supplies of humus as they become exhausted, and adding a sprinkle of lime to compensate for the calcium taken up by the discarded plants. The soil needn't be especially rich or fertile — the summer annuals make too much leaf and too few flowers in rich ground — but it should be refreshed and in good heart and texture.

★ ★ ★

It is quite a temptation, when the bulbs or wallflowers come out, to slap in the bedding annuals without delay, for bare beds are an eyesore at this time of the year, and these front beds are in the most prominent position in the whole garden. It is most important, though, to take time enough at both spring and fall changeover periods to give these beds a deep and thorough digging. Forking haphazardly here and there is worse than useless.

During the digging, work in plenty of bulky, humus-forming material: compost, leafmould, peat moss, fir bark — all these are good. Mellow old rotted manure or spent mushroom compost are excellent, but if these materials are in short supply, better reserve them for the plants that appreciate rich soil more, and substitute peat moss, lower in nutrients but even more effective in developing good soil texture.

A good plan of operations, if you have the patience, is to dig a trench at one end of the bed, barrowing the excavated soil down to the other end. Place your organic material in this trench after breaking up the subsoil with a digging fork to improve drainage. Then dig out the next bit, throwing the excavated soil into the first trench, and so on right down to the far end where your original pile of soil awaits for filling in the final trench.

This system shifts the whole of the topsoil a foot or so along the bed twice a year, at the same time replenishing humus, admitting air, and improving drainage. Soil will never go sick, stagnant or sour under this treatment.

Lime is best added after digging but before raking and levelling. Preferred time is after the fall digging, and at a rate of two cupfulls per square yard, but if the beds were not limed last fall, give half this dosage now. A little complete fertilizer — a kind recommended for flowers and vegetables, NOT a lawn fertilizer — can be added at the same time. Rake and tread the bed several times to get it level and firm, then go ahead and set out your summer-blooming annuals.

JACK SMITH

Pogo Bird Authority

My friend Dalton has got me in a bind with Doubleday, the big New York publishing company, which is tinking about publishing a book of mine.

They have been reading the manuscript, looking for non sequiturs and mistakes. I don't expect they will find any, but the other day they called me about something in my chapter on birds.

Dalton and I are amateur orithologists. My wife and I often spend Sundays with the Daltons by their pool, and the talk is as likely to be about birds as anything else.

★ ★ ★

It is very much like a field trip, since live birds keep dropping in. Once we saw a nuthatch, which is the only bird that goes down a tree trunk head first.

Actually, Dalton knows more about birds than I do. He's a professor of mythology and has a more disciplined mind. Also, he can spend his summers watching birds, while I have to work.

★ ★ ★

What Doubleday questioned was a passage where Dalton refers to Capt. Wamby's Bird Atlas. I happened to be telling him about seeing a yellow flicker in my yard, and he said it sounded more like a hooded oriole. I said no, it didn't have a hood. And then Dalton said, "I'll look him up in Wamby's."

Now I had never heard of Wamby's, so I said, "Wamby's?"

And Dalton said, "Capt. Wamby's Bird Atlas."

Apparently Doubleday was in the same quandary. They wanted to know whether the book was generally known simply as Wamby's, and if so, should "Wamby's" be italicized, as a title.

I certainly didn't know. I phoned Dalton.

"What I want to know," I said, "is the actual title of the book."

"I think it's Quamby," Dalton said vaguely. "Let's see—Quimby? Quamby?"

"Quamby?" I said. "You said Wamby. I'm sure of that."

"Well, Dalton said, "I used to have this English teacher, name was Quimby. It's possible I've got Wamby mixed up with Quimby. He had this little white beard, like a goat."

★ ★ ★

"Can't you just get the book down and look at it?"

"I don't know," Dalton said. "I'm not sure I have it. I'm not sure I ever did. I'm not sure it exists. You'll have to give me some time."

That's Dalton's flaw. He's been in mythology so long he tends to blur the line between fantasy and reality.

The next night he phoned back. "I've found it," he said. "It's Capt. Wimby, not Wamby."

"Where'd you find it?"

"It's on page 138."

"Page 138 of what?"

"The Pogo Papers," Dalton said. "Simon and Schuster, 1953."

★ ★ ★

"'The Pogo Papers!' You mean Pogo the comic strip?"

"I was damn lucky to find it," Dalton said. "It's in the story where all these animal characters are trying to make the owl leave the swamp. The mole looks him up in Capt. Wamby's to see if he's a migratory bird and ought to be migrating."

"The owl's not migratory, is he?"

"Hell, no," said Dalton. "So they tell him he's a dove. According to Wimby, your dove is a migrant."

I have advised Doubleday to go ahead and italicize it.

SHEILAH GRAHAM

Elke Sommer arrived in London with her husband, writer Joe Hyams, to find that MGM had shuttered it's Boreham Woods studio where Warners had been planning to make Zeppelin, in which she is to star for the J. Ronald Getty Company — he is the son of Paul, the richest man in the world. The sets for Zeppelin had been set up at MGM where the producers also had offices. Now they have to find space in another studio which will be difficult because the Zeppelin sets were on the large side. While the problem is being solved, Elke and Joe are visiting Spain.

The Tony Curtis-Roger Moore, TV series, The Friendly Persuaders, will be made at Pinewood studios. In passing, if Tony can act in his films as beautifully as he performed for the London police when he was arrested recently for carrying "pot," I guarantee that one day he will win an Oscar.

Tony can be enchanting when he feels like it. He can also be very difficult. He is also intelligent. And he knows when to be enchanting.

★ ★ ★

No one can quite understand why MGM brought Cornel Wilde out of a fairly long hibernation to direct No Blade of Grass. I thought the emphasis at Metro was on youth. As a director, Cornel could be interesting, and we'll reserve judgment. We will do the same for the Ava Gardner picture Tan-Lin, directed by Reddy McDowall. Unless you are a Mike Nichols or a reasonable facsimile, it can be risky to give an actor, especially if he is past his prime, a go at directing.

Roddy's next film is supposed to be Rose of Tibet. But I haven't heard much about it lately.

★ ★ ★

The affluent kids who line the block in New York to see Woodstock are grumbling at the admission price, $5 for certain performances. I will be seeing Woodstock at the Cannes film festival where Warners are showing it out of competition. The two official entries from Warners were both made in Europe—Tulips in Haarlem, from Italy, and Hoa Binh, French, about the Vietnam war. They tried to get John Lennon and Yoko to meditate in the street outside the theatre showing Hoa Binh, but Yoko apparently is pregnant again.

★ ★ ★

Howard Hawks is convinced that this new find, Jorge Rivero, now playing the handsome juvenile in Rio Lobo, will become an international star. When Howard goes out on a limb for an unkown, we must believe him. Lauren Bacall was unknown when Hawks gave her the lead with Humphrey Bogart in To Have and Have Not. And Montgomery Clift was quite new to Hollywood when the same director gave him the younger role in Red River.with John Wayne. Angie Dickinson was also a newcomer when he starred her in a western with Wayne. Rivero's role in Rio Lobo was written for Robert Mitchum, but Robert's agent wanted all the gold in Fort Knox, it says here, and Howard decided to take a gamble on a new boy. William Faulkner and Hawks were close friends, and the late writer churned out six scripts for him, including Howard's only flop in four decades of film-making. The picture was The Land of the Pharoahs. "The trouble," Howard explained to me, "was that neither Bill nor I knew how pharoahs talked."

SYDNEY HARRIS

Marxism Cornball

One of the reasons I don't happen to think that the future belongs to the communist world has less to do with political or economic tendencies than with the essential cornball quality of Marxist thought and society.

★ ★ ★

Young people — even those of leftish persuasion — are not attracted to the kind of narrow doctrinaire thinking that has always been dominant in Soviet, and now in Chinese, bureaucracy. If they resent the Establishment here, imagine how they would feel living under the Soviet or Red Chinese Establishment.

The future — if the human race has one — belongs to openness, to flexibility, to experiment, to an acute sense of personal justice.

Communism, as it has been practiced in the half-century since the Russian revolution, is antagonistic to all these attitudes.

It is rigid, monolithic, impersonal, lacking in insight, and really turned much more toward its own version of the past than to the future.

★ ★ ★

Most of all, it has the "cornball" quality I referred to above. By that I mean it lacks any existential feeling for life, any humor, any sense of irony and absurdity in the human condition.

Young people may be initially attracted to the theoretical bases of communism — for Marx really preached a kind of Christian heresy — but in practice the Marxian society no more resembles the vision of its founder than the United States today resembles the ideas in the Declaration of Independence.

★ ★ ★

But while Americans still have a chance to return to those ideas, the communist regimes have no built-in self-correcting mechanism. They can only go deeper and deeper into dogmatism and repression, and nothing but a widespread moral and spiritual revolution (followed by a physical one) can ever get them back on the track.

Communism had a marvelous opportunity to show up the defects and deficiencies of capitalism, but muffed it by desiring power more than justice and placing abstract social goals above human needs.

If anything, the mortal flaws in the Russian system (and its imitators) have made us look better than we really are. And the tragedy is that Marxism, instead of goading us to get better, has made us smug in our superiority.

★ ★ ★

Young people may flirt with communism, as their way of expressing resentment at our faults, but only the idiots and fanatics will stay with it — because, as practiced today anywhere in the world, it offers youth nothing but the authoritarianism they are rejecting.

9 IN MEMORIAM

GRAHAM—Janice. In ever loving memory of our dear Janny, who passed away May 22, 1967.

Sadly missed along life's way,
Quietly remembered every day.
No longer in our life to share
But in our hearts she's ever there.

—Mom, Dad, Jo-Anne and Granny.

SLED—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother Iva Sled who passed away May 9th, 1967.

A million times we've needed.
A million times we've cried
If love could have saved you,
You never would have died.
It broke our hearts to lose you,
But you did not go alone.
For part of us went with you.
The day God called you home.

Ever remembered by husband Jim of Port Alberni, daughter and son-in-law, Dolores and Jack Whittaker and grandchildren, Jackie and Ken, all of Victoria.

"That pink elephant is on every day, isn't he?"

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Friday's answer — Three real-life Mexican rebel leaders played by movie folk were Juarez by Paul Muni, Pancho Villa by Wallace Berry in Viva Villa, and Emiliano Zapata by Brando in Viva Zapata. A fine film.

Today's question is a sneaky. The titles of 10 old movies share the same first two words. The last word or words for the 10 are Ali Baba, Dr. Jekyll, Dracula, Frankenstein, Fury, Kong, Lassie, Monte Cristo, Robin Hood and Sinbad. All you have to do is supply the shared first two words — and give the title role among the 10 played by Tony Curtis. Answers Tuesday.

Saturday Highlights

C-2:00 p.m.—A Boeing film on tests of the 747—4.

C-7:30—Harper Valley, U.S.A., is a special starring Jeannie C. Riley of Harper Valley PTA fame. It's mostly music and comedy and supposed to contain the same philosophy as the song—5.

C-8:00 — A CBC look at some of the pavilions of Expo 70, including B.C.'s. This was done by the CBC French network, I believe—2, 6.

C-10:00—Portrait profiles Robert Mitchum—11.

Saturday Sports

C-11:00 a.m.—Baseball, San Francisco at the Mets—5.

C-11:00—An American Basketball Association playoff game —7, 12.

C-1:00 p.m.—This week's golf event is in Houston — 4.

C-2:00—Kaleidosport includes the Feyenoord-Glasgow soccer surprise — 2, 6.

4:00—The BBC Soccer game is Wales vs. England—2, 6.

6:00—Possibly a Tacoma Little League baseball game—13.

Saturday Movies

9:00 a.m. — Thunder Over Arizona (1956 gumbo). I wouldn't even watch it on a rainy day—11.

10:45—Honeychile (1951 Judy Canova). Civilization labored for centuries for this—11.

2:00 p.m.—The Woman They Almost Lynched (1952 western disgrace). Audrey Totter. Give us the fools and we will finish the job—11.

2:30—Border Incident (fair 1949 wetbacks action). Ricardo Montalban, George Murphy, Howard Da Silva. The old days—4.

3:00 — It Started With Eve (fairly good 1941 romanticomedy). Deanna Durbin, Bob Cummings, Charles Laughton. Naturally, CL steals it—5.

C-7:00—Rampage (so-so 1963 Africadventure). Robert Mitchum, Elsa Martinelli, Jack Hawkins—11.

9:00—Libel (good 1959 English drama). Dirk Bogarde, Olivia de Havilland, fine support—2.

C-9:00—Counterpoint (silly 1968 orchestra vs. Nazis). Charlton Heston, Maximilian Schell. I wouldn't watch it any day—5, 8.

9:00—Westward the Women (1951 western, good of its kind). Robert Taylor, Denise Darcel, good support—12.

11:00 — Beast from 20,000 Fathoms (hilarious 1953 horror)—11.

11:00—The Men (fine 1951 paraplegics drama, Brando's debut). Also Teresa Wright, Jack Webb, many more. Today's best film—13.

11:15 — People Against O'Hara (1951 crooked lawyer). One of Spencer Tracy's worst films—4.

11:15 — Wivew and Lovers (1963 romance), Van Johnson, Janet Leigh. The star is the scriptwriter—8.

C-11:20—Counterpoint (see 9:00)—6.

11:30—List of Adrian Messenger (listless 1963 whodonit). George C. Scott, Dana Wynter and a bunch of supposedly high-camp cameos—7.

C-11:30—Green Mansions (terrible 1959 bird-girl fantasy), Audrey Hepburn, Tony Perkins. The movie they almost lynched—12.

C-11:45—David and Bathsheba (tasteless 1952 Biblical spectacle), Gregory Peck, Susan Hayward and a cast of zillions—2.

1:00 a.m.—Hands of a Strangler (tiresome 1961 horror), Mel Ferrer, Donald Pleasance. This pianist gets a killer's hands, see—4.

1:00—Journey Into Fear (good 1942 Eric Ambler), Orson Welles, Joseph Cotten, Dolores Del Rio. There's an outside chance KIRO may show the 1932 Karloff classic The Mummy instead—7.

1:05—Phantom of the Opera (good 1943 Claude Rains horror). Also Nelson Eddy and the forgettable Susanna whatshername—5.

1:35—Wabash Avenue (woeful 1950 Betty Grable loves Victor Mature). Civilization labors on—12.

Saturday Radio

12:10 noon—An all-Chopin program—CBU-FM (105.7).

2:00 p.m.—Rerun of a profile of Negro actor James Earl Jones—CBU-FM.

6:00—Anyone for Jazz: Harry James—CBU (690).

7:00—On Stage brings back Juliette—CBU.

8:05—Gala Performance has a good program, led by Lalo's Symphonie Espagnole—CFMS (98.5).

Sunday Highlights

C-12:00 noon — Experiment in TV ends its season with a rerun about black and white people in Germany. The late James Edwards stars — 5.

C-7:00 p.m. — Tommy Hunter previews his one-hour country-music series next season — 2, 7.

● C-9:00 — The Fabulous 60s series reaches 1968, a tragic year. CTV will rerun the entire series this summer — 8.

C-9:00 — NET Festival profiles Roberta Peters — 9.

Sunday Sports

● C-11:00 a.m. — Stanley Cup hockey: St. Louis at Boston — 2, 6, 7, 12.

C-12:30 noon — The Grand Prix de Monaco — 4.

C-2:00 p.m. — End of the Houston golf event — 4.

6:00 — Tacoma Cubs baseball, possibly — 13.

Sunday Movies

10:00 a.m. — Road to Denver (1955 western, and detour around it), John Payne, Lee Cobb—11.

1:00 p.m. — Ivy (1947 Joan Fontaine gets hers). One of those will-the-poisoner-get-away-with-it costumers — 5.

1:45 — Highly Dangerous (1951 Dane Clark drivel). This did nothing for the careers of Margaret Lockwood or Victoria's own Marius Goring — 12.

2:15 — None But the Lonely Heart (fairish 1944 soaper). Ethel Barrymore won an Oscar for this, mostly on sentiment — 2.

C-2:30 — Captain Falcon (dubbed 1964 Lex Barker garbage) — 6, 8.

2:30 — Calamity Jane (1953 Doris Day). Dare I say it? Yes, I will. Give me a synonym for Doris Day. That's right, calamity, Jane — 7.

C-3:00 — Rampage (routine 1963 Africadventure), Jack Hawkins, Elsa Martinelli, Jack Hawkins — 11.

6:00—Operation Pacific (1951 John Wayne)—11.

C-6:00—Marines, Let's Go (1961 gung-ho gunk), Tom Tryon, who later became a cardinal. Not bad for a gyrene—12.

● C-9:00—A Man and a Woman (1966 love story), Anouk Aimee, Jean-Louis Trintignant. Pure sentiment, but beautifully done. Try it—4.

11:20—Wives and Lovers (1963 romance), Janet Leigh, Van Johnson. I repeat: the script is better than the people speaking it—6.

C-11:30—Royal Wedding (enjoyable 1951 Fred Astaire). Plus Jane Powell, Sarah Churchill—4.

11:45—I Remember Mama (1948 four-handkerchiefer, well done), Irene Dunne and a big supporting cast, with Pat O'Neill as the black Norwegian uncle. That's an in joke, which means they'll put me in when they figure it out—2.

Sunday Radio

● 11:00 a.m. — Stanley Cup hockey; St. Louis at Boston—CBU (690).

11:00—Handel's Solomon, recorded—CBU-FM (105.7).

5:05 p.m.—Fellow wallowers in nostalgia: never forget Remember When. And let us all thank Ron Robinson—CJVI (900).

8:00—The weekly CBC program report—CBU.

8:05—Operetta Gala includes the Gypsy Baron. Old joke: when a gypsy makes his violin cry, he's charged with assault—CFMS (98.5).

10:00—Cadenza: Grace Bumbry, Vladimir Ashkenazy—CBU.

●—Recommended; C—Color.

Opening lead: King of hearts

Let's say the king of hearts is led against four spades. Declarer has nine blown-in-the-glass winners and unless the fates are extremely unkind it should surely be possible to round out ten tricks by developing dummy's long club or — if that proves impossible — by winning a trick with the king of diamonds.

The sort of plan that leaps to mind is to win the heart, draw the opponents' trumps, and then duck a round of clubs. If the opponents return a heart, you ruff, and then proceed to discard a diamond on the fourth club (provided the clubs were 3-3 originally). If, by unhappy chance, dummy's long club has not become good, you have to lead a diamond from dummy and hope to make a trick with the king.

The only real snag with this line of play is that when you duck a round of clubs the opponents may be nasty enough to insist in winning it in the East hand and returning a diamond. In this case you will be smitten low whenever West has the ace of diamonds, even if the clubs are 3-3.

Once you've isolated the problem, it isn't too difficult to come up with a solution. You simply allow West to win the first trick with the king of hearts!

This keeps matters under control very effectively. If West plays another heart, you discard a club on it and then draw two rounds of trumps. Next you play three rounds of clubs, ruffing the third one with a high trump, and in that way you establish the long club without East ever obtaining the lead.

IS RENTAL EATING YOUR SAVINGS?
$17,500
BUILT IN 1957, this home is strictly for someone who does not wish to give a Landlord $1,800 per year from hard earned money. ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS makes you the owner of a sound, good looking two-bedroom with a fine private garden and garage accommodating today's larger car. $140 per month at less than today's interest handles the balance. Should you ever move again, resale will return your money; save, live and protect your future. I shall be most glad to show you this fine VACANT home. Please call LYNETTE DELABUNT, 385-7707 anytime.

OAK BAY
QUIET COMFORT
$21,500
A well constructed, very solid, well-cared for home. No major renovations required here. Move right in. Immediately I drive you up in front of this home you will be impressed. Not only impressed with general appearance of the house, but the locality and the lack of traffic. Adequate accommodation: TWO BEDROOMS, SEPARATE DINING ROOM, EXTRA ROOM ON SECOND FLOOR. A nicely landscaped lot, yet easy to care for. This won't last long at THIS PRICE IN THIS AREA. For appointments to view, please call B. E. JEFFERY AT 385-7707.

OAK BAY
CLOSE TO VILLAGE
$31,500
Another home in Oak Bay and AT ONLY $31,500. Truly a lot of accommodation for this price. FOUR BEDROOMS OR THREE AND DEN. SEPARATE DINING ROOM, LARGE KITCHEN (14x12). To stress the conveniences, the quiet atmosphere, the real comfort of living in Oak Bay would only be repetitious. This home provides them all. Imagine walking less than a block to the Village and transportation if you must leave the immediate area. Let me show you through. Viewing by appointment through B. E. JEFFERY, 385-7707.

UPLANDS BEST SEAVIEW
$65,000
There is a magnificent view from the sundeck overlooking Cadboro Bay, the Yacht Club and Chatham and Discovery Islands. This unique property offers seclusion and setting in a most unusual garden completely landscaped with automatic sprinkler system for easy maintenance. There are numerous plants and shrubs which will take the eye of the person who loves gardening. A bungalow which will accommodate either a retired couple or a family, is extremely well built and planned. Ground level entrance to generous floor area — living room 23'x16' — separate dining room with slide doors to attractive and useful sundeck. Convenient kitchen and nook also has seaviews. Master bedroom ensuite plus 4-pce. bathroom, small den or office. OPEN STAIRWAY TO 3 BEDROOMS, BATHROOM AND RUMPUS ROOM WITH FIREPLACE. OUTSIDE DOORS LEAD TO GROUND LEVEL PATIO. Besides the glorious views, superb landscaping, there are many many extras in this home. Double carport and parking for at least 3 other vehicles. Exclusive listing. Price $65,000. For appointments to view please call D. G. WHYTE, 385-7707 anytime.

OAK BAY
PLYMOUTH RD.
One of the really fine streets in this pleasant area — we are pleased to offer an attractive split-level home set well back from the street. Cedar siding and used brick match the rustic garden for effect. Sundeck, patios, and an expanse of lawn at the rear, secluded from other homes, make the home ideal for indoor-outdoor living. From the slate floored entry we find the living room, dining room and hallways are all covered with expensive wool wall-to-wall carpet. Living room has fireplace wall, dining room patio doors. Bright, well cupboarded kitchen. Built-in wall oven and counter top range, nook area. Up a half flight of stairs to 3 bedrooms and full tiled fourpiece bathroom. Master bedroom 13x14 ensuite with 2-pce. bathroom. Patio doors lead to westerly facing sundeck. Few steps down to Rumpus room 12.6x24. Book shelves, Brick fireplace wall and seat. Utility area has 2-pce. bathroom. Good work bench — storage area. A 7% mortgage is available. This home located on a lot approximately 81.4x180 is realistically priced at $45,000. Call D. G. WHYTE, 385-7707 anytime.

FAIRFIELD EAST

IMMACULATE!
This is a real show home. Even the deep, well-landscaped lot (with fruit trees, too), is extremely well cared for. The home is spacious, spotless and very tastefully decorated. You'll love the large living room with its attractive fireplace, plush wall-to-wall carpeting over hardwood and a tremendous expanse of color-keyed draperies (that go with the home) over windows on 2 adjoining walls. Through double glass doors is a spacious and charming separate dining room with a bay window. The ceramic tile vanity bath is very tasteful and attractive. A nice sized Rec room makes a terrific spot for parties. Also in the full basement is a drive-in garage and a work and utility area plumbed and wired for washer and dryer. This is truly an exceptional home in a handy area and is a pleasure to show. Just $25,000 and 8 per cent financing can be assumed.

Qualicum Bus Protest

'Arrogant' Bennett Angers Area Parents

By HUBERT BEYER

An "arrogant and rude" Premier Bennett told a delegation of 90 Parksville area residents Friday morning he had no time to talk to them, a member of the delegation said later.

The delegation, which included about 75 school children, was in Victoria to protest cutbacks in the school bus service recently approved by the Qualicum board.

These cutbacks, the delegation said, were "arbitrary and dangerous." Children would be picked up and left off on the main highways exposing them to constant danger of being run over by big logging trucks, they argued.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Brigite Gallant, chairman of the school District 69 Parents Association, said in an interview that deputy education minister Gordon Perry had promised the delegation he would meet with the Qualicum school board in an attempt to solve the problem.

"We haven't given up hope. All the board needs to provide the same school bus service as before is $4,500," she said.

"At least Mr. Perry was willing to talk to us. Mr. Bennett behaved in a very arrogant and rude manner," Mrs. Gallant said.

"We met him on the steps of the legislative buildings and asked him if he could do something for us, but he just kept walking and said he didn't want to. He told us to go and see our school board. He said he had nothing to do with our complaint."

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Gallant said when she asked the premier if the provincial government could pay the $4,500 to assure the safety of school children, Mr. Bennett answered with a flat no.

"He didn't even look at us. He just had a silly grin on his face. I think he should have a little more courtesy as premier of this province when a delegation of concerned people try to make him listen."

She said the children who came to Victoria Friday had been kept out of school in protest over the cutback. Another 100 children, not part of the delegation, had also stayed away from school.

Affected by the board's decision are children from several schools in the outlying areas of Parksville.

Mrs. Gallant said the parents association would hold another meeting at 8 p.m. Sunday in the Parksville Community Hall. At that time, members would decide if their children are to be kept out of school until the problem has been resolved.

"This is more than just a disagreement. We are genuinly horrified by the prospect that our children will be dropped by school buses right on the two major highways — the Alberni Highway and the Island Highway," she said.

★ ★ ★

"Both roads are extremely dangerous. Logging trucks are going along those highways all the time at speeds of more than 68 miles an hour."

What was worse, she said, was that both highways were completely dark at school closing time during the winter.

"In most places there are no shoulders and in certain areas, cougars are a threat to small children," she said.

Plaque Marks Liberation

Cobble Hill residents of Dutch origin have presented local branch of Royal Canadian Legian with wooden plaque, set in tulip bed, to commemorate liberation of Holland by Canadian troops 25 years ago. Present for ceremony at Cobble Hill cenotaph were Mrs. Jannes Poelman, Mrs. John H. Wikkering, Sir Allan Mackenzie, Legion member, and Jan van der Have. Van der Have recalled occupation and liberation from personal experience in speech during ceremony. —(Klaus Muenter)

$100 Levy

Courtenay Fined On Pollution Count

COURTENAY — The city of Courtenay was fined $100 in provincial court Friday for "allowing a deleterious substance (oil) to enter water frequented by fish."

The charge was laid by the fisheries department after oil seeped into the Courtenay River from an airstrip at the civic marina.

The city entered a guilty plea.

Defence counsel T. G. Ryan pointed out to the court that the one fact that caused oil to enter the marina water was "an act of God." A sudden cloudburst on April 29 caused the newly-oiled area near the airstrip to run off, eventually entering the water.

He said: "The culpability is purely technical. It will no doubt be of considerable satisfaction to the person who laid the information that the city will contribute to the federal government."

The charge was laid by Bill Webber a federal fisheries officer, who told the court that traces of oil were found around the banks, floats, pilings and boats.

★ ★ ★

"Many thousands of salmon fry were in the water at the time," he pointed out. He did not refer to any fish being killed.

Webber told the court that he had suggested to the works superintendent that a field drain should be blocked. That was done later the same day. He noted, however, that since the city had an attendant at the marina, this could have been done immediately and would have prevented the oil drainage.

In his summation, Ryan said his information indicated that no fish had died as the result of oil entering the water and suggested that oil was deposited on the water every time a motor boat started up.

Ryan told the court that the oil was not applied by the city but by a contractor. He noted that the area which was oiled was estimated to be 10 to 20 feet higher than the marina and that the closest margin of oil to the bank was 10 feet or more. Intervening was a "Fairly wide" flower bed so that initially the oil was not placed in a precarious position.

He said: 'It is ironic that the city which was trying to control air pollution by oiling the strip, should be penalized." He asked that the minimum penalty be levied.

Judge John Ryland, before passing sentence said: "This court of course, has no jurisdiction over the Almighty."

Two Sent To Trial By Judge

COURTENAY — Two men were committed for trial by Judge Eric Winch after preliminary hearings ended Thursday.

Norman Thomas Emery of Merville is charged with rape, allegedly involving a young pregnant Merville woman.

The preliminary hearing took nearly two days to complete. Emery is being defended by Harry Reddin and Donald Barker. T. G. Ryan conducted the case for the crown.

The second man was Reginald Thomas Baine of Hornby Island. He is charged with possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking, alleged to have occurred near Buckley Bay April 12.

Both men were granted bail until the trial dates are arranged.

Meetings Set By IWA

DUNCAN — Two meetings of Duncan IWA local 1-80 have been arranged to hear reports on the current dispute between the IWA and MacMillan Bloedel at Chemainus. Sawmill workers will meet at the Odeon Theatre, Duncan, Sunday at 11 a.m. and loggers will go to the Native Sons' Hall, Ladysmith, at 1:30 a.m.

There is a company application to B.C. Supreme Court against the local and its officers in connection with the tugboat strike.

Cowichan Action Must Have Districts' Support

NANAIMO — A report from Duncan that the Cowichan School Board has decided to opt out of the Malaspina College system requires clarification, according to Dr. W. R. McMillan, chairman of Malaspina College council.

"Under the recently passed amendments to the Public Schools Act, a school board must have the unanimous approval of the other participating school districts as well as the consent of the Council of Public Instruction and the minister of education before that district can withdraw from participation," Dr. MacMillan said.

★ ★ ★

He pointed out that there were some other areas of misunderstanding arising from misinterpretation of the statement by Cowichan board chairman David Haywood.

"Mr. Haywood did not say there was any violation of the present agreement. It is incorrect to say that the ratio of students attending the college determines each school district's share," said MacMillan.

★ ★ ★

MacMillan said that the present agreement provided for a uniform tax levy in each of the participating school districts.

"The mill rate is 1.8 for Malaspina College and the homeowner in Duncan pays exactly the same rate as the homeowner in Nanaimo or any other community in the college region."

Concern was voiced by MacMillan and college authorities about the effect the Cowichan announcement would have upon students from the Duncan area.

"Applications for admission for the fall semester are being accepted and this will continue throughout the summer," MacMillan said. "Students already enrolled, or graduating students from the Cowichan area should be assured that Malaspina will continue to accept them at the lower registration fees that participating school districts enjoy."

Students from the Cowichan district would also continue to be eligible for all travel and housing subsidies as provided to other participating school districts, he said.

Telephone Poll

Some Views Heard Better Than Others

NEW YORK (UPI) — There's a telephone number in Washington that ostensibly has been set up to receive calls from people wanting to voice approval or disapproval of President Nixon's movement of troops into Cambodia.

UPI in New York made four telephone calls in rapid succession Friday morning. Two were votes favorable to the president, and the caller was immediately switched to someone who answered, "White House."

The other two callers were against the president. They never got past the first man to answer the telephone in Washington. Here's how the calls went:

UPI—"I'd like to register a vote for the president.

White House—"Yes, you certainly can."

UPI—"This is the White House, I hope."

White House—"Yes. Where do you live?"

UPI—"New Jersey."

White House—"All right, thank you very much for your call."

□

UPI—"Listen, are you taking votes?"

White House—"No, I'm not taking votes. Are you taking votes?"

UPI—"I'd like to register a vote against President Nixon."

White House—"You're way late. Where have you been?"

UPI—"You're not taking votes?"

White House—"I'm not taking any votes and haven't been taking any votes."

□

UPI—"I'd like to register a vote for President Nixon's policy, please."

White House—"You certainly can. Can I have your name, please?"

UPI—"James Coburn, Weehawken, N.J."

White House—"I'll take a message if you want to give me one. Give it to me."

UPI—"I don't want to say too much, except that I am thoroughly in agreement with everything that the president has said."

White House—"Okay, James, and we really appreciate that now, and I can tell you that he does, too. Thank you very much."

□

UPI—"I understand you are taking votes and I'd like to say I'm against the president and Vice-President Agnew, too, and the policy. Can I register that, please?"

White House—"You want to vote on the president?"

UPI—"Yeah, I'm against the president and against what he has been saying."

White House—"This poll is being taken on the extension of troops into Cambodia and not on whether or not you're against the president."

UPI—"I'm against the extension of troops into Cambodia and against any more American troops going anywhere in Southeast Asia."

White House—"Where are you calling from?"

UPI—"New York City."

White House—"From New York. Well, this office is closed here in Washington. It's almost six o'clock."

Senator Takes Junket

LONDON (CP) — Senator Keith Davey, chairman of the special Canadian Senate committee on mass media, has spent a week in London studying general newspaper operations and ownership.

Accompanied by Senator William Petten, a committee member, and Borden Spears, the committee's executive consultant, he confered with the British Press Council, watchdog over newspaper ethics, and with the monopolies commission which rules over mergers. They also held talks with various journalists' organizations.

They were entertained at lunch Friday by Lord Thomson of Fleet, Canadian-born publisher.

Jesse James Is Dead

UNION, Mo. — A jury has agreed that outlaw Jesse James was slain April 3, 1882. The ruling was on a suit filed by his 82-year-old daughter-in-law, Stella James of Los Angeles.

The suit was sparked by a $10,000 offer from the operator of the Jesse James museum for proof that a man representing himself as James in 1948, was not the actual outlaw.

□

WASHINGTON — The government cleared the way for deportation of Yvonne D'Angers, who once earned $750 weekly at Caesar's Palace, Las Vegas, as a topless dancer. Evidence showed she married an American, paid him $100 upon marriage and another $100 when they were divorced, to try and forestall being sent back to her native Iran.

□

CHARLESTON, W. Va. — Police Chief Dallas Bias says he has directed his officers that in any event where the flag is being torn up or burned in their presence, "they are to risk their lives and the lives of others to rescue the flag and to retain its honor." He said he expects his men to shoot "if their life is in danger while attempting to rescue the flag."

□

ATLANTA — The appearance of Vice-President Spiro Agnew at the dedication of the Stone Mountain Confederate memorial carving will be "an affront to Gen. Robert E. Lee," Emory University history professor Bell Wiley, said.

□

MUSKEGON, Mich. — James Benton fought city hall but he's not sure he won. The city built a garage which overlapped onto his land. He was offered $500 for the strip. He turned it down saying the city assessed his land at $100 a front foot . . . it was worth $200. So he got his $1,000 and a promise to reassess his land to reflect a "fair market value."

□

CHILLIWACK — John Nicol, 75, was charged with non-capital murder and attempted murder following the shooting death of his wife and the wounding of a son. Killed was Jessie Nicol, 62. Shot in the shoulder was John David Nicol, 39.

D'Angers

□

SAN FRANCISCO — John Fell Stevenson, youngest son of the late Adlai Stevenson, seeks the custody of his three children in divorce papers filed against his socialite wife Natalie Owings Stevenson.

□

NORWICH, England — A Norwich court gave a conditional discharge to Bernard Stately, 38, an auctioneer who admitted 13 charges of selling century-old rare birds' eggs, including a black-tailed godwit's and a long-eared owl's.

□

HOLLYWOOD — Cary Grant, 65, denies he's father of a child born to former studio employee, Cynthia Bouron, 32, who filed paternity suit this week.

□

LOS ANGELES — The five-year marriage of Dennis Wilson, a member of The Beach Boys, and his wife Carole, was dissolved while the singer was on tour in Australia. The couple's $125,000 home was ordered sold with the proceeds to be divided between them.

□

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau may soon be evicted from his summer residence at Harrison Lake. National Capital Commission chairman Douglas Fullerton said the lake will have to be made public.

Nixon Says He, Dissenters Have Same Goals

Tension Grips Capital

From AP, UPI

WASHINGTON — An air of tense uncertainty settled over Washington Friday night as the United States capital steeled itself for an invasion by perhaps 100,000 persons who wish to demonstrate their contempt for President Nixon's war policies.

The unknown quantity was whether leaders pledged to nonviolent protest could control the situation.

The dimensions of potential trouble were reflected in a number of extraordinary events:

● National Guard members were advised to stand by in all states to watch over armories and thwart possible arson or violence.

● Republican governors cancelled a spring meeting and Nixon summoned all 50 governors to meet with him Monday to discuss "the disruption of peace, violence and potential violence throughout the nation."

● Some 227 colleges and universities throughout the U.S. suspended classes.

In a televised press conference Nixon said Friday night his decision to send U.S.

Towboat-Forest Squeeze

400 More In Layoffs

Four hundred more Victoria area men will be out of work Monday when the Victoria sawmill division of B.C. Forest Products Ltd. closes down for lack of logs, company manager Walter Nelson said Friday.

They will be added to the 200 laid off Friday from the Point Ellice division when they refused to handle logs branded "hot" by striking Canadian Merchant Service Guildsmen, causing that plant to close down.

Nelson said there are some logs on hand at the adjacent plant, but they will run out some time Monday.

* * *

The company has applied for a court injunction to restrain International Woodworkers of America members employed by them from refusing to handle "hot" logs.

The company expects a further four of the company's 22 logging camps across the province to shut down Monday affecting another 100 men.

* * *

An estimated 5,000 men have now been laid off in shutdowns throughout B.C. following refusal of IWA members to handle logs labelled "hot" by the Canadian Merchant Service Guild.

Hardest hit by the six-day-old towboat strike is MacMillan Bloedel which has been forced to curtail operations at nine of its logging and sawmill divisions, effecting some 4,000 men.

* * *

The New Westminster division closed Friday putting 300 out of work.

In Nanaimo, Mayo Lumber Co. has applied for an injunction against the guild on the grounds the latter marked as "hot" logs which were brought to the mill before the start of the strike.

There are about 200 employees at the mill, members of the IWA, who will be out of work if the company cannot obtain the injunction. IWA members have been respecting "hot" stickers on logs and not using them.

Mill manager Gordon McGavin says the mill is operating on a day-to-day basis.

The newly-opened CIPA mill is virtually closed with 60 men out of work.

The Harmac mill, with 1,100 employees, is still in operation.

Crown Zellerbach reported Friday it is continuing to operate at all its B.C. divisions but is reviewing the situation on a day-to-day basis.

Several smaller companies have already been forced to shut down and spokesmen for the industry said further layoffs are imminent if the towboat dispute continues.

Injunction applications continued to flow into B.C. Supreme Court in Vancouver

Vancouver

Protest Jams Streets

VANCOUVER (CP) — A crowd of between 400 and 500 milled around the Vancouver police station Friday night shouting obscenities at officers and demanding the release of demonstrators they said were arrested during a protest in the downtown area.

The demonstrators were earlier confronted by police in the heart of the city during a protest march against the United States' involvement in Cambodia and the shooting of four students at Kent State University in Ohio.

* * *

The demonstrations started at the U.S. Consulate where a window was kicked in and U.S. flags burned. A bank window was also smashed.

At the police station, the crowd chanted "Set our brothers free" as armed guards blocked the entrances to the building.

There were no reports of violence at the police station although one demonstrator stood on a car and urged the crowd to rush the building. He was not supported.

* * *

Police at the rear of the station were issued billy clubs, and dogs were removed from their kennels to quell any uprising. The crowd had thinned out slightly by 11 p.m.

There were no immediate reports of arrests and police

Plainclothes policeman pulls suspect from Burnaby brush

After Burnaby Robbery

Dogs Flush Out Suspects

VANCOUVER (CP) — One man was wounded in the shoulder as police used tracking dogs to flush out two robbery suspects in a bushland area of the Burnaby suburb of Vancouver Friday.

Charged later with robbery were Barry Charles Klashinsky, 29, of Surrey and Gerald Joseph Loftus, 31, of Vancouver.

* * *

The chase started after two armed and masked men escaped with about $3,500 from an employees credit union office at a milk plant. When the getaway car hit a parked truck, the men fled into the bush on foot, leaving a sawed-off rifle and a quantity of money behind.

* * *

Police and dogs surrounded the area and flushed two men from the bushes after wounding one of them in the shoulder. The wound was described as not serious.

Meanwhile, police were continuing a search for two men who escaped earlier in the day with $9,000 after a bank robbery in South Vancouver.

The men, who produced pistols and ordered customers to the floor, fled by car from a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada. Police later found the getaway car abandoned a few blocks from the bank.

Sino-Soviet Affection Feeds on Cambodia

LONDON (AP) — China and the Soviet Union have joined in spreading word that United States President Nixon's intervention in Cambodia has opened the way for a Peking-Moscow reconciliation.

This development was dramatized by reports circulating among Chinese diplomats here Friday that a ranking Soviet official has hurried to Peking, supposedly bearing proposals for coordinated and broadened Communist resistance against the Americans in Indochina.

Ottawa Holds Firm

Postal Talks May Resume

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiators for the federal treasury board and the Council of Postal Unions are expected to resume talks Tuesday in an attempt to prevent a national strike, a reliable source said Friday.

The meeting has not been officially confirmed by either side. It is expected the first priority will be to sort out the issues dumped back on the bargaining table by a conciliation board report made public Thursday.

The gap between the wage demands of the postal unions and the increase offered by the government remains the biggest obstacle to a settlement.

* * *

The union view, filed in the report by labor representative William Walsh of Hamilton, would raise base rates in the post office by 23.3 per cent in a two-year contract expiring Oct. 1, 1971. Wages for postal employees now start at $2.57 an hour and reach $3.23 for dispatchers and other supervisory staff.

Treasury Board president C. M. Drury has indicated the government is sticking by the proposal of its representative on the conciliation board . . . a 30-month contract with a 16-per-cent wage increase.

Press Dispute On Mainland Near Solution

VANCOUVER (CP) — Negotiators for Pacific Press Ltd. said Friday they will recommend acceptance of an agreement worked out by the British Columbia mediation commission, and aimed at ending a labor dispute which has closed Vancouver's two daily newspapers since Feb. 15.

●

A spokesman for the company, which produces the morning Province and evening Sun, said the papers could be on the street by next weekend if both sides ratify the proposed agreement.

Union negotiators last week agreed to recommend acceptance of the package, which is retroactive to Nov. 1, 1969, to their members.

The company earlier balked at the Nov. 1 date, saying it would accept the settlement if the contracts with the five unions were dated from Jan. 1.

* * *

However, in a letter Friday to the mediation commissioners, the company said it was not made clear to its negotiators that settlement proposals were a completed package, not subject to future negotiations, and it now would accept the Nov. 1 date.

A spokesman for the unions — mailers, stereotypers, printers, pressmen and the Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild — said the unions will hold separate meetings Sunday to vote on the proposed settlement.

In a prepared statement, commissioners Pen Baskin and Alistair Pollock said they will meet with both sides at 10 a.m. today to work out procedures for resumption of operations.

* * *

"Therefore, the proposals in their entirety will be placed before union memberships and company principals for ratification," the statement said.

The Nov. 1 effective date for the contract had been a key issue in the dispute, with company negotiators seeking a later date.

The two commissioners recommended that the contract cover a three-year

Experts Hammer Out Anti-Gas Measures

By BILL THOMAS

A cluster of senior officials from federal government agencies and provincial civil defence organizations met in Victoria behind closed doors Friday morning to ponder what they all conider close to impossible—a leak of nerve gas if the U.S. government ships stores of the deadly weapon from Okinawa to Umatilla, Oregon.

Canada's chemical warfare experts from the defence research establishment at Suffield, Alberta, explained the effects of the toxic establishments at Suffield, Alberta, explained the effects of the toxic gases. Civil defence organizers listened and will try to work out plans for combatting an improbably disaster.

Members of the RCMP, CBC, Canadian Forces, along with staffers of the federal departments of fisheries, health and welfare, agriculture and fisheries, external affairs and federal emergency measures organization opened a series of talks that will go on until the potential crisis is over.

While the experts from Suffield, who know all the details of silent, odorless death, were putting the odds up with the Irish Sweepstakes, it was obvious from the tone of the participants who spoke to the press following the meeting they have no intention of holding a winning ticket.

The Friday meeting will be followed up with meetings of specialists in the various facets of civil defence and emergency measures. This meeting marked the first time federal and provincial officials have offered public statements on their concern at the U.S. proposal.

Layoffs Protested By Work-to-Rule

NEW WESTMINSTER, (CP) — The British Columbia Hospital Employees Union have began a work-to-rule campaign at Royal Columbian hospital to protest staff layoffs.

The hospital board Wednesday decided to cut staff by 50 because of austerity measures instituted by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark. Vice-chairman Dr. R. D. MacNeill quit in protest.

* * *

Meanwhile, hospital director R. B. Thomson Thursday posted a notice to staff saying the quality and quantity of care at the hospital will suffer because of the cuts.

His notice formally advised staff there will be layoffs but gave no details. Medical director R. G. Foulkes, however, said the 50 will include 26 nurses and eight other medical employees.

The union, with 550 members at RCH before staff cuts were announced, said it will post information pickets around the hospital next week. The union has 8,000 members in the province.

RCH board chairman Jack Biggs said the staff laid off will not qualify for unemployment insurance benefits because the provincial government has never agreed to pay a share of contributions.

* * *

A press release outlined service cuts:

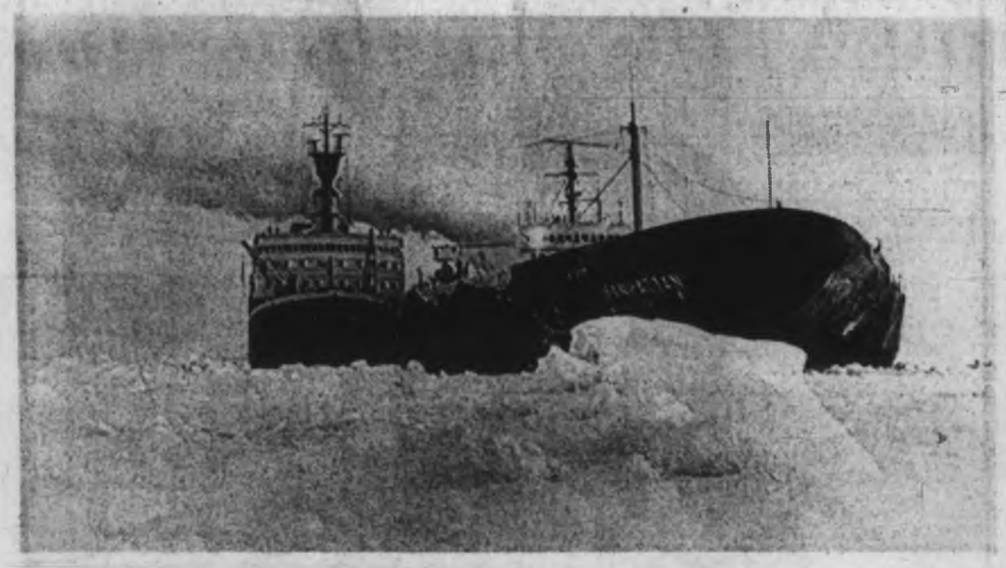
● Visiting hours, presently from 2-8 p.m., will be 7-8 p.m.

● Admissions and discharges will be closely regulated.

● Non - essential operations, such as plastic surgery, will not be performed weekends.

● Electro-shock treatment for psychiatric patients will be ended and patients referred to Hollywood or Riverview hospitals.

● Out - patient fees, cost of private and semi - private rooms and meal prices in the staff cafeteria will all increase.



Stuck in Ice

U.S. tanker Manhattan, loading supplies on Canadian escort icebreaker Louis St. Laurent during stop off Baffin Island, has been stalled by heavy ice in attempt to reach Navy Board Inlet in Arctic. Icebreaker reported Friday both ships were unsuccessful. Voyage expected to end May 15 will be delayed by severe conditions.—(CP)

Another Invasion Landed in Cuba

MIAMI (AP) — A second group of anti-Castro raiders has landed in Cuba, an exile radio broadcast says.

The invaders were described as commandos of the Miami-based Christian Nationalist Movement. They reported no opposition in landing.

The invasion report came three weeks after Fidel Castro said his forces crushed a raiding party mounted by another exile group.

Anti-Student

From AP

Collegiate protests, some peaceful, some violent, multiplied throughout the United States Friday on the eve of a scheduled mass demonstration in Washington against American involvement in Cambodia and the death of four Kent State University students. But signs of counter-action cropped up on the streets of New York and elsewhere.

●

Scores of construction workers in hard hats left their jobs in lower Manhattan and charged with swinging fists into a mass of anti-war demonstrators outside the New York Stock Exchange on Wall Street.

Then, unfurling six American flags, the workmen paraded up Broadway to City Hall, as ticker tape was thrown in their path from skyscraper windows. They picked up adherents by the hundreds as they marched.

In Columbus, about 5,000 Ohio college students gathered in a peaceful anti-war demonstration in front of the Statehouse Friday. They were met by state officials who promised their petitions would be answered.

★ ★ ★

In Syracuse, N.Y., pupils of Central Technical High School attacked a band of their anti-war schoolmates at a rally led by Syracuse University students seeking to gain support against the war in Southeast Asia.

About 200 University of Mexico students on an anti-war march ran into an equal number of high school pupils who harassed and sought to block the marchers.

The National Student Association in Washington said it had reports that 437 of the 1,500 colleges in the U.S., nearly 30 per cent, were on strike or closed.

★ ★ ★

Students by the thousands marched peacefully in Austin, Tex., Sacramento, Calif., Newark, N.J., and Seattle, Wash. Protesters at Skagit Valley College in Mount Vernon, Wash., trimmed their hair and beards in an effort to get their anti-war message across better with a neater appearance.

However, firebombs or other explosives went off at Marquette University and the University of North Carolina.

Blazes were reported at the Universities of Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota-Duluth, Valparaiso, Ind., and a state university campus at New Paltz, N.Y.

Agnew Agrees:

The Word Is Murder

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vice-President Spiro Agnew says the fatal shooting of four Kent State University students by Ohio National Guard trooops was murder if guardsmen fired without warning and without having been fired upon.

"I don't condone their action," he said of the guardsmen. "They responded with far too much force than they should have."

★ ★ ★

Agnew's remarks were in an interview Thursday night by David Frost, whose television talk show is syndicated by Westinghouse. The videotaped interview will be aired next Wednesday.

Frost asked Agnew: "If it is discovered there was no shot fired at them by a sniper, and they just opened fire without a warning shot or anything . . . is the word for that 'murder'?"

"Yes, but not first-degree," the vice-president replied.

★ ★ ★

". . . When there is no premeditation, but simply an overresponse in the heat of anger that results in a killing, it is a murder, and it certainly cannot be condoned."

Agnew said the guardsmen "were probably under a great amount of tension. One or two may have lost control and that caused the tragedy . . .

"I would guess that if a very volatile young man got a brick in the neck or in the ribs he might just blow up . . ."

"It seems to me," Agnew said, "that had the rocks not been thrown there would have been no chance of the killing."

Frost: "And I suppose had the tear gas not been thrown, the rocks wouldn't have been thrown?"

★ ★ ★

Agnew: "That's right, and had the buildings not been burned and the threatening assembly not been conducted, the tear gas wouldn't have been thrown."

Frost: "I suppose we could go on: had the president not announced the excursion into Cambodia maybe the demonstrations wouldn't have taken place."

Agnew: "Well, now you are going back into an interesting area."

Main Question Today: How Deep U.S. Split?

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The most terrifying aspect of Senator William Fulbright's statement that the United States today is facing the gravest constitutional crisis since the Civil War is the absence of contradiction.

Certainly there is no lack of evidence that the U.S. is a country divided — what remains to be assessed is the depth and breadth of the division.

Although the student youth, planning a protest march on Washington today, and the Republican administration of Richard Nixon are the obvious major combatants, it is more than a struggle between youth and maturity, iconoclast and the establishment.

Even within the cabinet there is dissent, as indicated by Interior Secretary Walter Hickel's rather sensational "heed youth" letter to Nixon as he plots strategy for dealing with the national protest against his conduct of the war in Indochina.

★ ★ ★

Perhaps even more significant throughout many of the country's universities is the recent conversion of a growing body of faculty to the causes of its students.

The weekend's demonstration may provide the best indicator yet on how broadly based is the general dissent.

★ ★ ★

Nison's plight, as thousands of Americans go on the march for one cause or another as never before in the country's history, has already moved one television commentator to recall the appropriate words of India's late Mohandas Gandhi:

"There go my people. I must hurry and catch up with them, for I am their leader."

Garage Gives Shop Location

By BEA HAMILTON

FULFORD HARBOUR — A garage means something more than just a place for parking cars for Mrs. Mary Mollet of Fulford Harbour.

She decided some time ago that she would like to be more than just a housewife and had an idea for a little wayside market for garden supplies. She looked at the spacious garage outside her home and thought it would make an ideal location.

She would just turn the garage into a market garden and send the cars out into the orchard, she thought.

Her husband Capt. Les Mollet was agreeable and he and sons Ted and Bob set to work on the conversion.

Within a short time, Sunny Side Garden Supplies opened for business.

The Molletts have been connected with Salt Spring Island for a long time. The family arrived there before the turn of the century. Mrs. Mollet comes from the Bennett family which also has a long association with the island.

One difference about Mrs. Mollet's stall is that she specializes in tools and garden gloves for women.

"Ordinary gloves are so large and tools are heavy for many women," she said.

Nanaimo Promotion

Only Few People Turn Out For Talks on Conventions

NANAIMO — Fewer than 25 people attended a seminar on convention promotion in Nanaimo Tuesday.

Eric Hollett, a motel owner, said it was "too bad more people couldn't be there to get the message."

Panelists were Ben Lowery, chairman of the Greater Vancouver Conventions Bureau and Jim Bensley, general manager of the Greater Vancouver Visitors Bureau.

The provincial government's film on Nanaimo's world championship bathtub race was shown for the first time at the meeting.

★ ★ ★

Bensley and Lowery talked of the need for a full or part-time consultant to promote the idea of Nanaimo becoming a convention centre.

Important is the support of the local tourist industry and Chamber of Commerce, Bensley said.

★ ★ ★

Heading the tourism committee of the Nanaimo chamber is David Hart.

Hollett, a member of this committee, has compiled a number of facts sheets outlining facilities available in Nanaimo for conventions.

The committee hopes to have this information in a brochure form for use in convention promotion.

Hollett said, "the tourist industry cannot progress with a working season of three months a year."

Bensley called convention delegates "de luxe tourists," who come at the time of year when they are most needed by the tourist industry.

Protest Over Bus Cutbacks

'Arrogant' Bennett Angers Qualicum District Parents

By HUBERT BEYER

An "arrogant and rude" Premier Bennett told a delegation of 90 Parksville area residents Friday morning he had no time to talk to them, a member of the delegation said later.

The delegation, which included about 75 school children, was in Victoria to protest cutbacks in the school bus service recently approved by the Qualicum board.

These cutbacks, the delegation said, were "arbitrary and dangerous." Children would be picked up and left off on the main highways exposing them to constant danger of being run over by big logging trucks, they argued.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Brigite Gallant, chairman of the school District 69 Parents Association, said in an interview that deputy education minister Gordon Perry had promised the delegation he would meet with the Qualicum school board in an attempt to solve the problem.

"We haven't given up hope. All the board needs to provide the same school bus service as before is $4,500," she said.

"At least Mr. Perry was willing to talk to us. Mr. Bennett behaved in a very arrogant and rude manner," Mrs. Gallant said.

"We met him on the steps of the legislative buildings and asked him if he could do something for us, but he just kept walking and said he didn't want to. He told us to go and see our school board. He said he had nothing to do with our complaint."

Mrs. Gallant said when she asked the premier if the provincial government could pay the $4,500 to assure the safety of school children, Mr. Bennett answered with a flat no.

"He didn't even look at us. He just had a silly grin on his face. I think he should have a little more courtesy as premier of this province when a delegation of concerned people try to make him listen."

She said the children who came to Victoria Friday had been kept out of school in protest over the cutback. Another 100 children, not part of the delegation, had also stayed away from school.

Affected by the board's decision are children from several schools in the outlying areas of Parksville.

Mrs. Gallant said the parents association would hold another meeting at 8 p.m. Sunday in the Parksville Community Hall. At that time, members would decide if their children are to be kept out of school until the problem has been resolved.

"This is more than just a disagreement. We are genuinly horrified by the prospect that our children will be dropped by school buses right on the two major highways — the Alberni Highway and the Island Highway," she said.

★ ★ ★

"Both roads are extremely dangerous. Logging trucks are going along those highways all the time at speeds of more than 60 miles an hour."

What was worse, she said, was that both highways were completely dark at school closing time during the winter.

"In most places there are no shoulders and in certain areas, cougars are a threat to small children," she said.

$100 Levy

Courtenay Fined On Pollution Count

COURTENAY — The city of Courtenay was fined $100 in provincial court Friday for "allowing a deleterious substance (oil) to enter water frequented by fish."

The charge was laid by the fisheries department after oil seeped into the Courtenay River from an airstrip at the civic marina.

The city entered a guilty plea.

Defence counsel T. G. Ryan pointed out to the court that the one fact that caused oil to enter the marina water was "an act of God." A sudden cloudburst on April 29 caused the newly-oiled area near the airstrip to run off, eventually entering the water.

★ ★ ★

He said: "The culpability is purely technical. It will no doubt be of considerable satisfaction to the person who laid the information that the city will contribute to the federal government."

The charge was laid by Bill Webber a federal fisheries officer, who told the court that traces of oil were found around the banks, floats, pilings and boats.

"Many thousands of salmon fry were in the water at the time," he pointed out. He did not refer to any fish being killed.

Webber told the court that he had suggested to the works superintendent that a field drain should be blocked. That was done later the same day. He noted, however, that since the city had an attendant at the marina, this could have been done immediately and would have prevented the oil drainage.

In his summation, Ryan said his information indicated that no fish had died as the result of oil entering the water and suggested that oil was deposited on the water every time a motor boat started up.

Ryan told the court that the oil was not applied by the city but by a contractor. He noted that the area which was oiled was estimated to be 10 to 20 feet higher than the marina and that the closest margin of oil to the bank was 10 feet or more. Intervening was a "Fairly wide" flower bed so that initially the oil was not placed in a precarious position.

He said: 'It is ironic that the city which was trying to control air pollution by oiling the strip, should be penalized." He asked that the minimum penalty be levied.

Judge John Ryland, before passing sentence said: "This court of course, has no jurisdiction over the Almighty."

Details of Merger Will Be Explained

NANAIMO — Representatives from more than 300 Nanaimo area organizations have been invited to a meeting Thursday to hear details on the proposal to amalgamate Harewood, Departure Bay, Nanaimo, Wellington, Chase River and Northfield.

The amalgamation vote will be held June 6.

The meeting will be held in the board room at the Nanaimo Credit Union, 250 Albert, starting at 8 p.m. It is being sponsored by the Citizens Committee for a New Nanaimo. The committee, chaired by Ted Barsby, is composed of 26 citizens from throughout the area who believe that amalgamation is essential if Nanaimo is to become a prosperous and dynamic city.

While the meeting is primarily for those invited, it is also open to the public. A number of other public meetings to explain details of the amalgamation referendum are being arranged.

New Bishop Consecrated

By DON GAIN

Welcome! Welcome! The shouts came from the choir.

Welcome! Welcome! Welcome! Roy, our Bishop!

The congregation took up the cry to welcome the eighth bishop of the diocese of British Columbia.

Dean Brian Whitlow had just led Bishop Roy Gartrell, newly-consecrated and newly-installed, to the chancel steps.

The welcome shouts ended with a fanfare of trumpets and the new bishop spoke to his people.

"Some of my very oldest friends are in the congregation," he said. "My youngest son is here, my daughter, my wife and my mother.

"Pray for me, pray for the diocese. Pray for your parish, that God may continue to richly bless us."

He gave his blessing and, as the congregation said "Amen," the organ echoed through the cathedral, the bells rang out and the bishop led the whole company of participants from the cathedral.

The service proceeded with a stately pace amid the color and pomp of the ages-old ritual.

"This is a very meaningful service," a sidesman said to this reporter as one of the prayers ended. The sidesman, Wilfrid Bowen, continued: "The church has to be seen to be significant. We've got to be seen to mean something, and we do, or in the next five years, it's going to be bad."

★ ★ ★

Perhaps Right Rev. Frederick Wilkinson, former Bishop of Toronto, had the same thoughts when he gave the sermon.

"One concept of the church is the conviction that no church can live unto itself," he said. "The church must be the serving church."

He spoke with feeling of the Archbishop of Pernambuco, Brazil, who, he said, was the "most loved and respected man in Northeast Brazil."

The archbishop believes not only in God but in man, he said. "He spoke for the common man, for the two-thirds of mankind who are without clothes, without food, without houses and without work."

Cowichan Action Must Have Districts' Support

NANAIMO — A report from Duncan that the Cowichan School Board has decided to opt out of the Malaspina College system requires clarification, according to Dr. W. R. McMillan, chairman of Malaspina College council.

"Under the recently passed amendments to the Public Schools Act, a school board must have the unanimous approval of the other participating school districts as well as the consent of the Council of Public Instruction and the minister of education before that district can withdraw from participation," Dr. MacMillan said.

★ ★ ★

He pointed out that there were some other areas of misunderstanding arising from misinterpretation of the statement by Cowichan board chairman David Haywood.

"Mr. Haywood did not say there was any violation of the present agreement. It is incorrect to say that the ratio of students attending the college determines each school district's share," said MacMillan.

★ ★ ★

MacMillan said that the present agreement provided for a uniform tax levy in each of the participating school districts.

"The mill rate is 1.8 for Malaspina College and the homeowner in Duncan pays exactly the same rate as the homeowner in Nanaimo or any other community in the college region."

Concern was voiced by MacMillan and college authorities about the effect the Cowichan announcement would have upon students from the Duncan area.

★ ★ ★

"Applications for admission for the fall semester are being accepted and this will continue throughout the summer," MacMillan said. "Students already enrolled, or graduating students from the Cowichan area should be assured that Malaspina will continue to accept them at the lower registration fees that participating school districts enjoy."

★ ★ ★

Students from the Cowichan district would also continue to be eligible for all travel and housing subsidies as provided to other participating school districts, he said.

Malaspina College

Costs 'High'

DUNCAN — Cowichan School Board's decision to opt out of the Malaspina Regional College area was the responsibility of trustees, Mayor Gerry Smith of North Cowichan said Thursday.

The decision was made at a board meeting this week because it was felt that the district's share of the costs was too high.

★ ★ ★

Smith said: "This is the school board's business and I don't think that we, as elected municipal officials, should interfere. The trustees on the school board were elected by the people of this district and we, therefore, should accept their decision. It is their job to look after the interest of the school district."

Boarch chairman David Haywood said during the meeting that attempts for several months by his board to bring about a change in the financing of the Malaspina College had been in vain. He pointed out that last year Cowichan district had 10 per cent of the college enrolment and yet paid 28.24 per cent of the operational costs.

★ ★ ★

He said Cowichan's share in 1969 was $45,613. In December, 58 Cowichan district students were attending the college and the cost per student per semester in 1960 was $786. This year, for a full year, based on an average of 60 students, the cost rose to $2,650.

★ ★ ★

Earlier this year, he said, the board was told by the regional college council that its share would be $146,848, but more recently the board was advised that its share would be increased to $159,546 because the provincial government decided that a total of $249,690 of the regional college's 1970 operational budget was not shareable.

Haywood said: "Cowichan proposed the local share be equalized over participating school districts to recognize the ratio of students attending from various districts. He are unhappy with the present financial arrangement but if another could be agreed upon, perhaps by September, we could go back in."

He added that if no agreement could be reached by then Cowichan district students would have to pay $200 instead of $100, and they would not be eligible for transportation or living out allowances.

Little Girl Overcomes Handicap

Having a ball, Shelly Turney, four-year-old daughter of Shirley and Robert Turney, 211 Quebec, swooshes along Thursday on roller skates with help from Lisa Ryan, 5, of 219 Quebec. Born with club feet, Shelly spent first six weeks of her life in St. Joseph's Hospital with both feet in casts. She then was transferred to Queen Alexandra Solarium, where she spent six months. "Everybody said she was going to be crippled but now she walks as well as you or me," Mrs. Turney said. — (William E. John)

Service Unveils Home Plan

By BRUCE LOWTHER

The Family and Children's Service of Victoria unveiled a four-home plan Friday designed to take the pressure off existing facilities for young offenders and to give them a better chance to "get back in the stream" of the community.

FCS executive director Gordon Wright said the service's board of directors this week approved the hiring of a supervisor who will get the four homes operating in the Greater Victoria area within the next year or 18 months.

The homes will be for persons found guilty under the Juvenile Delinquents Act and sentenced to FCA care under the Protection of Children Act. Each home will house about eight adolescents and Wright emphasized the idea is "not small prisons, but open homes."

The homes will not be designed for juveniles on remand for future court hearings but it is expected that they will ease overcrowding of such facilities.

Criticism of those facilities was voiced recently when a 15-year-old boy was held in the Victoria juvenile detention home for 48 days while awaiting a juvenile court hearing on two charges of attempted robbery.

* * *

Wright said the FCS hopes to find a supervisor within a month and line up a staff for two of the homes within a month after that. He said one home already is available and purchase of the others is awaiting financial-aid negotiations with the provincial government as well as the arrival of the supervisor.

The executive director said the idea is to buy existing homes, not build new ones. As for the staff, personnel will be reallocated within FCS to take care of the first two homes.

Wright said the emphasis in the homes would be on "support for the children." Initially, there would be one child-care worker or social worker for each child, and by the time the program was in full swing, there might be four staff people in each home.

"These kids are out of the educational and vocational stream," he said. "The idea would be to get them back into the stream and at least keep them in the community."

Action to solve the problem of facilities for adolescents on remand also was announced by Saanich Ald. William Noel, chairman of the intermunicipal detention home committee.

He said a letter with a series of proposals would be sent to Wright shortly but declined to give details until the letter is received.

Two 15-year-old boys were brought to the detention home March 11 on attempted robbery charges. One was released to the custody of his parents but the other remained in the home for 48 days because there was no other place for him.

* * *

Noel and other officials disclosed that the boys appeared April 28 in juvenile court and were found guilty following trials. They were remanded to next Tuesday for sentence, the one boy in his parents' custody and the other in the custody of the Victoria Children's Aid Society, which arranged accommodation.

Wright said one reason the boy remained so long in the detention home was that his lawyer, obtained through the Legal Aid system, requested a number of remands.

Noel said his letter was a result of two other cases as well as that of the boy in detention for 48 days. He declined to give details.

Operation Tickles Council's Fancy

Victoria in Dating Game?

A traditionally sombre and businesslike meeting of Victoria city council's finance committee almost turned into a comedy hour Thursday, when members recommended city council approve an application for establishment of a dating service in Victoria.

* * *

The applicants, George Beck and Lorraine Wark of New Westminster, who operate a similar establishment in Vancouver, appeared before the committee to give further information about the proposed Dial-A-Date service.

They said their Vancouver operation consisted of about 350 members. For an annual fee of $60 each member was entitled to get as many dates as he could handle. One couple which had met through Dial-A-Date was getting married in a week.

"What happens if I have paid my 60 bucks and I marry the first date?" Ald. Tom Christie asked.

"That means I'm out 60 bucks, or do you give a refund?"

When the roars had subsided, Miss Ward replied that it would be worth $60 to any man to find the girl he wants to marry—at least it should be.

"Touche," one of the aldermen shouted.

Christie then pried a little more.

* * *

"Maybe that's a personal question, but with a good thing like that going for you in Vancouver, have you had any luck yourself?" he asked Beck.

"No, sir, I haven't, but then I'm a married man with three children." Beck replied and was rewarded with loud laughter.

Miss Ward told the meeting the business would be a great boon to Victoria where it was very difficult to meet persons of the opposite sex.

"This goes especially for professional people. In Vancouver, we have several doctors, a college professor, businessmen and nurses as members of our club, and it seems to work out very well," she said.

The police, Miss Ward told the committee, were keeping "a constant eye" on the operation, a fact she welcomed.

"They come in in plainclothes and ask for an interview. We interview all our clients personally so we get to know them. Afterward they tell us (the detectives) who they are. Of course, they don't join."

Mayor Courtney Haddock said he couldn't see anything wrong with this type of business as long as there were adequate safeguards it wouldn't get out of hand.

* * *

Some objections were voiced a few weeks ago when aldermen cautioned this sort of service could easily develop into a call girl racket.

"But I'm convinced now, that you people have the best of intentions and I can see no reason why this application shouldn't be approved," Haddock said.

Two Sent To Trial By Judge

COURTENAY — Two men were committed for trial by Judge Eric Winch after preliminary hearings ended Thursday.

Norman Thomas Emery of Merville is charged with rape, allegedly involving a young pregnant Merville woman.

The preliminary hearing took nearly two days to complete. Emery is being defended by Harry Reddin and Donald Barker. T. G. Ryan conducted the case for the crown.

The second man was Reginald Thomas Baine of Hornby Island. He is charged with possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking, alleged to have occurred near Buckley Bay April 12.

Both men were granted bail until the trial dates are arranged.

Meetings Set By IWA

DUNCAN — Two meetings of Duncan IWA local 1-80 have been arranged to hear reports on the current dispute between the IWA and MacMillan Bloedel at Chemainus. Sawmill workers will meet at the Odeon Theatre, Duncan, Sunday at 11 a.m. and loggers will go to the Native Sons' Hall, Ladysmith, at 1:30 a.m.

There is a company application to B.C. Supreme Court against the local and its officers in connection with the tugboat strike.

Quarterback Tries Again With Stamps

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference Friday announced the signing of two new imports, quarterback Jerry Henderson and offensive-guard Fred Alvarez.

Henderson, a six-foot, 190-pounder from Washington State University, attended the Stampeders' training camp in 1969 but then had to spend six months in the United States armed forces. He was invited to return in 1970.

Alvarez is a six-footer from Utah State University who has also used his 240 pounds as a linebacker.

Civil Service

Union, Commission Enter Final Talks

The B.C. Government Employees' Union and Civil Service Commission are meeting in Victoria for the third and last day today in connection with wage appeals.

"There's nothing that can really be reported at this stage, except that the meetings have been cordial so far," said John Fryer of Vancouver, general secretary of the BCGEU.

Although the union has not succeeded so far in its drive for collective bargaining rights, it has held votes for the first time on acceptance or rejection of the 7 to 11 per cent wage increase announced ealier by the government.

There was a general rejection and one branch, Oakalla Prison, also voted to strike if demands are not met.

Fryer said the appeals so far have concerned the groups that voted to reject the increase.

The union covers some 14,000 government workers.

Nixon Says He, Dissenters Have Same Goals

Tension Grips Capital

From AP, UPI

WASHINGTON — An air of tense uncertainty settled over Washington Friday night as the United States capital steeled itself for an invasion by perhaps 100,000 persons who wish to demonstrate their contempt for President Nixon's war policies.

The unknown quantity was whether leaders pledged to nonviolent protest could control the situation.

The dimensions of potential trouble were reflected in a number of extraordinary events:

● National Guard members were advised to stand by in all states to watch over armories and thwart possible arson or violence.

● Republican governors cancelled a spring meeting and Nixon summoned all 50 governors to meet with him Monday to discuss "the disruption of peace, violence and potential violence throughout the nation."

● Some 227 colleges and universities throughout the U.S. suspended classes.

In a televised press conference Nixon said Friday night his decision to send U.S.

Towboat-Forest Squeeze

400 MORE IN LAYOFFS

Four hundred more Victoria area men will be out of work Monday when the Victoria sawmill division of B.C. Forest Products Ltd. closes down for lack of logs, company manager Walter Nelson said Friday.

They will be added to the 200 laid off Friday from the Point Ellice division when they refused to handle logs branded "hot" by striking Canadian Merchant Service Guildsmen, causing that plant to close down.

Nelson said there are some logs on hand at the adjacent plant, but they will run out some time Monday.

* * *

The company has applied for a court injunction to restrain International Woodworkers of America members employed by them from refusing to handle "hot" logs.

The company expects a further four of the company's 22 logging camps across the province to shut down Monday affecting another 100 men.

* * *

An estimated 5,000 men have now been laid off in shutdowns throughout B.C. following refusal of IWA members to handle logs labelled "hot" by the Canadian Merchant Service Guild.

Hardest hit by the six-day-old towboat strike is MacMillan Bloedel which has been forced to curtail operations at nine of its logging and sawmill divisions, effecting some 4,000 men.

* * *

The New Westminster division closed Friday putting 300 out of work.

In Nanaimo, Mayo Lumber Co. has applied for an injunction against the guild on the grounds the latter marked as "hot" logs which were brought to the mill before the start of the strike.

There are about 200 employees at the mill, members of the IWA, who will be out of work if the company cannot obtain the injunction. IWA members have been respecting "hot" stickers on logs and not using them.

Mill manager Gordon McGavin says the mill is operating on a day-to-day basis.

The newly-opened CIPA mill is virtually closed with 60 men out of work.

The Harmac mill, with 1,100 employees, is still in operation.

Crown Zellerbach reported Friday it is continuing to operate at all its B.C. divisions but is reviewing the situation on a day-to-day basis.

Several smaller companies have already been forced to shut down and spokesmen for the industry said further layoffs are imminent if the towboat dispute continues.

Injunction applications continued to flow into B.C. Supreme Court in Vancouver

Vancouver

Protest Jams Streets

VANCOUVER (CP)—Club-swinging police broke up a milling around the Vancouver police station Friday night shouting obscenities at officers and demanding the release of demonstrators they said were arrested during a protest in the downtown area.

The demonstrators were earlier confronted by police in the heart of the city during a protest march against the United States' involvement in Cambodia and the shooting of four students at Kent State University in Ohio.

* * *

The demonstrations started at the U.S. Consulate where a window was kicked in and U.S. flags burned. A bank window was also smashed.

At the police station, the crowd chanted "Set our brothers free" as armed guards blocked the entrances to the building.

One demonstrator stood on a car and urged the crowd to rush the building. He was not supported.

* * *

Police at the rear of the station were issued billy clubs, and dogs were removed from their kennels to quell any uprising. The crowd had thinned out slightly by 11 p.m.

There were no immediate reports of arrests and police

After Burnaby Robbery

Dogs Flush Out Suspects

VANCOUVER (CP) — One man was wounded in the shoulder as police used tracking dogs to flush out two robbery suspects in a bushland area of the Burnaby suburb of Vancouver Friday.

Charged later with robbery were Barry Charles Klashinsky, 29, of Surrey and Gerald Joseph Loftus, 31, of Vancouver.

* * *

The chase started after two armed and masked men escaped with about $3,500 from an employees credit union office at a milk plant. When the getaway car hit a parked truck, the men fled into the bush on foot, leaving a sawed-off rifle and a quantity of money behind.

* * *

Police and dogs surrounded the area and flushed two men from the bushes after wounding one of them in the shoulder. The wound was described as not serious.

Meanwhile, police were continuing a search for two men who escaped, earlier in the day with $9,000 after a bank robbery in South Vancouver.

The men, who produced pistols and ordered customers to the floor, fled by car from a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada. Police later found the getaway car abandoned a few blocks from the bank.

Sino-Soviet Affection Feeds on Cambodia

LONDON (AP) — China and the Soviet Union have joined in spreading word that United States President Nixon's intervention in Cambodia has opened the way for a Peking-Moscow reconciliation.

This development was dramatized by reports circulating among Chinese diplomats here Friday that a ranking Soviet official has hurried to Peking, supposedly bearing proposals for co-ordinated and broadened Communist resistance against the Americans in Indochina.

Ottawa Holds Firm

Postal Talks May Resume

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiators for the federal treasury board and the Council of Postal Unions are expected to resume talks Tuesday in an attempt to prevent a national strike, a reliable source said Friday.

The meeting has not been officially confirmed by either side. It is expected the first priority will be to sort out the issues dumped back on the bargaining table by a conciliation board report made public Thursday.

The gap between the wage demands of the postal unions and the increase offered by the government remains the biggest obstacle to a settlement.

* * *

The union view, filed in the report by labor representative William Walsh of Hamilton, would raise base rates in the post office by 23.3 per cent in a two-year contract expiring Oct. 1, 1971. Wages for postal employees now start at $2.57 an hour and reach $3.23 for dispatchers and other supervisory staff.

Treasury Board president C. M. Drury has indicated the government is sticking by the proposal of its representative on the conciliation board . . . a 30-month contract with a 16-per-cent wage increase.

Press Dispute On Mainland Near Solution

VANCOUVER (CP) — Negotiators for Pacific Press Ltd. said Friday they will recommend acceptance of an agreement worked out by the British Columbia mediation commission, and aimed at ending a labor dispute which has closed Vancouver's two daily newspapers since Feb. 15.

A spokesman for the company, which produces the morning Province and evening Sun, said the papers could be on the street by next weekend if both sides ratify the proposed agreement.

Union negotiators last week agreed to recommend acceptance of the package, which is retroactive to Nov. 1, 1969, to their members.

The company earlier balked at the Nov. 1 date, saying it would accept the settlement if the contracts with the five unions were dated from Jan. 1.

* * *

However, in a letter Friday to the mediation commissioners, the company said it was not made clear to its negotiators that settlement proposals were a completed package, not subject to future negotiations, and it now would accept the Nov. 1 date.

A spokesman for the unions — mailers, stereotypers, printers, pressmen and the Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild — said the unions will hold separate meetings Sunday to vote on the proposed settlement.

In a prepared statement, commissioners Pen Baskin and Alistair Pollock said they will meet with both sides at 10 a.m. today to work out procedures for resumption of operations.

* * *

"Therefore, the proposals in their entirety will be placed before union memberships and company principals for ratification," the statement said.

The Nov. 1 effective date for the contract had been a key issue in the dispute, with company negotiators seeking a later date.

The two commissioners recommended that the contract cover a three-year

Experts Hammer Out Anti-Gas Measures

● Nerve gas: 100-million-to-1 bet hedged. Page 5

By BILL THOMAS

A cluster of senior officials from federal government agencies and provincial civil defence organizations met in Victoria behind closed doors Friday morning to ponder what they all consider close to impossible—a leak of nerve gas if the U.S. government ships stores of the deadly weapon from Okinawa to Umatilla, Oregon.

Canada's chemical warfare experts from the defence research establishment at Suffield, Alberta, explained the effects of the toxic establishments at Suffield, Alberta, explained the effects of the toxic gases. Civil defence organizers listened and will try to work out plans for combatting an improbable disaster.

Members of the RCMP, CBC, Canadian Forces, along with staffers of the federal departments of fisheries, health and welfare, agriculture and fisheries, external affairs and federal emergency measures organization opened a series of talks that will go on until the potential crisis is over.

While the experts from Suffield, who know all the details of silent, odorless death, were putting the odds beyond the Irish Sweepstakes, it was obvious from the tone of the participants who spoke to the press following the meeting they have no intention of holding a winning ticket.

The Friday meeting will be followed up with meetings of specialists in the various facets of civil defence and emergency measures. This meeting marked the first time federal and provincial officials have offered public statements on their concern at the U.S. proposal.

Layoffs Protested By Work-to-Rule

NEW WESTMINSTER, (CP) — The British Columbia Hospital Employees Union have begun a work-to-rule campaign at Royal Columbian hospital to protest staff layoffs.

The hospital board Wednesday decided to cut staff by 50 because of austerity measures instituted by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark. Vice-chairman Dr. R. D. MacNeill quit in protest.

* * *

Meanwhile, hospital director R. B. Thomson Thursday posted a notice to staff saying the quality and quantity of care at the hospital will suffer because of the cuts.

His notice formally advised staff there will be layoffs but gave no details. Medical director R. G. Foulkes, however, said the 50 will include 26 nurses and eight other medical employees.

The union, with 550 members at RCH before staff cuts were announced, said it will post information pickets around the hospital next week. The union has 8,000 members in the province.

RCH board chairman Jack Biggs said the staff laid off will not qualify for unemployment insurance benefits because the provincial government has never agreed to pay a share of contributions.

* * *

A press release outlined service cuts:

● Visiting hours, presently from 2-8 p.m., will be 7-8 p.m.

● Admissions and discharges will be closely regulated.

● Non - essential operations, such as plastic surgery, will not be performed weekends.

● Electro-shock treatment for psychiatric patients will be ended and patients referred to Hollywood or Riverview hospitals.

● Out - patient fees, cost of private and semi - private rooms and meal prices in the staff cafeteria will all increase.

No Further Cuts in Victoria Budget

Another 'Kick at Cat' Miskicks

Victoria city council met Friday to "take another kick at the cat, . . . to whack a healthy chunk off the budget," but after 55 minutes of discussion, the city's 1970 operating budget totalling $21,168,650 was approved without further cuts.

Council's decision established the city's municipal mill rate at 37.5 mills — a reduction of 1.8 mills from the 1969 rate.

The over-all mill rate, including hospital and school levies which aren't set by council, dropped to 68.51 mills from 70.02 in 1969.

Victoria's business tax was reduced to 5½ per cent from 6¼ per cent in 1969.

These were all recommended by council meeting in committee-of-the-whole Wednesday.

★ ★ ★

It was Mayor Courtney Haddock who said Wednesday council should "take another kick at the cat and whack a healthy chunk off the budget." At that time, council deleted $16,000 from the budget following a seven-hour session.

At Friday's meeting, he asked if there were any areas where more cuts might be made.

"What about parks? Under small parks and greens there is a $150,000 item. Do we have to spend that much money on parks? Or what about Beacon Hill Park?" he asked.

Immediately, Ald. Peter Pollen replied this expenditure was necessary if the urban area was to be kept fit for human living.

"If we don't provide this sort of service for the beauty of our city, the environment will go to hell," he said.

Ald. Ove Witt asked what alternative the mayor had in mind.

"Do we want asphalt instead of greens?"

Next, the mayor questioned a $36,000 expenditure for the maintenance of Ross Bay Cemetery.

"That's $100,000 in three years," he said.

"That's even more if you count the last 100 years," a voice interjected.

City Manager Dennis Young told council it was impossible to eliminate this item.

"We have to keep up the cemetery. There will be an outcry if we don't," he said.

Haddock asked how the Memorial Arena could be put on a money-making basis. City Comptroller Jim Bramley answered:

"You can't unless you bring a real moneymaker like pro hockey into the city," he said.

The arena's estimated deficit for 1970 is $25,540.

★ ★ ★

Young told council it was next to impossible to make any further cuts in this year's budget. All figures represented a realistic picture of the necessary expenditures.

"Years ago, budgets were padded. Department heads would bring every conceivable item before you in the hope of getting some of them approved," he said.

"That has changed. Now department heads must prepare a budget that reflects an adequate level of service within the city's ability to pay," Young said.

At this point, Ald. Harold Olafson said it was obvious council was engaged in an exercise in futility.

"We can sit here until doomsday and not accomplish a thing. I move that this budget be approved."

The motion was unanimously carried by council.

The cut in the city's mill rate of 1.8 mills will save the average Victoria homeowner about $10 on this year's property tax bill.

Hydro Rules

Overhead Wiring Definite

It's final — overhead B.C. Hydro transmission lines will be strung along Interurban Road and parallel to Burnside Road.

"There is no point in making any further protest," B.C. Hydro Vancouver Island regional manager Alan Macdonald said Friday.

Concerned about mounting public criticism of plans to build overhead transmission lines and distribution feeder lines in Greater Victoria, B.C. Hydro officials called a press conference Friday afternoon to explain their position.

Macdonald said that as far as he knew no estimate had ever been made for underground wiring along Interurban Road.

He said B.C. Hydro would not put overhead lines in a highly developed area such as the Uplands, and agreed with a questioner that if $30,000 to $50,000 homes had been built along Interurban Road then underground wiring would probably have been installed there.

He repeated B.C. Hydro's claim that underground wiring would be installed if the public was prepared to pay for it, but admitted that there is no machinery set up to ascertain public opinion.

"We couldn't go around calling for a vote on a thing like this," said Macdonald. "We would talk to the councils and take their ideas into account."

Macdonald said Hydro officials had never worked out what the additional costs of underground wiring would mean to the individual consumer and did not know when figures would be available.

"Of course if these costs were worked out giving people 20 years to pay or something like that, the cost would be negligible," he said.

The high cost of underground wiring compared with that of transmission lines plus high interest rates, he said, were the main reasons for leaving the lines overhead.

Macdonald said he did not think the overhead lines would look as bad as people seemed to expect.

'People Used to Poles'

"People get used to the poles and lines," he said, and challenged reporters to name the boundaries of the underground wiring in downtown Victoria.

"It's a matter of esthetic values," said Macdonald. "It doesn't bother you unless you sit and look atth e poles and if you do that it makes either a neutral or unfavorable impression upon you."

He did not agree that overhead lines lowered property values.

"B.C. Hydro is affected by inflation just as are others in the community, and now has been compelled to borrow so much money to build new plants that payment of interest has become the largest single item of expense, exceeding payments for all salaries and wages," said Macdonald.

"Action to improve matters of environmental concern involve the expenditure of money and priorities should be established because the money supply is very limited," said Macdonald.

"Is the public prepared to spend money on the undergrounding of overhead conductors before spending it for such things as sewers, road improvements and fire protection?"

Greater Victoria's power requirements, he said, are doubling about every nine years, requiring doubling of all plants — substations, transmission and distribution facilities.

Substantial additions will be required in the next few years, he said.

A new transmission line will have to be built to serve Sidney, followed by a new transmission line to Gordon Head and the Colwood-Langford areas and a new substation in Colwood in 1971. New feeders were also needed out of the Esquimalt substation, he said.

B.C. Hydro, he said, had not decided on routes for the new lines, and were trying to work out ways of involving municipal councils in planning.

Generally speaking, he felt that the thinner the growth in an area the greater the possibility of overhead construction.

Want to Be Nixon?

Acting Out Life Aids Insight

By DON GAIN

"If you had Richard Nixon in this chair, what would you say to him?" the leader of the psychodrama asked.

"President Nixon," the minister said, addressing the empty chair, "if you just keep up with this silly approach to Southeast Asia, everybody is going to lose and I don't want to have anything to do with you or your administration or your country."

The leader was Rev. James Zacharias of the Puget Sound Unitarian Counselling Service. Addressing a non-existent President Nixon was Rev. Arthur Wilmot of the Unitarian Church of Victoria.

★ ★ ★

The two men were giving a demonstration of psychodrama before about 50 spectators at the Unitarian Church.

"You take the chair now. You be Nixon," Zacharias told the Victoria minister.

Wilmot sat down and began to play the role of Nixon.

"You simple don't understand the facts," he said. "This is a great crisis we face. We're fighting for the survival of the free world, but someone as simple-minded as you appear to be can't understand it."

"Switch roles again," Zacharias said.

★ ★ ★

As himself, Wilmot addressed the empty chair.

"You just seem so slippery. You always take the same approach. No change ever comes."

"You're Nixon again," the leader said.

Wilmot sat in the chair and looked toward where he had been standing.

"If you really understood the situation and the facts involved, which can't be told, you'd know I did the right thing."

The scene finished, Zacharias explained that people could learn something about themselves by acting out certain aspects of their lives.

★ ★ ★

(Webster defines psychodrama as unrehearsed dramatic play designed to afford catharsis and social relearning for one or more of the participants from whose life history the plot is abstracted.)

Role reversal is used, as demonstrated in the Nixon scene, and this can give insight into our own thoughts and reactions.

Sometimes a double is used, a trained person, who mimics every gesture of the person acting out the real-life role.

Zacharias' wife, Theresa, acted as a double and, as she imitated the movements of a subject, also interjected statements as if she were the subject's alter ego.

In some scenes, protagonists were added to play specific parts of the life drama.

Step by step, psychodramas were created. In one, Robin La Garff played himself, while Mrs. Zacharias followed through part of his action as his double.

At the end of the evening, the techniques were discussed.

"Our intent was to provide you with an experience of various techniques used in psychodrama," Zacharias said.

★ ★ ★

J. L. Moreno, an Austrian who was a student of Freud's, originated psychodrama in the 1920s, he said.

Zacharias himself studied with Moreno at his institute in Beacon, N.Y. His present position is minister of counselling with the Puget Sound Unitarian Council.

An ordained Unitarian minister, his experience has embraced work as juvenile court chaplain, pastoral counsellor of mental hospitals and group therapist with alcholics.

A native of Pennsylvania, he grew up as a Lutheran. He will speak in the Unitarian Church here at 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

Pats to Mark Victory Day

About 420 members of the 3rd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry stationed at Work Point will hold church parades Sunday morning to commemorate the 25th anniversary of VE Day Friday.

Roman Catholics in the battalion will visit St. Andrew's Cathedral and Protestants will visit Central Baptist Church. After 11 a.m. church services, the two groups will march past the Victoria Cenotaph.

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock will take a salute from the battalion as they pass a saluting base on the Causeway, opposite the Empress Hotel.

Three Men Injured In Two-Car Crash

Reward Grows

Mutilater Of Dog At Large

An Irish setter that was mutilated by castration Thursday in Central Saanich began to recover Friday, and the public began to offer rewards for information leading to the arrest of the mutilator.

Trevor Hughes, of 1934 Hovey, said late Friday night the four-year-old Paddy, attacked by an unknown person or persons during a two-hour absence, had been taken off the critical list at an animal hospital and was in fair condition.

Rewards of $50 have been offered by the SPCA; Trevor's father, Darrel; Mr. and Mrs. James Audain of 1159 Beach Drive, Oak Bay; Laurie Patterson, 3082 Island View Road, Central Saanich, and two anonymous donors.

Amounts of $25 have been offered by Mrs. Patricia Corderoy, 9246 Rideau, near Sidney; Mrs. K. Granger, and Malcolm and Margaret Dighton, 4 Mark Lane on Finlayson Arm.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Court of 639 Fairways, Langford, and Mr. and Mrs. K. Dicks of 1245 Balmoral offered $10 and Dennis Wagner, of 1015 Redfern, pledged $5 for a total of $400 so far.

Hughes expressed thanks to those who added to the reward money.

★ ★ ★

He said Central Saanich police were continuing an investigation and added he had "talked to almost everybody within a half-mile radius" of his home Friday.

He said in addition he had received many calls from people expressing sympathy for what had happened.

Juveniles' Guardian:

More Court No Answer

Raising more juveniles to adult court may relieve the pressure on care facilities for juvenile delinquents, but it will certainly not help the young offenders, Gordon Wright, executive director of Greater Victoria's Family and Children's Service, said Friday.

"It's not enough and it shouldn't be our sole aim to simply pull a juvenile delinquent out of society and lock him up for a certain time," Wright said.

★ ★ ★

"We should be more concerned with his rehabilitation. We should try to train him and gradually lead him back into society, but that's impossible if we throw him into prison."

Wright was commenting on a letter from the attorney-general's department informing the Victoria area Family and Children's Service Thursday that more juveniles would be raised to adult court.

Reason for this decision, the letter stated, was the lack of juvenile delinquent care facilities throughout the province.

The policy would mean that more juvenile offenders would serve sentences in adult jails and prisons.

★ ★ ★

Wright said society's main objective should be to teach juvenile offenders to live in harmony with their fellow human beings.

"And that is impossible to learn in our prisons and jails," he said.

Under current provincial legislation, offenders between 12 and 18 years of age are dealt with by the Family and Children's Court. If found guilty, they are placed into the care of the Family and Children's Service, placed on probation or fined.

★ ★ ★

FCS has two juvenile care facilities at the moment and has announced plans for four more detention homes within the next year or 18 months.

"I think that the attorney-general's department has made a thoroughly destructive decision," Wright said.

Bikini Billboards Fail Stare Poll

PORTLAND (AP) —"Good grief," said the Portland motorist, "She doesn't have any clothes on."

He was looking at a big billboard in Medford that showed a lithe young woman, wearing a brief bikini, feeding a saucer of milk to a kitten.

★ ★ ★

He was accustomed to similar billboards in Portland that showed the same young woman in the same pose — but covered by slacks and a long-sleeved blouse.

Both billboards said, "every body needs milk" and were put up by the Oregon Dairy Products Commission through a Portland advertising agency.

The commission rented a dozen boards in Medford and two in Klamath Falls. On these the girl wore a bikini. On 10 or so billboards in Portland, the girl was fully clothed.

The purpose was to determine which would attract the more attention. To determine this, 100 teenagers were questioned in Portland, 52 in Klamath Falls, and 79 in Medford.

The result, which girl watchers contend set advertising back at least a decade, was:

"There is no indication that the amount of clothing made any difference in the awareness."

Czech Wife Homesick

'She Doesn't Realize'

OTTAWA (CP) — A Czechoslovakian immigrant couple are trying to iron out their problems here after the husband made a plane dash from Winnipeg to head off a planned return by his wife and children to the Communist-controlled country.

"She just doesn't realize what will happen if she goes back," George Tyc said Thursday night after catching up to his wife and two children in Ottawa.

★ ★ ★

"She just doesn't understand."

The couple and their two children, George, 6, and Richard, 2, remained at a friend's residence here Friday to try to reach a solution to their problem.

"If they went back they would never get out — the Communists wouldn't let them out," Tyc said. "I couldn't let my family go over there."

The husband said his wife had found English difficult to learn since they came to Winnipeg in December, 1968. Tyc learned the language and got a job with a farm implement company

★ ★ ★

Then Mrs. Tyc's mother died in Czechoslovakia. This was "the last blow," the husband said.

He came home from work Wednesday and found a note from his wife saying she had decided to go back to Czechoslovakia. She had boarded a train.

★ ★ ★

Tyc caught a plane to Ottawa and was waiting at the station when the train arrived here en route to Montreal.

After settling his wife and children in with friends here, Tyc said she has agreed to stay in Ottawa for a while and he hopes the problem can be solved with the family remaining in Canada.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column you said a man could not tell for sure if a woman is a virgin. That was one of the most terrible statements you have ever made. In the first place it is untrue, and in the second place it gives the green light to every girl who thinks she can fool around and pass herself off as pure on her wedding night.

●

I am enclosing a clipping of a news story from Reuters. The dateline is Naples. This story reports that a 30-year-old bride who claimed she was a virgin was legally banished by her groom. The husband, a 30-year-old fisherman named Angelo, had heard rumors concerning his future wife, Vincenzina. When he asked her about the rumors she swore they were lies. On their wedding night Angelo left Vincenzina because he learned the rumors were true.

The following week, Angelo went to the church to get the marriage annulled. The Tribunal heard the case. Medical evidence was produced which proved the girl had ceased to be a virgin one year before the marriage. An annulment was granted.

You have a responsibility to your millions of readers to retract your statement at once.—No Faith In You.

Dear No Faith: If all the old wives tales about virginity were laid end to end they would reach from here to Naples. In some instances, it is possible to ascertain virginity. In many cases the "evidence" is non-existent or highly doubtful. One of my medical consultants told me of two patients who were technically virgins and pregnant. Another physician said he had examined at least 50 young girls who had no clinical evidence of virginity yet he was certain the girls were telling the truth when they said they had not had sexual intercourse.

In the case of Angelo and his bride, the statement that a girl ceased to be a virgin one year before her wedding night raises so many medical questions that the "trial" was at best preposterous. I've said it before and I say it again. Churches should stick to moral and spiritual matters and stay out of medicine.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife and I are not people who let things go 'til the last minute. We plan everything ahead and it sure does save a lot of headaches. This evening we were discussing our 1970 Christmas card.

In past years we've always had the names of our children on the card along with ours. Our last chick left the nest in January so our next card will have only our names. Should it be Rose and Jay or Jay and Rose? My wife says the woman's name is supposed to be first. I'm sure I read somewhere that the man's name should be first if it is shorter. Please hurry your answer.—Impasse.

Dear Im: I'm typing as fast as I can and I hope this reaches you in time. There are only 230 days 'til Christmas. The woman's name should appear first if the card is printed. If the wife is signing the card, she should put her husband's name first.

And while you're at it — please use your last name. Every year we receive dozens of cards — from Dick and Dorothy??? Bob and Kathy??? John and Sue??? — etc., etc. . .

Six Provinces 235 Abortions

OTTAWA (CP) — Hospitals in six provinces carried out 235 therapeutic abortions in the first three months of this year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Friday.

The figure covered the six provinces that have established reporting procedures under last year's federal law.

The provinces are Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. A breakdown for each province was not available.

Last year's law allows therapeutic abortion where a hospital committee certifies that continued pregnancy will endanger the mother's health.

An abortion caravan is scheduled on Parliament Hill today to demonstrate for hospital abortions without any legal restriction.

However, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Friday the government does not intend to amend the law.

The women demonstrating for the repeal of Criminal Code provisions on abortion say back-alley operations are still common, despite the new law.

DBS reported that:

● Forty-one women died in hospital as a result of induced abortions in the 1964-68 period. Highest number reported by hospitals in any one year was 10 in 1964, lowest four in 1967.

● 29 died in hospital of spontaneous abortions, or miscarriages, in the same period, the high being 12 in 1964, the low being four in 1966, in 1967 and 1968.

● Hospitals reported that abortion was the principal factor in the admission of 45,482 women in 1966, the latest year for which figures were given. Figure for 1964 was 54,136, for 1962 it was 57,617, and for 1961 it was 57,376.

Housewives Go Gently

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — Eight housewives, who say they don't want to join a "mob," plan a quiet candlelight vigil Sunday to protest killing, whether in Indochina or on college campuses. "It's just a small, gentle protest," said Mrs. James McGary, 47, in whose kitchen the idea for the vigil was evolved.
